Two Fish and Game officers killed

By the Times-News
and United Press International

BOISE — Two Idaho Fish and Game officers are believed to have been killed sometime Monday near the Idaho-Nevada border in southwest Owyhee County.

"All we know is that two bodies have been found, apparently just inside the Nevada border," said Michael A. De La Torre, director of the Nevada Department of Law Enforcement.

De La Torre said his office had sent investigators to the scene and would be cooperating with Idaho authorities.

Idaho Bureau of Investigation Chief Richard Cade said an officer from the Idaho Bureau of Investigations was dispatched Tuesday afternoon to help investigate the shooting. Cade said it was "unknown whether they are dead."

A highly placed department source, however, told The Times-News the department was convinced the two men had indeed been killed.

"They had been working on a trapping case down there for the past couple of days. We know their names but nothing will be released on that until the nearest of kin can be notified," the source said.

A sketchy description of the situation was making the rounds Tuesday night but "who saw it happen and who started the story isn't known."

According to the story, as repeated by the Time-News source, the department men had established a case against an unidentified trapper and at one point had him disarmed. However, when the trio entered the trapper's cabin, the arrested man somehow secured a gun and allegedly killed both officers. The story could not be verified.

When asked if he knew who had committed the reported shooting, Cade said, "We have an idea," but declined to comment further.

Earlier, Don Watkins, spokesman for Gov. John Evans, said Fish and Game Director Jerry Conley called the governor to report two Fish and Game officers had been shot and killed.

Cade said his bureau first was alerted of the report by Owyhee County Sheriff Tim Nettleton Tuesday afternoon. Nettleton was still in the field investigating the incident at press time Tuesday night.

An Owyhee County Sheriff's deputy said search parties were to head out at dawn today in an effort to verify the shootings.

The Owyhee County Sheriff's office refused to release any details, and in fact even refused to confirm if any bodies had been found.

"We're not saying a shooting occurred," the deputy said. "The search parties are going out to see whether there are bodies to be located." She said helicopters were to be used in the search, which was expected to begin in Idaho and proceed to Nevada if necessary. She said the first report of the shooting came from a call from the county prosecutor's office, but declined to say where the prosecutor obtained the information. The prosecutor could not be reached for comment.

The state budget could reap a $27 million windfall under changes proposed by Gov. Evans

Evans proposes tax changes

By LARRY SWISHER
Times-News writer

BOISE — Idaho would receive a $27 million windfall in tax collections in the next fiscal year, under changes in methods of tax collection proposed by Gov. John Evans.

However, the plan was criticized Tuesday by members of the Legislature's Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee, who said it would be unfair and would remove cash from the private economy.

Evans wants most of the windfall to be used to repay his proposed $6.5 million loan from the Water Pollution Control Fund, $14 million worth of highway building and repairs and $2.5 million to establish a revolving loan fund for rehabilitating older dams.

Under Evans' proposal, estimated payments four times a year would replace one-time payments of income taxes insurance premium taxes, Larry Seale, director of the state Division of Finance and Management, told the committee.

Seale said income taxes are paid once a year on April 15 for the preceding calendar year by corporations and about 15 percent of the state's residents.

Meanwhile, about 85 percent of individual taxpayers pay through payroll deductions throughout the year, he said.

Advance payments for everybody would make the income tax system more equitable, add $4.2 million to state revenues each year, and conform to the federal system, Seale said.

The same change is proposed for the insurance premium tax payments for an annual gain of $450,000.

In addition, a $29.2 million windfall would be a one-time gain realized from implementation of the income tax plan and a $4.5 million windfall from the insurance premium tax plan, Seale said.

That would come about because the state would receive five payments in the next fiscal year but the normal four payments each year after that, he said. The payments would be in January, April, June and September.

Rep. Mack Neibaur, R-Paul, said the plan would penalize individuals and businesses that receive their income only at certain times of the year, such as loggers and farmers.

"If I've got to borrow money to pay you it's not fair," Neibaur said.

Seale acknowledged those who are not paying on a "current basis" would face a sizeable expense, if the change is made.

He also acknowledged that the windfall from insurance tax payments is contained in the governor's budget and would have to be "made up in fiscal year '83."

Including that amount, about $14 million in total in the $452 million budget relies upon passage by the Legislature of these and other Evans' proposals for changing tax collection and auditing methods.

Reports say Iran accepts U.S. offer

But White House considerably less optimistic

By United Press International

Iranian Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai announced Tuesday Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has accepted Algerian guarantees to free the 52 American hostages.

But White House press secretary Jody Powell said only that the Iranians relayed to Washington some questions about the latest U.S. response to Iran's conditions for ending the 430-day crisis.

Powell said the questions, which officials described as "substantive," were delivered by Algerian officials.

Powell counseled caution and said an earlier ABC News report, which said Iran had agreed in principle with the latest American proposal, was "decidedly too optimistic" in tone.

"There is no way to know which way this will lead. We will all be well advised not to jump to conclusions."

Powell said the responses are about complete for relay to Tehran.

CBS News reported that a high Iranian source in the United States said Khomeini told Rajai, in CBS's words, "It was all right now to release the hostages" and that Iran should accept the Algerian recommendations to free the hostages.

There may be an announcement on the release of the hostages within 24 hours, CBS reported.

Rajai, in remarks broadcast by Iranian television, said the 80-year-old Islamic leader agreed to the idea of Algeria offering guarantees.

"We informed the imam (Khomeini) of the latest U.S. view on the hostages and also the proposal of the Algerian government which guaranteed to solve the crisis between Iran and the United States, as an intermediary," Rajai said. "The imam allowed us to assume the undertaking by the Algerian government in this connection."

Tehran Radio announced that Behzad Nabavi, the head of Iran's hostage commission, would hold a news conference Wednesday, indicating Iran was ready to disclose its answer to the latest U.S. response to the hostage demands, delivered to Tehran Saturday.

Iranian sources, reached by telephone from London, said Rajai told Khomeini during a meeting Tuesday that Algeria, which looks after Iranian interests in the United States, had offered guarantees that would help solve the crisis.

Without any mention of Algerian guarantees, however, a ranking member of Iran's ruling fundamentalist party said earlier that the latest U.S. reply to Iran's demands "are not acceptable" and warned the captives might be tried as spies.

Dr. Hassan Ayat, leader of the ruling party in Iran, asserted that Iran would not lessen its demands but said that he believed a deal could be struck with the United States after Ronald Reagan became president.

Gray charged

Prosecutor-elect arraigned on pot possession

TWIN FALLS — Thomas Gray, 29, Twin Falls County prosecutor-elect was arraigned in 5th District Magistrate Court Tuesday on a charge of illegal drug possession.

Gray, now chief deputy prosecutor, was charged with a misdemeanor, illegal possession of a controlled substance, marijuana.

"I do intend to plead not guilty," Gray told the Times-News following his arraignment. He declined to comment further on the charge or his immediate plans until he has retained an attorney.

The complaint against Gray was signed by Twin Falls city police Tuesday afternoon and Gray was immediately arraigned in Magistrate Court here.

Appearing before Magistrate Russell Shaud of Jerome, Gray asked to delay entering his plea to the charge until he could retain an attorney. Shaud was called in on the case when the three Twin Falls magistrates, Mike Redman, Mel Edwards and Charles Brumbach all asked to be disqualified from it.

Shaud released Gray on his own recognizance, saying he believed Gray was sufficiently established in the community to justify such action.

Shaud indicated he would hear Gray's plea either Friday or early next week and advised Gray to retain an attorney.

Early in the brief court session, Gray asked Shaud if media representatives could be barred from the courtroom. Shaud said he could not bar the media from the hearing since such hearings are, by law, open to the public.

Police Chief Tim Qualls said the marijuana charge stemmed from an earlier speeding citation. City police stopped Gray last Friday in a routine radar speed check. He was alleged to have been driving 52 miles per hour in a 35 mile an hour zone.

Officers said while making the arrest on the speeding charge, they observed a small portion of a cigarette fall from the attorney's pocket.

The item was tested and charges filed against Gray Tuesday after tests were completed and a report received at the police department. Qualls said Gray was arrested at the Twin Falls police station after being requested to appear.

Gray won the Republican nomination last fall, defeating other candidates Mike Walz, public defender, and James Meservy, who also serves as a deputy prosecutor.

He was elected unopposed in the Nov. 4 general election to succeed Jeff Stoker who did not seek re-election.

Gray, due to be sworn in next week, will be the first full time prosecutor in Twin Falls county. His predecessors have all served on a part-time basis which allows them to conduct a private practice on their own time.

Stoker, who appointed Gray deputy prosecutor in January, 1979, said he would reserve any comment on the charges until later.

"It is too early to comment. I don't know all of the circumstances and I don't think anyone does at this point. You are innocent until proven guilty and this case should be handled just like any other," Stoker said.

Backers say plenty of tenants available

Subsidized housing project will proceed despite study

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Backers of a proposed 60-unit subsidized housing development for senior citizens say they will pursue the project despite a city housing study which recommends against building it.

Opponents of the project, including many local apartment owners and managers, have contended the additional 60 units of subidized housing could severely disrupt the local housing market. Vacancy rates within the city are now placed at 16 percent.

Backers of the project maintain they can fill the complex, which they say provides a service not available through private rentals. Moreover, the backers dispute the validity of the city report, saying their project would house elderly persons living outside the city limits.

Finally, supporters of the project say they have invested more than two years and $20,000 in the project, all of which would be lost if federal financing for the project is withheld.

The report, released Monday, is a revised housing assistance plan. The 1978 version of that document was used by Christian Homes of Idaho Inc. through the National Benevolent Association of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) to obtain federal financing of the project.

Christian Church Homes has tentatively received a $1.7 million low-interest, long-term loan and a $228,000 annual rent subsidy from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development on the basis of that 1978 report which called for 60 additional units of senior housing.

HUD officials said Tuesday they could not comment on the city report until they review it. But those officials previously have said they may be legally obligated to finance the project on the basis of the 1978 plan.

The City Council took no action on the report Monday, but is expected to submit the new report to HUD officials within the month.

The new report, prepared by Community Development Director LaMar Orton, recommends against constructing new units and instead urges Christian Homes and HUD to use the funds to rehabilitate existing units for senior housing.

But Northwestern NBA Services executive director Donald Jarman of Portland said the new report will have no effect on his organization's plans to proceed with construction.

"We're not in the rehabilitation business," he said. "If someone wants to go after 60 units of rehabilitation, that's all right. Ours is new construction. We're going on the basis of what was given to us."

Jarman noted HUD prohibits his organization from preparing a waiting list of potential tenants until the last three months of construction. But the organization is certain a need for the project exists, based on information furnished by local churches, he said.

Jarman said his organization was approached by Idaho church members to build a development in the state.

"I've got the indication from our own denomination who said two or

Confirmation hearings begin

Weinberger calls for larger Navy, more firepower, delay in resuming SALT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary-designate Caspar Weinberger gave a preview of a tough U.S. defense posture at his confirmation hearing Tuesday, calling for more American firepower and a stall on arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union.

"I am in complete agreement that it is essential we improve the readiness of the forces we now have," Weinberger said. "Simultaneously, we have to improve the strategic balance between ourselves and the Soviet Union. A gap has been opened and it has to be closed."

He said U.S. forces "needed more firepower" and listed an increase in weapons strength as "a very urgent priority for the nation."

The 63-year-old California businessman underwent three hours of questioning before a friendly Senate Armed Services Committee. Chairman Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, made it clear Weinberger was assured of approval for his second Cabinet post. He was head of the old Department of Health, Education and Welfare under Richard Nixon.

Weinberger sharply criticized President Carter as being "extraordinarily clumsy and ill-advised" for not properly talking to U.S. allies before pledging to defend the Persian Gulf.

Weinberger said Carter gave the impression the United States "would go it alone if necessary."

"I do not believe we have the strength now to ensure keeping that commitment," he said. "We will need a military presence there if the countries invite us."

Weinberger said he would examine possible pay raises for military forces, work to increase the size of the Navy and underlined a need "to continue to strengthen our intelligence capacity." He said the Reagan administration will forestall a peacetime draft so long as enough volunteers signed up for the armed forces.

Weinberger said the United States should not renew Strategic Arms Limitations Talks with the Soviet Union "from a position of weakness," adding he believes a more favorable agreement can be reached.

He said in reply to a question he foresaw "substantial increases" in the proposed $196.4 billion defense budget for fiscal 1982. He said he will examine it next month.

The Carter administration dropped efforts to get Senate ratification of the SALT II treaty after the Russians invaded Afghanistan in December 1979.

"We should try to get a vastly better agreement than SALT II," Weinberger said. He said he was not certain when the negotiations should begin but said the United States first should examine all options available to it.

"We should first put our own house in order...and it would take a good six months to formulate" a position on SALT, Weinberger told the committee. "We should not enter such negotiations lightly ... or without being prepared."

Weinberger ... favored nearly doubling the size of the Navy to 600 warships because control of the seas is "still vital to our security." He said missile deployment must be strengthened.

Block

Food key to foreign policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary-designate John Block said Tuesday there is no contradiction between his advocacy of food as a foreign policy instrument and his opposition to the embargo of grain to Soviet Union.

At a confirmation hearing before a friendly Senate Agriculture Committee, Block reiterated U.S. agricultural exports are a "valuable instrument of peace" so long as the United States is regarded around the world as a reliable supplier.

When Block's nomination by President-elect Ronald Reagan was announced, he said food is a weapon for peace. Later he backtracked, saying food is an instrument for peace and that an embargo of agricultural products should be a last resort only under extreme circumstances, he said.

It should cover all exports to a nation, he said, not just the portion of grain shipments and high-technology items that President Carter embargoed a year ago after Russian troops invaded Afghanistan.

He added all the embargoes of U.S. agricultural products over the past few years have been mistakes.

Schweiker

Welfare reform top issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Schweiker, nominated to head the Department of Health and Human Services, said Tuesday welfare reform and the rocky future of the Social Security system would have top priorities under the new administration.

The former Republican senator from Pennsylvania appeared before a panel of his former colleagues at a Senate confirmation hearing that is expected to give him swift approval for the Cabinet post.

Under questioning from Finance Committee Democrats, Schweiker backed Reagan's campaign theme of giving responsibility for welfare to the states and agreed states should have greater flexibility in deciding how to spend such funds. He also backed allowing states to require recipients take part in work programs.

Schweiker emphasized the proposals do not include Social Security benefit programs or Medicaid — traditionally considered part of the welfare bureaucracy — as programs that would be returned to the states.

Schweiker would not give details of Reagan's plans to shore up the Social Security system.

Baldridge

Must deregulate business

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Connecticut cowboy Malcolm Baldrige said Tuesday his blend of business experience and political acumen would make him a good commerce secretary and he immediately called for "top to bottom" deregulation of industry.

President-elect Ronald Reagan's choice to head the Hydra-headed department faced only friendly questioning from the Senate Commerce Committee, which is expected to confirm him unanimously by a telephone poll before the Jan. 20 inauguration.

The 58-year-old Baldrige, head of the Connecticut-based, international conglomerate Scovill, Inc. said he would be the businessman's voice in the Cabinet.

Baldrige, who leads another life as an expert rodeo calf-roper, said he favors changes in the law forbidding American corporations to bribe foreign officials. He said that while the law is fine in theory, it is so confusing and expensive to monitor that a "small manufacturer gives up before he gets into the chute" and cannot compete overseas.

Regan

4 years to balance budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury secretary-designate Donald T. Regan said Tuesday budget deficits are the main cause of inflation, but it may take the new administration until its fourth year in office to balance the budget.

Describing himself as "a capitalist by nature," the 62-year-old stockbroker said that, given the proper tax incentives, American business will take actions to solve this country's major economic problems.

Regan said the nation's economic problems are causes for "alarm" but not "panic." Therefore he will not recommend the new president declare a state of economic emergency as budget director-designate David Stockman once suggested.

"We must have a sense of urgency — not a sense of emergency," Regan said.

Regan said Reagan will quickly present Congress and the nation a long-term economic program designed to stimulate savings, investment and economic growth and to reduce inflation and interest rates.

The "centerpiece" of that plan will be the Kemp-Roth tax plan.

Republican leaders criticize governor's budget proposals

BOISE (UPI) — Republican legislative leaders blitzed Gov. John Evans after he delivered his annual budget message Monday night, but some of them sprinkled praise on a few of his recommendations.

Two top House Republicans, Speaker Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, and Appropriations Committee Chairwoman Kathleen Gurnsey, R-Boise, commended Evans for striving for a balanced budget and proposing some ways to cut state spending.

But they both rapped him on several points, and Evans underwent severe criticism from Senate President Pro Tem Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, and Senate Finance Committee Chairman David Little, R-Emmett.

Olmstead lauded Evans for striving to hammer out a balanced budget proposal by recommending elimination of whole programs rather than across-the-board reductions. But he ripped the chief executive for the small amout of cuts he suggested, saying, "In terms of price tags, the cutting he proposes doesn't really cut a very wide swath."

The speaker also criticized Evans for proposing expansion of the state narcotics investigation staff. He said that contingent was large enough already. Olmstead also said it appeared most of Evans' program cuts were equalled by the amount of program expansions he was suggesting.

"I admire him," Mrs. Gurnsey said. "He gave some very specific programs that should be cut out, and it's neat that he gave some very thoughtful ways to increase our revenue."

She praised Evans for proposing quarterly reporting of income tax, substantial penalties for taxpayers who write bad checks and increased income-tax auditing.

However, Mrs. Gurnsey questioned Evans for recommending program expansion during this time of revenue shortages.

As to Evans' projection of $438.2 million in revenue for fiscal year 1982, she said, "That's very optimistic — that's not going to happen."

She also criticized the Democratic governor for failing to recommend sharp cuts in education and health and welfare budgets, the two largest spenders in state government.

"You have to realize he's not a realist. He's a very optimistic man. He's saying its better to continue to fund programs you have than cut them out and find out the next year you don't have money for them."

Budge said Evans didn't go far enough in scaling down his state payroll recommendation from 9.5 percent.

"I would think that even 6 percent is going to be optimistic for state employees," Budge said. "They'll be very lucky to hold the status quo."

The Senate leader also flayed Evans for proposing a raid into the Water Pollution Control Account to pay state disaster bills and help balance the budget.

Budge said Evans was proposing an optimistic budget and hoping the economy would recover to generate enough revenue. "That's what got us into trouble this year and it would have been a great deal worse if we would have listened to him more closely."

"There's just no way we're going to work our way out without biting the bullet," Little said in reference to Evans' request for an overall 17 percent hike in state funding.

"With the economy in trouble and people looking for jobs, state employees are real fortunate to have the jobs in these kind of times. They should be asked to sacrifice also."

three times, look, we have the need. We have the potential," he said.

On top of that, Jarman cited figures showing the nationwide trend of a growing number of citizens over 65 years of age, most of whom will require financial assistance for adequate housing. Unless Idaho and the Magic Valley become a "ghost town," it will experience that trend as well, he said.

"I think there is a need in Idaho," he said, adding once the local chruches approached NBA, the organization began to look for a site in Idaho.

Twin Falls was selected as the site for the development since HUD designated the city as being acceptable on the basis of its 1978 Housing Assistance Plan, he said.

Jarman said his organization subsequently approached city officials as early as 1977 concerning the project.

"At that step, the city should have stopped us, but that wasn't said to us," he said, adding the project received official approval from the city. "Your people have known for two years ..., and they said here's our HAP. This was the HAP and we kept working on that basis."

Jarman said he has been skeptical of the HUD reliance on local housing assistance plans, saying such documents are open to local political influences.

"Sometimes the HAP is not a good figure to use. I personally thing the HAP is a political football," he said, adding other communities have revised such reports in order to justify larger numbers of subsidized housing units to HUD.

HUD officials are due to issue a conditional approval of the project by the end of the month and to authorize funding of the project by June. Unless officials at NBA or HUD determine otherwise, construction could begin this summer.

"Until somebody says flat out to me, stop, we move ahead. Nobody has said stop to me, really. Those who can tell me to stop have not told me to stop," Jarman said.

Shooting

Nevada law enforcemnt authorities however said two men had definitely been shot.

Idaho Fish and Game spokesman Hugh Wilson said the reported shooting occurred Monday afternoon. However, in an official statement to the press he also said the report "was unconfirmed as far as we are concerned."

Wilson said state police, fish and game personnel and authorities in two Nevada Counties, Humboldt and Elko, were joining the investigation.

It would be the first time the department has lost an officer to violence in enforcing the state fish and game laws. Two have been killed in the line of duty, one in an auto accident and another in an airplane crash.

Two months ago a woman threatened a Fish and Game officer with a gun in the Lewiston area. And a few years ago another enforcement officer was badly beaten after uncovering two hunters in violation of statutes. The intervention of a Bureau of Land Management official, who happened to be passing by and saw the beating, was credited with saving that officer's life.

"The trouble with working out in the field is that it no longer is a matter of some hunters in minor violations of the law. You never know who or what you'll run into out there (in the field) anymore," the Time-News source said.

"Anyone you run into could be wanted on a felony some place and he won't run the risk of being discovered on that count for a simple fish and game misdemeanor."

Around the state department personnel had little to say about the Owyhee County incident. Most expressed concern that the story evidently been inadvertently "leaked" from the governor's office before a more complete investigation to ascertain some facts in the tragedy and notify nearest of kin could be completed.

By reason of temporary insanity

Chapman pleads innocent

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mark David Chapman, a former Beatle fan accused of killing John Lennon in a street ambush, pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to murder charges Tuesday, but his attorney said he was mentally competent to stand trial.

Chapman, 25, wearing a wrinkled green raincoat, appeared pale and expressionless as he sat in a heavily guarded courtroom.

Marks said he had "no doubt" about Chapman's fitness to stand trial, but added: "That's a very different question from the issue of what state of mind he was in at the time he killed John Lennon."

Both Chapman and Marks have been the target of death threats. Friends and associates of Marks told UPI the attorney — though refusing police protection — has changed his residence repeatedly, removed his name from the directory in his office building and taken an unlisted phone number.

Marks would not comment on the security precautions, but friends said he has described his life as "a madhouse" since he took the case and has been receiving "threats — some rational and some irrational."

Chapman, a Georgia-born former Honolulu security guard, pleaded innocent in state Supreme Court to second degree murder charges. He is accused of shooting Lennon four times as the rock idol walked to his Manhattan home in the posh Dakota apartments Dec. 8.

A charge of first degree murder, which carries a death penalty, has not been used in state cases since New York's death penalty law was declared unconstitutional.

Marks said Chapman, a former mental patient with a history of suicide attempts, was able to participate in his own defense and understand the trial proceedings.

Chapman has been held under tight security at a hospital in Rikers Island prison, undergoing psychiatric examination. Marks said his client had lost about 10 pounds since his incarceration, but refused to discuss Chapman's emotional state.

All visitors to the courtroom floor where Chapman made his appearance were frisked and sent through metal detectors as a security precaution.

Justice Herbert Altman ordered Chapman returned to court Feb. 23. At that time, Altman said, he expected to fix a trial date. Marks said later he did not expect trial proceedings to actually begin until about May.

Marks got court permission Monday to hire two psychiatrists and a psychologist to examine Chapman for the defense.

Ford boosts sticker prices

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. boosted 1981 sticker prices an average of $85 for passenger cars Tuesday, following the General Motors Corp. lead that was renounced earlier in the day by Chrysler Corp.

Chrysler declined to hike prices again, but said cost pressures probably would force increases in the future.

GM for the past two years has followed a policy of increasing prices every quarter, and usually the rest of the domestic industry has followed suit.

Ford said it was maintaining or reducing prices on some small and mid-sized car lines, but prices on passenger cars ordered after Tuesday would jump an average of $85, or about 1 percent.

The No. 2 automaker said its lowest-priced Escort four-door liftgate will fall in price by $266 and a new three-door Lynx model will be introduced at $5,199 suggested retail — $404 less than the previous lowest-priced model.

The company will maintain current prices on its Escort three-door model and on newly redesigned Granada and Mercury Cougar models.

American Motors Corp. has not yet said whether it will boost prices again in the wake of GM's action.

Chrysler currently is engaged in substantial price-cutting through a rebate program tied to the prime interest rate, and the rebates are credited with boosting Chrysler sales at a critical period for the struggling company.

"Our rebate program is working very well, with both sales and penetration up substantially over previous periods," said John B. Naughton, Chrysler's executive sales vice president. "It is clear that customers appreciate a good bargain.

"In that spirit, we will continue to maintain our present pricing structure as long as we can."

In its third price hike on 1981 cars, GM raised sticker prices on most models an average of $149 or 1.5 percent last week. It exempted its popular X cars from the price hike and reduced the basic sticker of the hot-selling Chevette subcompact by $100.

Chrysler currently is offering 7 percent off the sticker price of cred it-bought cars in a rebate program keyed to the prime interest rate. Since the prime has begun to decline, the rebate amount presumably will decline as well.

The No. 3 automaker did not say how long it plans to hold the line on prices. Its rebate program expires Jan. 20.

When the program was announced, Chrysler Chairman Lee A. Iacocca invited other auto companies to join in cutting prices to help hard-pressed consumers. Ford is offering cash subsidies to help offset high interest rates, but only Chrysler is rebating a part of the sticker price to customers.

Chrysler said that, like other automakers, it is under persistent cost pressure "which must be recognized at some point."

"Chrysler has taken a position of price leadership, and we intend to maintain it," Naughton said.

Dealers and many auto industry analysts have blamed high prices, along with rising interest rates, for the most recent downturn in domestic car sales.

Expert says children resentful

Alienated blacks are a 'timebomb'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Millions of alienated black children, unable to benefit from the black liberation movement and full of resentment, are a "timebomb that poses a threat to us all," the president of the Children's Defense Fund said Tuesday in a report.

Marion Wright Edelman, who grew up black in the segregated south, said the poor black kids lack the opportunities most white kids take for granted.

"Their alienation and resentment is a built-in timebomb that poses a threat to us all," she said in a report described as "disturbing" and containing an agenda for action.

The report from the child advocacy agency in Washington, D.C., said:

"Every black American child has more than a fair chance of being born into poverty (four times more likely than white kids), of dying during the first year of life (two times more likely), of having no access to regular health care (two times more likely)."

"We must find specific remedies to alleviate the education, health, child welfare, child care, and housing problems daily facing millions of black children and families," Mrs. Edelman said.

"Equally important, we must change the negative attitudes and expectations that so many who teach and come into contact with black children hold and transmit to them."

Mrs. Edelman said the tide of opportunity for blacks that "swelled during the 1960s was neither long enough nor strong enough to enable most black children to gain the opportunites most white children take for granted."

"Millions of black children were left behind when the progress begun in the 1960s leveled off or declined in the 1970s," she said.

Mrs. Edelman said many reading "this grim portrait of inequality" will ask — "Why bother? These children are losers. Let's write them off..."

"There are compelling reasons not to write these children off," she said.

"To continue to deny opportunity to millions of children in our midst is to erode the fundamental premises upon which our society rests.

"Young people unfairly treated will not respect or value these premises as adults. Their alienation and resentment is a build-in time bomb..."

State and federal judges battle over school desegregation order

BUCKEYE, La. (UPI) — With a vow to continue his fight for states' rights, a state judge who traces his roots to Gen. Robert E. Lee Tuesday personally enforced his order that three white girls be allowed to attend an all-white school in defiance of a federal desegregation plan.

"When he quits, that's when it's all over," state Judge Richard Lee said of his entangled legal quarrel with federal Judge Nauman Scott.

Lee and a rural constable accompanied the girls to Buckeye High School Tuesday morning, taking the place of two state troopers who were the girls' escorts a day earlier. The constable was forced to leave the school at midday Tuesday when a federal marshal arrived with an order from Scott.

"It (Scott's action) is an illegal, unconstitutional invasion into the jurisdiction of my court," Lee said. "This I do not like."

Lee refused to say whether he would again accompany the girls to school Wednesday.

"The girls have my permission to attend Buckeye High School if they so desire," he said.

Under Scott's desegregation plan for Rapides Parish public schools, the girls — seventh-grader Ramona Carbo, 12, and eighth-graders Michelle Laborde and Lynda McNeal, both 13 — are to attend a mostly black school 25 miles away.

Lee, 44, is becoming something of a hero in the rural central Louisiana area — just a few miles north of Forest Hill, where in September parents opened a squatters' school for 200 in defiance of Scott's desegregation and busing order.

Lee arrived at the school with Constable Norman Paul Jr. He went into the office of Buckeye Principal Charles Waites, gave him a new state court order to admit the girls and threatened him with arrest if he refused to enroll them.

Lee cited "my oath of office" to uphold the Louisiana Constitution in explaining his decision to fight Scott in the complex and increasingly bitter legal case.

Ina Laborde, mother of Michelle, said her family also was unwilling to quit.

"When I talked to Michelle last night, she said, 'I just don't know what to do,'" Mrs. Laborde said. "I said, 'Honey, when you're ready to quit fighting, we'll quit fighting too.'

"If she's willing to continue the fight for freedom of choice, her dad and I are going to be right there with her. We're going to be like the Titanic — we're going to go down with the ship."

Lee has insisted all along that the fight has nothing to do with race.

He transferred custody of the three girls from their parents to friends living in the Buckeye attendance zone and later made them wards of the court in attempt to combat Scott's orders sending them to the new school district.

He insisted that was his prerogative as a state judge to do so and said Scott had no say in the matter. Scott clearly disagreed.

Scott has issued order after order demanding that the girls stop attending Buckeye and instead attend mostly black Jones Street Junior High, in nearby Alexandria. As Lee ignored the orders, Scott expanded them, made them stricter and threatened fines of $500 a day against anyone who disobeyed.

After Scott's order Monday, a court official Tuesday indicated the judge was getting increasingly annoyed with Lee's obstinance and his decisions to ignore Scott's orders.

Principal Waites, caught in the middle of the battle, said he was hopeful the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals would act quickly to bring peace to his school, which is being swamped by reporters and disrupted by national attention.

"I thought this would have ended several weeks ago, but it keeps dragging on," Waites said. "Maybe Lee is trying to see if Scott will have him arrested. He may be trying to go that far."

Blacks face trial over riot death

MIAMI (UPI) — Four blacks went on trial Tuesday for shooting and stomping to death three whites during race riots triggered in Miami last May by the acquittal of four white policemen in the beating death of a black businessman.

Attorneys for Lawrence C. Capers, 24, his brother Leonard, 20, and Patrick Moore and Samuel Lightsey Jr., both 16, asked Dade County Circuit Judge Mario Goderich to suppress statements made by the defendants to police before their arrest.

All are charged with first-degree murder in the deaths of Benny Higdon, 21, his brother-in-law Robert Owens, 15, and Owens' friend Charles Barreca, also 15.

The three were the first victims of the racial riots that erupted May 17.

A total of 18 persons died during the three days of rioting.

Judge Goderich heard testimony from Jose Fleites, a Dade County Public Safety Department homicide detective and one of the arresting officers, who described how Moore and Lightsey were questioned by police.

Fleites said both youths described their part in the killing of Higdon, Owens and Barreca in oral statements given to him on May 27, 10 days after the fatal beatings.

Higdon and his two companions were returning from a day of fishing when their car skidded on an oil that was dumped on the street by rioters at a Liberty City intersection.

It was the Republicans who unleashed Social Security

By OTIS PIKE
© Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — As President-elect Reagan prepares to cut back on non-defense spending, a case history might be useful: how those fiscally irresponsible Democrats who have been in control of Congress for the last 25 years have ruined Social Security.

Everyone knows that the Social Security system of retirement and disability benefits for workers was established back in 1935 in the dark ages of Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal. By 1950 it was costing $784 million per year; in 1964, $16 billion; and this year it originally was budgeted for $133 billion. It appears to be out of control. Those irresponsible liberal Democrats did it, right?

Until 1972, there was no such thing as automatic cost-of-living increases for the retired beneficiaries of the Social Security system. Benefits were set by Congress — and, from time to time, raised by Congress. The best time to raise benefits was just before an election. There was no increase in Social Security benefits in 1971, an odd-numbered year.

A very strange group, however, had been pushing for some time to make increases in Social Security benefits automatic. It was called the Republican Party.

On April 9, 1967, the Republican Coordinating Committee issued a policy statement calling for an increase in Social Security benefits and making future increases automatic. When the cost of living went up, payments would go up.

This was no bunch of fringe Republican crazies. The chairman of the Republican National Committee presided. Members included former President Eisenhower, recent presidential candidates, governors and the House and Senate leadership — all of whom could smell a great political issue 3,000 miles away.

They said the benefits should be increased "without the addition of further burdens on the weekly paychecks of American workers." They didn't mean it, but that's what they said.

The Republican national platform for 1968 said this: "We will strengthen the Social Security system and provide automatic cost-of-living adjustments under Social Security and the Railroad Retirement Act." On that platform Richard M. Nixon got elected.

In 1969, President Nixon submitted his proposal on Social Security benefits, saying they should be increased automatically every time the cost of living went up three points. Leading Democrats tried to oppose it. Senate Finance Committee Chairman Russell B. Long of Louisiana was opposed. House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur Mills of Arkansas was opposed. But it was popular, and opposing it was like holding back the tide.

In 1970, a Republican representative, Jackson Betts of Ohio, offered a little old amendment to a Ways and Means bill increasing Social Security benefits. The amendment said future Social Security benefits would be automatic, tied to the cost of living. The Republicans voted for it 161-5, Democrats voted against it 139-72. It carried.

Long and Mills didn't have enough clout to win, merely to stall. They held the Republicans back in 1970 and 1971. They couldn't find time to pass the bill.

But 1972 was an election year, and the tide could be held back no longer. Nixon was blasting Congress and Democratic presidential nominee Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota didn't look like the greatest thing since sliced bread. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, offered the amendment which made future increases in Social Security benefits automatic. It passed the Senate 80-4 and the House accepted it 302-35 on June 30, 1972. Nixon signed the law the next day.

That is how automatic increases for Social Security retirees became the law of the land. Those automatic increases in benefits are the principal reason the Social Security system remains in trouble. They are now considered one of those uncontrollable expenses in the federal budget.

If President-elect Reagan is serious about controlling government spending, a good place to start is controlling his Republican friends.

Evans takes it to the wire

Bully! for Gov. John Evans.

In delivering his budget proposals Monday, Evans presented a responsible, bite-the-bullet approach to meet the monetary crunch of the times.

But the tone of his "tough choices" assessment brimmed with optimism — for which he should be commended, not criticized.

Given the state of the economy and the budgetary consequences, it would be easy to become pessimistic and even complacent about the future, but Evans shows he is ready to meet the adversities straight up and "take the steps necessary to get us through this rough period."

One of those steps is NOT to raise general fund taxes to meet state agency demands.

Raising taxes would be the easy solution, but it also would be political suicide and would stand virtually no chance of getting through the Republican-dominated Legislature. A tax hike, as we've said before, should be the last straw.

The governor believes Idaho can scrape through fiscal 1982 by a minimum elimination of whole programs, reducing others and proposed pay raises and by taking other maneuvers that will increase revenue.

The keystone of this approach is his proposal to borrow $6 million from the $23 million Water Pollution Control fund. This is a prudent request, provided the money is paid back. While critics might term the action a "raid" on the water fund, it would be penny-wise-and-pound-foolish not to use this readily-available cash.

Evans believes another $14 million can be raised by changing tax collection methods. The change would affect those taxpayers who do not have state taxes deducted from their paychecks. While farmers in particular might balk at this concept, it is a sensible proposal.

The biggest "if" in Evans' balanced budget is his projection that Idaho's revenue will increase by 15 percent, or $58 million, this year. That might reek of pie-in-the-sky and optimism, but who can come up with a more accurate guesstimate? Obviously, if the money does not materialize Idaho faces another mid-year reduction, but predicting revenue is a risky venture in any business.

While no general tax hike is in the cards, Idahoans still will pay more for certain things.

The governor wants to reduce state subsidies by making the users of services and facilities pay more. His proposals include a day use fee for state parks; raising gasoline and diesel fuel taxes to maintain highways and hiking vehicle licenses and registration fees. Since the opportunity for raising more revenue, outside of a general tax hike, is limited, Evans would have the Legislature exercise those options.

Republican legislative leaders predictably criticized Evans on many budget proposal fronts but it is evident the governor also surprised a few critics with the level of his homework.

The biggest battle may come over salaries for state employees and public school teachers. Lawmakers will face considerable pressure to give more at the expense of other programs. But since education consumes 70 percent of the state budget proposed by the governor, there is not much leeway to slash other human services without doing irreparable harm.

Is the governor's program reasonable? Yes.

Is is workable? Yes.

Does it stand much of a chance of making it through the Legislature? History tells us No, but lawmakers have few other options available.

The Legislature can wheedle here, slice there, but to effect a major turnabout in what Evans proposes will mean taking an even tougher stance. The question is: How much more can the bullet be bitten?

Use money on the shelf

BOISE — Gov. John Evans is proposing to balance the state's budget in the next year without any general tax increase, and without eliminating important state services.

One of the ways he proposes to do that is to take $6.4 million in idle money now in the water pollution control account, and use it for the general fund. There is more than $21 million in the water pollution fund and there is $8 million that is uncommitted for sewer and treatment projects.

Sen. James Risch, the Senate Republican majority leader, immediately attacked the Evans' proposal. There is a "knee jerk" tendency among some of the GOP leaders to disagree with anything Evans proposes.

In recent months other Republican legislators have proposed closing universities, eliminating kindergartens and other drastic cuts in state services. Some have said the alternative is to raise the sales tax.

Governor Evans is not proposing to raise the sales tax and not proposing to eliminate kindergartens or universities.

Under ordinary circumstances, it would be better not to dip into the water pollution control fund. However, the circumstances are not ordinary — as reflected in such suggestions as eliminating kindergarten or universities.

Idaho's economy has been badly hurt by the efforts of the Federal Reserve Board to control the money supply. High interest rates have been devastating to home building, to lumber mills, and to many businesses. They have also hurt farmers.

During the past two years, $26 million was taken from the state's general fund to replace local property taxes. Because of the enormous "tax shift" supported by the Republican majority in the Legislature, most of that $26 million has gone to cut taxes on non-residential property owners, mostly utilities.

The loss of that $26 million from the general fund, and the depressed economy, have left the state in a financial bind. Given a healthy economy, the state would be in fairly good shape.

Borrowing the pollution-control money to get past this year makes good sense. It does not put the state in a position of "overspending" by establishing a level of spending that would spell trouble in the future.

Given even modest improvement in the economy, with the help of lower interest rates, the revenue coming to the state would more than make up that $6.4 million.

Evans also proposes to replace the $6.4 million in the water pollution control fund. It could be replaced in the future as the economy improves.

What if the governor's proposals rejected in favor of cutting $6.4 million deeper into the budget than he proposes?

The difference is likely to be made up by property taxpayers, who pay more to support the schools, or by students paying bigger fees, or in losses to such programs as kindergartens. It is better to use money sitting on the shelf than to take steps that result, indirectly, in tax and fee increases.

Story on Reye's was informative

Editor, Times-News:

Thank you for your article on Reye's Syndrome written by Bruce Hammond in Sunday's, Jan. 4, issue. Having never heard of it, it was very informative and was of particular interest to us.

Our seven-year-old grandson living in northern Idaho was stricken with it the day before Christmas. He was recovering from chicken pox. He is alive only because of his parents and the local doctor being alert. The diagnosis was confirmed by a Lewiston doctor and he recovered in the intensive care unit at St. Joseph.

He was vomiting, listless, disoriented and blind. It was frightening to hear about. It must have been a nightmare for the parents.

When he recovered four days later, all I could think about is why don't they warn parents of this, how would they ever know unless the word is spread.

Thanks to you again. And to the American Legion if this awareness program really does cover the United States this month.

Environmental battles still remain for new Congress

By JOHN F. BARTON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Some of the new Republicans believe the less done about the environment the better, but the 97th Congress will have to tackle some unsolved environmental issues that won't go away: nuclear waste, acid rain, and clean air.

The outcome of these and other important environmental issues will be determined as lawmakers struggle to shape a new balance between the nation's energy and environmental needs.

That struggle already is shaping up as one of the major political battles for the new Congress.

Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, the senior Republican on the influential House Energy and Power subcommittee, said he expects the Reagan administration "to pursue a viable nuclear waste management program.

"The time is near when the U.S. must decide how it will permanently dispose of high level nuclear waste and also store or reprocess spent fuel," Brown said.

Brown also expects Reagan "to join forces with those of us who recognize that we must strike a balance between our energy and environmental needs, as the Congress considers the 10-year-old Clean Air Act which comes up for renewal next year.

"This will likely result in more flexible air pollution standards" that would benefit states with large coal reserves, Brown said. But environmentalists, who have bipartisan clout, plan to fight any relaxation of such standards.

How to permanently bury lethal nuclear waste has been a serious problem for this nation since the nuclear age dawned 35 years ago. To date, Congress has been unable to find an answer.

Some progress occurred when the last Congress passed legislation dealing with the disposal of low-level radioactive wastes produced by medical labs, research facilities, and commercial reactors.

Congress gave states control of disposal of such waste within their borders, and authorized regional agreements allowing participating states to refuse to bury low-level wastes from any non-participating state after 1986.

A solution to the major problem of permanently burying high-level nuclear waste died in a fight between Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., who insisted military nuclear waste be exempted from all regulation, and Reps. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., and John Dingell, D-Mich., who demanded that military waste be included.

Brown said lawmakers favoring a bigger dose of free market economics to solve the nation's energy [illegible] have lacked one very key element, the [illegible] the White House."

"With the inauguration of Ronald Reagan as president, Brown said, "Those of us who have been pushing for greater reliance upon the free market, rather than more inept government control and intervention, will have that missing element in our corner of the arena."

Brown said he and Reagan share the belief "that our nation's future energy security depends upon [illegible] of petroleum and natural gas to spur [illegible] and encourage increased domestic exploration and production."

Lawyer says insane POWs weren't freed

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (UPI) — The defense claimed Tuesday the North Vietnamese did not free accused Marine turncoat Robert R. Garwood as part of a 1973 mass release of American POWs because they excluded prisoners who had gone insane or lost limbs.

Garwood's lawyers in his court-martial on charges of desertion and collaboration with the enemy during nearly 14 years in Vietnam asked Col. R.E. Switzer, the presiding judge, to bring retired Lt. Gen. John P. Flynn, a former POW, to Camp Lejeune.

The defense claims Garwood was driven insane by Viet Cong torture. It contends Flynn, who lives in Windermere, Fla., will testify about other mentally ill Americans who were not returned with the other POWs.

"He will testify, that to his knowledge, the North Vietnamese never released any prisoners who were either insane or missing limbs," the defense said in its written request for Flynn.

"He will testify he knows of three American prisoners who were driven insane by torture and who were not ever repatriated and believes they are most likely dead."

Chief defense attorney John C. Lowe said the issue of other Americans being left behind must be settled.

"Very few returning POWs had any mental illness," he said. "Those who were profoundly mentally ill were not returned and that is why Bobby Garwood was not returned in 1973."

Switzer did not rule on the request for Flynn.

Maj. Warner Hellmer, the chief prosecutor, spent much of Tuesday attacking the credibility of a $100-an-hour psychiatrist who claims Garwood was driven insane by torture.

Hellmer said Dr. Robert Rollins of Raleigh has created a theory about Garwood's mental condition that is not supported by the facts.

Hellmer made sure the five Marine Corps officers sitting on the court-martial jury knew how much the defense is paying Rollins and that Rollins has written a magazine article "How to be an expert witness."

Despite often heated questioning from Hellmer, Rollins continued to maintain Garwood, 34, unconsciously became a "white Vietnamese."

He said torture, combined with an unstable personality rooted in an unhappy childhood, triggered a mental illness known as "atypical dissociative reaction" in which a prisoner accepts the ideals and beliefs of his captors.

Former POWs have accused Garwood of guarding and interrogating American prisoners, carrying a weapon and living as a comrade among the Viet Cong in a series of jungle POW camps during the mid and late 1960s.

Garwood's attorneys do not contest the allegations but are presenting a psychiatric defense based on the contention a person should not be held criminally responsible for his actions if he is subjected to prolonged isolation, indoctrination and torture.

Rollins stuck to his argument that other POWs' description of Garwood was a classic textbook case of mental illness. He said Garwood was made more vulnerable to the pressures of captivity because of a deprived childhood in which his parents suffered from alcohol problems and his mother abandoned him at age 4.

Inmates ask 'injections' be outlawed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two men facing execution by lethal injection have asked the government to outlaw as "barbaric" the drugs to be used for that purpose.

Such a ruling could delay the execution of scores of prisoners in the four states that have approved injections as an alternative to the more traditional means of capital punishment.

Larry Chaney, being held at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary, and Doyle Skillern, on death row at the Ellis unit of the the Texas Department of Corrections, made the request in a petition filed with the Department of Health and Human Services.

The two inmates asked HHS Secretary Patricia Harris to ban the use of lethal injections as being contrary to laws enforced by the Food and Drug Administration.

"There is strong evidence to believe that their use may actually result in agonizingly slow and painful deaths that are far more barbaric than those caused by the more traditional means of execution," the petition says.

James Liebman, a lawyer with the NAACP's Legal Defense Fund, which is involved in the petition, said: "The FDA has the responsibility to approve the use of any drug. Until the drug is approved for a specific use, it is illegal to market, sell, or distribute it.

"We are simply asking the FDA to regulate these drugs like they regulate any other drugs."

No one has been executed by the method in the United States. It has been approved by Texas, Oklahoma, Idaho and New Mexico, states which house 166 of the 691 people currently under death sentence in the country, according to the petition.

"The day is fast approaching ... when the final appeals of prisoners on death row in Texas, Oklahoma, Idaho or New Mexico will be exhausted," the petition said.

'60s radical sentenced for protests

CHICAGO (UPI) — Radical activist Cathlyn Platt Wilkerson was sentenced Tuesday to nine months in prison on charges stemming from the 1969 "Days of Rage" protest in Chicago.

The sentence is to be served concurrently with a prison term of up to three years pending in New York City.

Miss Wilkerson, 30, surrendered to Cook County authorities Dec. 19 after 10 years in hiding. She pleaded guilty to charges of aggravated battery, obstruction of justice and bail-jumping.

She had surfaced in New York in July and pleaded guilty to reckless homicide charges stemming from a 1970 explosion in her father's Greenwich Village townhouse that killed three of her comrades in the Weather Underground.

The Chicago charges resulted from her part in an Oct. 9, 1969, rock-throwing rampage by the "Weather Underground," a splinter group from the Students for a Democratic Society.

A Cook County grand jury indicted 11 other SDS members — all women — in the protest, including Bernardine R. Dohrn, 38, who also surrendered recently. Five are still at large.

Before sentencing Tuesday, Criminal Court Judge Fred G. Suria Jr. told Miss Wilkerson her protest against the Vietnam War was illegal and that the American political system was not at fault.

"Government does not commit most wrongs. They are committed by you and (me)," he said.

After sentencing, Miss Wilkerson told Suria: "I take issue with your view of the world. Literally hundreds of black and Latinos were killed without trial in the last 10 years, let alone in the last 100 years."

Miss Wilkerson's attorney, Jeffrey H. Haas, charged there was a conspiracy by the government during the late 1960s to exterminate such groups as the SDS and the Black Panthers.

Her New York attorney, Elizabeth Fink, asked the court to show leniency in sentencing Miss Wilkerson because, "the U.S. was in a period of turmoil, and millions were objecting to a war that was taking place."

Suria told Miss Wilkerson: "The real problem is the rhetoric that went with your conduct." He said although free speech is a constitutionally guaranteed right, one must "respect those with whose views you disagree."

Assistant State's Attorney Mary O'Connor had asked that Miss Wilkerson be sentenced to at least one year in prison. She said Miss Wilkerson remained a fugitive for 10 years and had been a "well planned activist whose goal was to disrupt society and plan and plot anarchy."

Few workers are covered by pensions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Only 23 percent of workers in private industry are currently entitled to any pension benefits, and fewer than half of all workers, public or private, come under retirement income plans, a presidential commission reported Tuesday.

A random survey of 6,100 U.S. households indicated 48 percent of all public and private sector workers have some type of pension, profit-sharing or other retirement plan at their current jobs, while only 42 percent of those in non-government jobs have pension coverage.

Of the total private sector work force, only 23 percent are currently vested or eligible for a pension, said the report by the President's Commission on Pension Policy.

The findings, said commission Executive Director Thomas C. Woodruff, have led the panel to give "serious consideration to a proposal which would require that every employer maintain a minimum pension plan for their workers."

Among other findings:

•Fifty-four percent of all males and 32 percent of all female workers are covered by private pensions through their current employer.

•Private pension plan coverage for workers over age 25 is 47 percent.

•Overall, private pension plan coverage and eligibility increase with age and income, with 28 percent of all non-covered workers earning between $10,000 and $25,000 a year.

•Of those not covered by a pension plan, 91 percent are not union members.

The report said forecasting models used by the commission and the Labor Department "indicate that the proportion of the labor force covered and vested in employee pension plans is not expected to increase significantly under current policies."

"Preliminary forecasting results predict an increase of less than 3 percentage points in the proportion of the labor force covered by employee pension plans and a growth of only 2 percentage points in the proportion of the labor force vested in employee pension plans by the year 1990," it said.

The commission explained the near stagnation of growth on the fact that industries with growing pension coverage — manufacturing and transportation — will have a declining share of the labor force, while those with low pension coverage — trade and services — are predicted to grow.

Trapped dog lives on water

AVELLINO, Italy (UPI) — Firefighters Tuesday rescued a dog trapped under the rubble of a building for 44 days since the Nov. 23 earthquake. The animal survived by drinking from a puddle of water.

A 19-year-old Avellino girl heard noises coming from the ruins where her home once stood and notified rescue workers.

The firefighters removed several wood beams that had fallen on an underground passageway and found her dog Reno, a griffon, trapped in a corner.

The firefighters said the dog was emaciated but survived by drinking from a puddle formed by water that seeped into the passageway.

Old probe reopened by police

LEEDS, England (UPI) — Detectives Tuesday re-opened their investigation into another of the 13 murders attributed to the Yorkshire Ripper.

They indicated they were building their case against a black-bearded truck driver charged with the last of the killings.

While a 1,000-strong crowd outside the courtroom shouted, "Hang him" and "Kill the bastard," Peter W. Sutcliffe, 35, was charged in an 8-minute hearing Monday with the bludgeon-knife murder of student Jaqueline Hill, 20, on Nov. 17, 1980.

Miss Hill was the 13th victim in a grisly five-year chain of murders of women which police attributed to a man named after Jack the Ripper, who killed six prostitutes in London during the 1880s.

Detectives re-opened their investigation of to the 1975 killing of prostitute Joan Harrison, the second Ripper victim, apparently seeking to build up evidence from the six-year-old crime against Sutcliffe.

Detective Chief Supt. Wilf Brook of the neighboring Lancashire police force said he had "interviewed Sutcliffe" about the Harrison murder and "although he is not being completely ruled out, the enquiries are continuing."

Sutcliffe was held under special guard in solitary confinement — for his own safety — in Armley jail overlooking the grimy industrial city of Leeds, police sources said.

Police kept Sutcliffe's brunette Czech-born wife, Sonia, 28, a pottery teacher, in protective custody Tuesday. The Sutcliffes' duplex house in Bradford was guarded by police.

British law clamped a publicity lid on the case, as usual in a country which imposes rigid limits on reporting to protect the rights of the accused. Police officially refused to say even where Sutcliffe was being held.

Member of Parliament Tom McNally demanded that Home Secretary William Whitelaw investigate the press and television coverage the case already has received. "British justice is at stake," McNally said.

Holdup man turns 'chicken'

GREAT BEND, Kan. (UPI) — A would-be robber displaying a bulge in his jacket pocket at the counter of a fast-food restaurant changed his mind at the last minute and turned "chicken."

Employees of the restaurant — which specializes in fried chicken — told police they talked the man out of the attempted robbery late Monday.

The man — who claimed he had a gun — wound up ordering a chicken dinner, paid for it and walked away, employees said.

Police said Tuesday they have a description of the suspect and have begun an investigation.

13th president's birthday marked

Fillmore fans have big day

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The head of the Student Committee for the Glorification of Millard Fillmore Tuesday called for a "Milliard moment of silent meditation" to honor the 181st birthday of the 13th president today.

Jeff Amdur, a foreign language teacher at Arundel High School in Annapolis, made the call "for the glory that was Millard and the grandeur that was Fillmore."

He said he would be joined in the obscure celebration by other Fillmore buffs around the area who remember Fillmore's political career, especially his success in the election of 1856 when Maryland was the only state carried by Fillmore's "Know-Nothing" Party.

And Amdur said the Fillmorites would remember 1972 when a gaggle of supporters held a presidential nominating convention in Baltimore's Union Square across the street from the home of H.L. Mencken.

During the convention, Fillmore's name was entered in nomination along with Robert E. Lee Moxley, a park derelict. Admur said he found it fitting to nominate a man "who is dead along with a running mate who was never seen again."

Others planned to join the silent celebration, including Ken Sokolow, a state government office worker, who said "every generation of serious students of history discover Fillmore in their own way."

"Fillmore was a humble man, a self-made man, and a man who understood the value of importing bat guano into the U.S. long before the energy crisis," he said.

Fillmore was elected vice president in 1848 and became president when President Zachary Taylor died of typhus in 1850.

He ran on the American Party ticket in 1856, the first year the Republican Party appeared in the race for president. The American Party was known as the Know-Nothing Party because when people asked where the party was holding its meetings, members would say "I know nothing."

Escape works but no booty

LONDON (UPI) — The holdup plan looked perfect on paper.

The four bandits assembled six vehicles — three for the holdup and the other three parked along their escape route so they could switch cars and confuse the pursuers, if any.

The idea was to block and rob an armored car carrying a huge sum in cash along a quiet London street.

The security truck came along on schedule and one bandit in a truck stopped short in front of it causing a collision, as planned.

Another bandit in a second vehicle slammed into the back of the armored vehicle. Still another crashed a car into its side.

Then, waving pistols and shotguns, the bandits rushed to open the armroed car doors.

No dice. The three collisions had buckled the doors of the armored truck jamming them so tightly they couldn't be pried open.

Outside of the fact they had to leave empty-handed, one aspect of the plan was a success. The gang used its three parked escape cars just as though it had millions instead of nothing.

More Polish strikes feared

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Workers in 17 factories staged an hour-long warning strike Tuesday and threatened a full strike by week's end in support of workers and farmers staging sit-ins in government offices near the Soviet border.

"A small group of people" at each of the 17 plants in the Przemysl area of southeastern Poland stopped work for an hour while other workers wore armbands as a sign of support, said a spokesman for the independent trade union Solidarity. He stressed that production did not stop.

The job action supported two sit-ins — one by farmers occupying local government offices in Ustrzyki Dolne and the other by workers occupying the former premises of the now defunct state-run union in nearby Rzeszow — the spokesman said. Both towns are located near the Soviet frontier in southeastern Poland.

The 65 farmers have occupied the local government office since last week, pressing for official recognition of the Rural Solidarity union which represents private farmers, among other demands. The supreme court recently postponed action on a lower court decision denying the farmers the right to unionize.

The farmers are also protesting police harassment of Rural Solidarity activists and the rehabilitation of one of their number who was fined and demanding construction of a new church and investigation of economic abuses by local authorities.

The protesting workers in Rzeszow are demanding an equal share in the property of the old union when it is distributed, a Solidarity spokesman said.

A government commission headed by Mieczyslaw Jakubowski, director of the office of the Council of Ministers, arrived in Ustrzyki Dolne in mid-afternoon and talks with the farmers began immediately, a spokesman for the local Solidarity chapter said.

There was no immediate word on Solidarity's plans to expand the protest with delegates from factories joining the farmers in the occupation or, if no solution were reached by Saturday, to call for a "real strike." The union had also threatened further protest action among selected factories.

Iran opens offensive

BAGHDAD, Iraq (UPI) — President Saddam Hussein, his army battling the strongest Iranian counteroffensive of the war, Tuesday offered to withdraw his troops from all conquered territory in exchange for Tehran's return of Arab lands.

There was little likelihood Iran, apparently convinced it can oust Iraq from its territory, would accept Hussein's offer to end the 107-day Persian Gulf war.

Iran has not occupied any Iraqi territory in the war, and what Hussein apparently wanted returned to Iraq was the the Shatt al-Arab waterway at the head of the Persian Gulf, Baghdad's original demand in the war.

Tehran's military communiques said Iranian counter-attacking ground and air forces were driving Iraqi troops out of the Iranian oil fields and back across the border.

Iraq denied the claim but both sides reported hundreds dead in heavy fighting.

Although there was no independent verification of the fighting, communiques from both sides showed Iran has mounted its strongest counteroffensive of the war.

Saddam said Iraq would exchange territories that had been occupied during the war if Iran would return land it held "to their Arab owners," apparently referring to the waterway, controlled by Iraq until the mid-1970s.

"In such a way a just and honorable solution will be achieved to both parties," Hussein said.

"Both sides will then (after exchanging lands) devote their efforts on development, progress and preserving the security and stability in the region," the agency quoted him as saying.

Iran's state-run radio said the Iranian counter-offensive, now in its second day, continued along a 300-mile front with Iraq suffering heavy losses of life and weaponry.

Iraq said the Iranian claims were "wishful thinking" and that its entrenched soldiers had repelled several disorganized Iranian attacks.

The Iranian offensive was ordered by President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, who badly needs a military victory to counter mounting criticism of his conduct of the war by his ruling clerical rivals.

Government could collapse Sunday

Begin fails to end ministerial feud

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin failed Tuesday to bridge the gap between two feuding cabinet ministers in a dispute that could topple the government.

Begin met with Finance Minister Yigal Hurvitz and Education Minister Zevulun Hammer in an effort to work out a compromise wage package for teachers that would meet the stringent pay guidelines set by Hurvitz. The nation's 60,000 teachers, who earn an average of $110 a week, have yet to accept the offer.

"Everybody remained entrenched in their positions," a Finance Ministry spokesman said after the session. Hurvitz refused to commit himself to any wage concessions and Hammer insisted on honoring a pledge made to the teachers for higher wages.

Hurvitz had a letter of resignation on file with Begin but agreed to freeze it pending Sunday's cabinet meeting when the issue is to be decided. Hammer also served notice he would leave the cabinet unless he has his way.

"If we don't find a solution in the cabinet meeting, the government could fall," Hurvitz told reporters. "The possibility exists, but we want to make a great effort to see that it doesn't happen."

The teachers' dispute coincided with allegations of financial irregularities in the Religious Affairs and Interior ministries, two departments controlled by Hammer's National Religious Party.

The scandal so far was confined to the NRP.

The resignation of either Hurvitz or Hammer was likely to weaken Begin's 3 ½ year-old coalition government to the point where he could be forced to resign and move up the national elections, now scheduled for Nov. 17.

NRP leaders have said Hammer's resignation could prompt his party, with 12 votes in the 120-member Knesset, to leave the coalition. It was the NRP that toppled Yitzhak Rabin's government in December 1976.

Hurvitz has three votes and a defection by his Rafi faction could reduce the coalition's parliamentary base to 57. Unless he resigns, Begin would then be in charge of a minority government.

Hurvitz adamantly refuses to grant increases to the teachers for fear other government employees would demand similar hikes, further exacerbating the nation's economic troubles, led by a 135 percent a year inflation.

The teachers staged a one-hour work stoppage Monday and held protest meetings to warn the government that they would go out on an extended strike unless granted immediate wage increases of some 17 percent and up to 50 percent over the long run.

Kissinger urges strong U.S. army in Mideast

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, calling for a more visible U.S. military presence in the Middle East to counter a Soviet buildup, flew to Saudi Arabia Tuesday but received a low-key welcome.

No senior Saudi official was at the airport and Kissinger's presence in the desert kingdom was completely ignored by the state-run news media. The only confirmation of his arrival from Israel came in a telephone call by UPI to his wife Nancy at the Riyadh Marriot Hotel, where the couple is staying.

Asked about their schedule, Mrs. Kissinger would only say they arrived in the afternoon and that her husband was "out of the hotel."

There was no indication which Saudi officials Kissinger would meet. His stay was expected to last two days, after which he was scheduled to fly to Oman and later to Morocco.

The visit by the controversial U.S. diplomat comes at a very sensitive time for Saudi Arabia which has been accused by radical Arab states, particularly Libya, of paving the way for an American intervention in the Persian Gulf area by employing sophisticated U.S. AWACs planes.

The radar planes were flown in shortly after the outbreak of the Iran-Iraq war in September and the Saudi government stressed they were necessary to "strengthen the kingdom's defenses."

Kissinger is on a private two-week Middle East swing, but said he will report the outcome of his talks to the incoming Ronald Reagan administration.

His tour has already taken him to Somalia, Egypt and Israel.

Shortly before departing Tel Aviv, Kissinger told a press conference that the Middle East conflict was "a more complex problem ... than I had originally thought."

As to Moscow's increased Middle East presence, Kissinger said, "We cannot refrain from doing what is necessary because we are mesmerized by the illusion that the Soviets can do anything they want and we can do nothing."

He said a new "strategic doctrine" was needed to deal with crisis in the region.

El Salvador extends state of siege law

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — The ruling junta extended its state of siege for another 30 days Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the bodies of two murdered American labor activists began their final journey home.

At the same time officials reported 2,000 government troops backed by helicopter gunships and planes intensified a search and destroy mission against leftist guerrillas holed up around the Guazapa Volcano, 20 miles northeast of the capital.

The body of U.S. labor activist Michael Hammer, 42, slain by presumed rightist extremists, left the capital for his hometown of Potomac, Md., a U.S. Embassy spokesman said.

The body of Mark Pearlman, 37, was to leave later in the day for Seattle, the spokesmen said.

Both Americans, sent by the AFL-CIO to advise Salvadoran agrarian reform officials, were shot to death presumably by right-wing extremists in a hotel restaurant Saturday night. Rodolfo Viera, head of the Agrarian Reform Institute, was also slain.

El Salvador's government promised an "exhaustive investigation" into the killings but critics of the ruling junta scoffed at the probe and cited the failure of the Salvadorans to find the killers of four American women missionaries murdered in December.

The civilian-military junta extended for another 30 days the state of siege imposed March 6, 1980 to quell political violence that claimed about 10,000 lives last year.

The siege, a modified form of martial law lifting most constitutional rights, was extended because "the causes that motivated the suspension of citizens' guarantees still prevail," the government said.

A military command spokesman said the army operation against leftist strongholds on the Guazapa Volcano was launched because "we are tired of suffering (guerrilla) attacks and not responding as we should."

"Today they (the guerrillas) will have our answer, he said. "We have launched everything we have to get them out of the volcano and we are going to do it."

Military officials warned residents to evacuate the area and the Salvadoran Red Cross set up eight emergency posts to care for civilians wounded in battle. Residents reported heavy fighting late Monday and Tuesday.

The government operation, launched Monday, is a counter-offensive designed to undermine a long-promised "general offensive" by leftist guerrillas struggling to topple the U.S.-backed ruling junta.

El Salvador's leftist guerrilla groups have vowed their general offensive to topple the U.S.-backed ruling junta will be staged before president-elect Ronald Reagan takes office Jan. 20.

Horoscope

Leos can gain help later by assisting others who are in need at this time

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day brings some delays or obstacles in the path of your goals, so make sure you are working at the right pace and with the correct information.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Being patient at your work brings fine results now. Use more care in handling routines. Show that you have wisdom.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You may not get the financial results you want in the morning but later they materialize, so be calm.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You arise feeling frustrated, but by knowing the reason for this, you soon get back on the beam and accomplish much.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If you try to relax you can soon relieve pressure that seems intolerable. Avoid a troublemaker.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to help others now who need assistance and later they lend you a helping hand. Avoid temptation to spend too much money.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) Know what is expected of you by higher-ups and gain their respect. Don't take any risks when dealing with outsiders.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have good ideas that should be carried through later in the day for best results. Make this a worthwhile day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get an early start to handle important business matters so you can engage in social activities later in the day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Wait until the afternoon before dealing with a difficult associate for best results. Plan for the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good day to take on difficult work that becomes easier for you now. Take treatments to improve your appearance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have a heavy work load, so get an early start and you can plow right through it easily. Relax at home tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Wishes of some family members may not meet with your approval, but come to a happy compromise. Be logical.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have the capability of solving difficult problems, so give the best education you can and success is bound to follow. Give as fine an ethical training as possible. Don't neglect sports early in life.

What's what

Aspirin overdoses fatal in surprising numbers

Q. Can you overdose on aspirin?

A. Definitely. There are twice as many aspirin OD deaths as fatalities from sedative and barbiturate overdoses combined, in fact, according to VA hospital doctors.

Among every 100 persons aged 18 or over, 72 are married, 12 are widowed or divorced, and 16 are single.

Q. "Ask your Language man where we got the expression 'chock full'."

A. He says it comes from the Afrikaans word "tjokvol" meaning crowded. Not many Afrikaans words wind up in the English language. Trek is another.

"What's the most important fish, the herring or the codfish?" asks a client. Today it's said to be the herring. But the National Geographic Society has claimed the codfish probably has influenced the course of history more than any other sea critter.

CANDY

Q. "You know the little squiggles you see on the tops of chocolate-covered candies? I've been told their designs are supposed to signify what sort of candy is inside. Is that right?

A. It is. They're called strings. They're fairly standard in the industry: O, for instance, means orange cream. A fancy L means lemon. A fancy C and a square or oblong shape means caramel. Another sort of C means coconut; so on.

Q. "Wasn't it Fred Allen who said 'Art is long and time is fleeting, except when you're at a PTA meeting!'"

A. No, that was Leonard Levinson. Fred Allen said, "A cranberry is a cherry with an acid condition."

TARANTULA

Q. "Can a tarantula be trained?"

A. So I'm told. And you can buy a tarantula for $10. Then teach it to run up one sleeve, romp across your shoulders, and run down the other sleeve. Playful little beast. Yes, it's evidently true, you can teach a tarantula to love you, although not deeply.

On the average twins arrive earlier than single babies, about 24 days earlier.

Q. "What does an actress do when she's supposed to cry in a scene but can't?"

A. Breaks an ammonia capsule under her nose. Hidden in a handkerchief maybe.

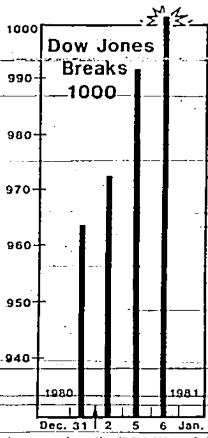
Dow pierces 1,000 barrier

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
United Press International



NEW YORK — The Dow Jones industrial average, with a late price explosion, rose 12.03 points to 1,004.69 Tuesday.

It hit its highest level in more than four years during a wild stock market session.

Trading was heavy.

The closely watched Dow's finish was the highest since it closed at 1,013.13 on Sept. 27, 1976, just before Jimmy Carter beat Jerry Ford for the presidency. It last stopped above 1,000 on Nov. 20, 1980, when it hit 1,000.17 at the climax of a rally sparked by Ronald Reagan's election victory.

The Dow average, up 10 points at midday following Monday's 19.88-point surge, had been ahead only 3 points with about 30 minutes of trading to go when the rally began.

Analysts could find no specific reason for the late buying outburst.

"You need seatbelts to follow this market," Newton Zinder, E.F. Hutton senior vice president, said. The Dow has climbed 40 points in the past five sessions.

Analysts noted the average, which first closed above 1,000 in November, 1972, historically has run into trouble trying to pierce this level because big investors normally place sell orders at that area in advance.

The New York Stock Exchange index added 0.06 to 79.14 and the price of an average share increased 3 cents. Advances topped declines, 1,026-656, among the 1,950 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST.

The Big Board volume of 67,500,000 shares, up from the 58,710,000 traded Monday, was the ninth heaviest in NYSE history.

Chemical Bank sparked Tuesday's early rally by lowering its prime lending rate to 19½ percent from 20½ percent. Marine Midland Bank went to 20 percent from 20½ percent. Morgan Guaranty Trust Monday dropped to 20 from 21½ percent.

These reductions followed the Federal Reserve's reports that the nation's basic money supply plunged $2.5 billion in the latest statistical week and that loan demand in New York dropped sharply.

Donald Regan, the Treasury secretary-designate, encouraged some traders by saying the Roth-Kemp tax-cut proposal was the centerpiece of the next president's economic plans.

Malcolm Baldridge, the next Commerce head, added fuel to the surge by urging the deregulation of business "from top to bottom," including the automobile industry.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter at 4 p.m. totaled 75,243,668 shares, up from the 64,822,152 traded Monday.

The American Stock Exchange index lost 3.68 to 354.59 and the price of a share decreased 21 cents. The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ index of OTC issues lost 0.10 to 204.07.

Among the Dow average leaders, DuPont rose 2¼ to 44⅝. The company bought a Glenolden, Pa., research laboratory from Atlantic Richfield to expand its life sciences research activities.

Among the other DJIA issues, Procter & Gamble rose 2½ to 71½, Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing 2¼ to 63⅛, Union Carbide 2¼ to 54½, Eastman Kodak 2 to 75¾, United Technologies 1½ to 65, General Motors 1⅛ to 49, American Brands 1 to 80¼ and American Can 1 to 32.

IBM, another Dow component, was the second most active NYSE-listed issue at 4 p.m., gaining 1⅛ to 71⅛ with a block trade of 200,000 shares at 70½. The company Monday cut certain electric typewriter prices.

At 4 p.m. K mart was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up ⅝ to 19⅝ after blocks of 107,600 shares and 181,300 shares, both at 19⅛, and 100,000 shares at 19½.

Sony Corp. was third on the NYSE-listed active issue, off ½ to 15¾ in trading that included a blocks of 112,300 shares at 16¼ and 100,000 shares at 16.

Oils came under profit taking pressure because they were last year's market leaders. Among the oils in the Dow average, California Standard lost 1⅞ to 99, Texaco ⅞ to 47½ and Exxon 1⅛ to 80½.

Among the other oils and related issues, Atlantic Richfield lost 1 to 64⅞, Mobil 1¼ to 79⅝, Superior 1⅛ to 192, Conoco 1½ to 63½, Marathon 1½ to 68, Occidental Petroleum ¾ to 33¾ and Cities Service 1 to 46½.

Arrow Electronics plunged 3⅞ to 34½. The company said it will have to take a charge of $1 to $1.50 a share on its 1980 earnings because death benefit payments and other items arising out of a December fire that killed several of the company's employees at Harrison, N.Y.

Thiokol Corp. jumped 1⅞ to 35. Thiokol says it has sold its education and training division to a group of company executives in a move that completed the firm's divestiture program.

On the Amex, advances topped declines 387-292 among the 816 issues traded at 4 p.m. Volume at that time totaled 6,800,000 shares, compared with 6,950,000 traded Monday.

Gulf Oil of Canada was the most active Amex issue, off ¾ to 20¼. Houston Oil & Minerals followed, off 1½ to 51⅝. Ranger Oil was third, off ⅝ to 18¼.

Major bank joins prime rate cutters

NEW YORK (UPI) — The prime lending rate slid another notch Tuesday as a major New York bank lowered its benchmark rate to 19½ percent.

However, one economist said the action was based "more in anticipation than on current reality."

Chemical Bank, the nation's sixth largest, made the move to 19½ percent from 20½ percent just one day after fifth-largest Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. dropped its rate 1½ points to 20 percent. Most large banks remain at the 20½ percent level but smaller institutions have posted lower rates.

"The banks were squeezed when interest rates were on the way up and are lagging on the way down trying to get back 'lost income,' " William E. Sullivan, senior vice president at Bank of New York, said.

David M. Jones, economist for Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., said banks that are "leapfrogging on the prime are moving in anticipation of future Federal Reserve easing rather than on the basis of current reality."

He said the shortest-term bank costs were "very firm" this week, with the federal funds trading in the 20 percent range.

"Banks are responding to developments that have already occurred and once they have adjusted we think you'll see the prime stabilize at a still high level," Sullivan said.

He was referring to the recent drop in some short-term market rates and to the fall-off in business loan demand at some, but by no means all, banks.

Indeed three banks accounted for 75 percent of the $1.2 billion drop in loan demand at major New York city banks the week ending Dec. 24, according to Federal Reserve figures. Nationally loan demand dropped $1.545 billion in the latest reporting week and commercial paper fell $1.35 billion.

"This reflects the bite of high interest rates on business borrowing and a weakening in the economy," Jones said.

Petroleum stocks stay above normal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. petroleum stocks remained comfortably above the seasonal norm in the week ending Dec. 26, the Energy Department reported Tuesday.

The agency, in its Weekly Petroleum Status Report, said combined stocks of crude oil and refined products slipped slightly to 1.3 billion barrels on Dec. 26.

The figure was still well above levels in December, 1979, when petroleum stocks first crept above average after dipping perilously low in the gasoline crisis earlier that year.

Crude oil stocks on Dec. 26 stood at 371.4 million barrels, up 9 percent from year-ago levels. Primary stocks of gasoline were up 10.6 percent at 259.1 million barrels.

But stocks of distillate were down 10.7 percent to 205.6 million barrels and residual fuel oil stocks of 91.1 million were off 4 percent.

Gross imports of crude oil and refined products averaged 6.5 million barrels a day in the four weeks ending Dec. 26 — 23.4 percent below the year-ago average. The crude component of gross imports was down 20.7 percent at 5 million barrels a day.

For the year-to-date, gross daily crude and product imports have averaged 6.7 million barrels — down 19.7 percent.

U.S. refineries operated at 75 percent of capacity on 13.6 million barrels a day of crude oil in the reporting week.

Refinery production averaged 6.8 million barrels a day for gasoline, 3.1 million barrels a day for middle distillate and 2 million barrels a day for residual fuel in the four weeks ending Dec. 26.

During the same four weeks, the supply rate — regarded as a rough gauge of consumption — was 18.5 million barrels a day for refined petroleum products, down 1.5 percent from the comparable 1979 level.

GM sales skid 16%

First report on 1980 shows 4.11 million cars sold; more figures due today

By JAMES V. HIGGINS
United Press International

DETROIT — General Motors Corp. said Tuesday its 1980 sales finished 16 percent below 1979.

GM was the first domestic automaker to close its books on what likely will stand as the industry's worst year since 1961.

The No. 1 automaker said it sold 4,116,482 cars last year compared with 4,887,281 in 1979.

Worse, it finished in a slump. GM sales for the final 10-day selling period of December dropped to 78,257, down 29.5 percent from the same period of 1979.

Final sales reports from the rest of the domestic industry and from foreign carmakers are due today.

But through Dec. 20, automakers had sold 6,432,924 U.S.-built cars. The 1980 total probably will end up around 6.6 million.

That's well below the 7,050,120 U.S. cars sold in the depths of the last recession in 1975 and the lowest since the industry delivered 5,556,000 in 1961.

GM had a few bright spots.

Its 1980 sales drop was less than the anticipated 30 percent at Ford Motor Co. and 28 percent at Chrysler Corp. The Buick Division actually managed to outsell 1979, 720,368 to 714,508, and the Chevrolet Citation and Chevette were the Nos. 1 and 2 best-selling cars in the U.S. last year.

Imports are expected to have another banner year. With sales of 2,220,477 through November, foreign carmakers are certain to break the 1979 U.S. sales record of 2,283,783 cars and likely will capture a market share around 26 percent.

It has long been plain that 1980 will rank as the poorest financial performance in the industry's history.

Through the first nine months of 1980 the four domestic automakers reported losses of $3.7 billion. Financial reports for the fourth quarter of 1980 are several weeks away.

The industry's short-term outlook is gloomy.

Mid-December domestic car sales dropped 22 percent from the same period in 1979, with only Chrysler managing to beat the previous year's total. That amounted to a seasonally adjusted annual selling rate of about 6.1 million cars, slower than the early autumn selling pace.

How IRS audit process works

© Field Enterprises, Inc.
First of three parts

As the 1981 calendar year opens, the 1980 income tax reporting agony begins.

You're in the tiny minority of all Americans if you will not approach this annual task in deep (if unspoken) fear that your tax return this year will be plucked by the mysterious Internal Revenue Service for audit.

Most of you do believe it is only a matter of time before your return will be flagged for exam. Most of you shrink from the IRS' eye more than from any other U.S. agency's.

Yet, the fact is that the IRS audits only a picayune 2 percent of the 80 million to 90 million returns filed each year. And the audits it does make are far more specifically targeted and less likely to hit you, an average taxpayer, than is commonly believed.

How does the IRS audit process operate?

(1) Above all, the IRS relies on a highly secret and complicated computer system. The computers, located in Martinsburg, W.Va., and at other regional centers, screen all tax returns.

They are programmed to pull those returns which differ markedly from returns filed by "normal" taxpayers, reports Matthew Bender & Co., a large tax and legal publisher, in an extraordinary account of how the audit procedure goes in its "1981 Dictionary of 1040 Deductions." Bender bases its statements on IRS memos, audit manuals and interviews with leading tax practitioners.

(2) The IRS determines these taxpayer "norms" by auditing some 40,000 to 50,000 taxpayers every few years. These special audits are designed not just to collect revenue but also to document the accuracy of every item of information on the return.

Individuals who have suffered through these audits report that they must produce their birth certificates, driver's licenses and even their children (to prove they really exist).

(3) On the basis of these exhaustive surveys and other data, the IRS knows what a typical taxpayer should report on his or her return given his or her income, profession, geographic location, etc.

It also is able to determine where and how taxpayers are likely to cheat. Returns which stray widely from the "norms" are, after further examination, slated for auditing.

(4) Independent of this computerized screening process, the IRS focuses on certain problem areas which it feels taxpayers abuse. One of these programs, for instance, is aimed at detecting individuals who file more than a single request for a tax refund.

Others are directed at high-level drug dealers, "professionals" engaged in "abusive" tax shelters and those who understate the amount of wages, interest and dividends they receive.

(5) Both of these major audit selection tools are extremely discriminating. Thus, your tax return probably will not be audited if it's not pulled by the computer or is not the object of a target IRS program.

(6) There is an exception to this general rule, though. In addition to its two major systems for identifying auditworthy returns, the IRS reviews a small percentage of returns manually.

Amended or delinquent returns are almost always screened, my associate, Brooke Shearer, was told. So, too, are returns identified by informants, including angry spouses who believe their mates are cheating in some form and want to "get even."

What's more, your return will be reviewed if you're related to an enterprise or person being audited. As an illustration, you're a target if you are an employee of a corporation under audit or a partner involved in a tax shelter under review.

Then there are the common — almost stupidly unforgivable — errors which virtually invite a Treasury agent to flag your return. Among them:

Failure to attach all Forms W-2;

Incomplete or incorrect Social Security number;

Failure to check correct blocks indicating your filing status;

Incorrect checking of blocks for personal exemptions or listing of dependents;

Incomplete listing of itemized deductions;

Listing income, deduction or tax items on wrong line;

Failure to sign return.

The above list merely signals the obvious errors, to remind you to avoid them (so easy if you keep your head) in order to turn an IRS agent's head away from your return.

Bond sale path clear for big power project

FILLMORE, Utah (UPI) — The Millard County Commission has cleared the way for a consortium of Utah and California cities to sell bonds to finance the $8 billion Intermountain Power Project.

The commission Monday approved a conditional use permit allowing IPP sponsors to construct a 3,000-megawatt coal-fired power plant near Lynndyl, Utah. The panel also okayed a formula outlining the mechanism IPP will use to provide impact aid to the county.

Commissioners voted 2-0 to approve the permit following a public hearing at Millard High School. Commissioner Lee Maxfield, who earlier sold some water rights to IPP, abstained.

Approval of the permit was made conditional on completion of an agreement between the commission and IPP on the impact aid.

The agreement, which could require IPP to pay millions of dollars to the county and its towns and school district to finance such items as expanded government services and new schools, was okayed later in the day.

County Attorney Eldon Eliason said the document does not list specific dollar amounts the consortium must pay. The agreement simply establishes the formula which will be used to determine the size of aid payments.

Meyer sells wholesale food division

PORTLAND (UPI) — Sale of Fred Meyer Inc.'s wholesale grocery division to West Coast Grocery of Tacoma, Wash., was completed Sunday following approval by federal regulatory agencies.

Sale price was not announced.

The action means West Coast Grocery will take over operations of the Fred Meyer wholesale grocery division, which serves customers in Eastern Washington and Oregon as well as portions of Idaho and Montana.

Grain futures

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat and oats were higher, corn mixed and soybeans substantially higher at the close Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade:

Wheat was up 2¼ to ¾ cents; corn off ½ to up 2½; oats up 2½ to ½; and soybeans up 10¼ to 4½ cents.

Late short covering in soybeans set the pace for the rest of markets and all began to rally. Soybean prices, which had been as much as 10 cents lower, ended the day 10¼ cents higher on the January contract, triggering commission house stops.

All corn contracts except the nearby months closed higher. Corn was under pressure because of low water levels on the Mississippi River which has backed up barge traffic south of Cairo, Ill.

Wheat gained strength from weather reports indicating the need for more snow in winter wheat growing areas of the United States and the Soviet Union in order to protect the seedlings.

Country movement was fairly quiet during the session.

The outside markets were mixed.

Heckmann resigns as Sun Valley mayor

SUN VALLEY — Mayor Richard Heckmann announced his resignation Tuesday, saying he needed more time to devote to business pursuits.

Meanwhile, Fifth District Judge Douglas Kramer let stand an injunction ordering Sun Valley Co. not to obstruct ski events on Dollar Mountain sponsored by Elkhorn Village Inn.

Heckmann is a partner and chief executive officer of the Elkhorn Village Inn.

Heckmann, elected mayor in November 1979, has been the target of a recall effort charging that his extensive business interests in the resort area conflict with his mayoral duties.

However, he predicted last week the petition circulators would not be able to gather enough signatures to force a recall election. And Heckmann said if he resigns it would be because the Elkhorn-Sun Valley dispute evolves into a protracted legal battle.

The mayor told the Ketchum Mountain Express, a weekly newspaper, he had discussed with other city officials whether he should resign if it appeared he would be embroiled in a court fight with Sun Valley Co., the city's largest taxpayer.

Heckmann would not return reporters' telephone calls Tuesday. A secretary said he will explain his decision today.

Judge Kramer granted the temporary injunction sought by Elkhorn after Sun Valley refused to make lift tickets available in Elkhorn. He ordered Sun Valley not to obstruct funraces and clinics sponsored by the Village Inn, to continue operating the Elkhorn lift and to offer lift tickets for sale at Elkhorn.

Tuesday he heard arguments in the case and extended the injuction until a trial can take place. The court docket is presently booked through the month of May, Kramer noted.

Sun Valley Co. owns the Elkhorn chairlift, which is situated on ground leased from Elkhorn Joint Venture. In December, the joint venture also issued a limited license to the Elkhorn Village Inn to sponsor ski races and other special events for guests.

Sun Valley contends it has an exclusive monopoly to operate downhill ski activities at the Elkhorn lift. The Elkhorn Village Inn contends Sun Valley's permit is non-exclusive.

Heckmann told the Mountain Express his resort will offer only events which Sun Valley chooses not to sponsor.

Filer City Council opposes expansion in area of impact

FILER — Filer's area of impact should not go beyond the city limits, the City Council said Tuesday.

Council members, assembled for their regular meeting, unanimously agreed to send that recommendation to the Twin Falls County Commission.

The decision comes on the heels of a December 29 hearing which revealed substantial public opposition to a proposed area of impact. The proposal, offered by the county, called for designation of an impact area extending from one-fourth to one-half mile around present Filer city limits.

City Councilman Robert Fort, who made the motion initiating Tuesday's vote, said last month's hearing revealed residents of the proposed impact area feared early annexation to the city.

Fort also testified at the hearing, stating Filer isn't ready for the responsibility of an impact zone.

Were the impact area established, Filer planning and zoning officials would have had to enforce zoning regulations on all impact area properties under 20 acres.

The final decision on whether the area of impact should exist rests with county commissioners. However, County Zoning Administrator Ed Woods said in December he does not believe the county would impose an impact area if the city doesn't want one.

In a related matter Tuesday, the City Council learned the hearing on the area of impact met legal requirements. Questions about propriety had arisen because the hearing was not attended by a quorum of the council.

Also Tuesday, the council learned George Huddleston will replace Ardean Lang as chairman of the Filer Planning and Zoning Board.

Lang said when he replaced Sue Strobel as chairman, he assumed he would fill the post only until she returned.

Strobel was forced to step down in August when city officials learned she had not lived in Twin Falls County for the required minimum of five years. At the time, she said she would consider accepting a planning and zoning appointment next June when she achieves five years' residency.

But Lang said Tuesday Strobel apparently will not return, and he does not want to hold the chairmanship indefinitely.

Leak temporarily cuts MVMH water supply

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Memorial Hospital's staff was forced to take emergency water measures for about eight hours when the hospital's main water line developed a leak early Tuesday.

A newly installed eight-inch pipe separated at one of its joints, causing the hospital's water system to lose pressure. The overflow partially filled the excavation site for the hospital's new wing.

The leak was repaired about 10:30 a.m.; meanwhile, the hospital staff used bottled water and took conservation measures.

Damage to the excavation site north of the hospital building was described as minimal by Alvin Spencer, MVMH project manager for Okland Construction of Salt Lake City, the hospital's general contractor.

The leak was discovered about 2 a.m. Tuesday when a security guard noticed a growing pool of water in the excavation site.

Apparently the buried steel water line, installed three weeks ago by subcontractor Valley Utilities Inc. of Jerome, had shifted and had separated at one of its compression-fitted joints.

Spencer said the line was "properly installed," but the excavation work came within six feet of it — "a little closer than it should have," noted MVMH administrator William Burns.

The uneven pressure from the weight of the earth around it caused the pipe to move horizontally and one of its joints to separate, MVMH officials explained.

Enough pressure remained in the water system to allow the hospital some running water, but it "progressively got worse," said Elmer Harmon, MVMH director of plant and operations. MVMH staff switched to emergency water use procedures, utilizing bottled water from storage and other sources, he said.

The hospital's water was completely turned off for about an hour when the pipe was uncovered and repaired.

Local draft registration not protested

TWIN FALLS — Eighteen-year-olds in Twin Falls were registering for the military draft this week with no protests in evidence.

Postmaster Lloyd Libert said all 18-year-olds born in 1962 must register this week at their post offices. Those born after 1962 must register within 30 days of their 18th birthday. This can be 30 days before or after the birth date, he said.

Libert said this week will be the heaviest registratioon since a whole year's male births will have to be registered in the week. After that, registration will be spread over the entire year, he said.

Among the 18-year-olds who registered at the Twin Falls Post Office Tuesday was the postmaster's son.

"He came in while I was out to lunch so I didn't handle the registration," Libert said.

Libert said there were protests in Twin Falls last summer during draft registration, but he believes these were from college students who are now away at college.

Libert said draft registrants call at the postal windows, pick up a draft card and then go to the lobby desks to fill it out. An example is posted in the lobby showing how the card is to be completed. The draftee must then return to the window where the clerk verifies his identity and postmarks the card.

The postal clerk mails the card in and the rest is up to selective service and the individual, Libert said.

In other areas around the country, anti-draft protest demonstrations were reported Monday, the first day of the current registration procedure. In larger eastern cities protesters were jailed, some draft registration buildings were damaged by fights between protestors and non-protestors.

Hospital bond sale pending

TWIN FALLS — The decision on when Magic Valley Memorial Hospital's renovation project bonds should go on the market is still pending.

MVMH bond underwriter Boettcher & Co. of Denver will issue a recommendation to the hospital board this week on whether to enter the market next week, said MVMH administrator William Burns.

Burns said the bond market was "looking much better, more solid" this month than last month when the sale schedule for the bonds was scrapped due to a "chaotic" market.

Burns also said Boettcher representatives were contacting large banking concerns about obtaining a line of credit for the hospital, should bond sales be further delayed. This would allow the project to continue as scheduled until the market stabilized.

Sheriff issues warning

Burglars find unlocked doors easy pickings

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls police have issued a warning to homeowners who do not lock their doors.

Of the 16 entries of homes, businesses and automobiles reported in the past three days, Police Chief Tim Qualls said more than half involved unlocked doors, inviting burglaries.

"We have to work on crime prevention and we need the public's cooperation. There are too many burglaries and other crimes in Twin Falls for our department to control other than through a good crime prevention effort. Our department is concentrating on preventing as many of these crimes as we can to lighten the investigation load," Qualls said.

Qualls said a freezer, kept outside on a patio was burglarized and thieves made off with about $500 worth of meat and other food items.

"This is a serious loss to a family budget and the fact the freezer was unlocked made it more than easy for the burglars," Qualls said.

He said some of the burglars would probably break and enter if they found doors locked, but others might forego the more difficult job and move on to another home or car in search of an open door.

Major burglaries reported Tuesday morning at the police department included thefts of tools, cash, jewelry cameras and sound equipment.

Officials at Faulk's Norge Town Laundry, 556 Main Ave. N., reported an estimated $400 in change taken from the rear part of the building sometime after 9 p.m. Jan. 3 and 8:45 a.m. Sunday. Officials said someone apparently entered through the back door while the firm was open for business and found the change.

Sound Co. owner Ron Victor told police he drove by his place of business about 1:20 a.m. Sunday and discovered all of the lights were out. On investigating, he said, he found the switch had been pulled and about $3,500 worth of equipment and tapes taken.

Chris Bates told police someone entered his home at 820 Heyburn Ave. between 9:30 p.m. Jan. 3 and noon Monday. He said the home was broken into through a window and about $2,062 in jewelry, cameras and other valuables taken.

Tool thefts were reported by Clarence Collins, of 241 Walnut St., and Paul Rhinehart of 528 2nd Ave. W. Both reported vehicles were entered and tools and other items taken. Collins said he lost $282 worth of tools from a large tool box while Rhinehart estimated his loss at $375 including tools and a cassette player.

H. O. Baumert told police someone took a pickup truck owned by Magic Music Co. from 453 Russett St. sometime Monday night. He said the vehicle was locked and both sets of keys were accounted for.

New attorney serious about job

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Municipal law shouldn't consistently be labeled a training ground for budding lawyers, according to Twin Falls' new city attorney.

Susan E. Swanberg, named to the city post Monday, said her new position is more than simply a springboard to other opportunities in law.

"I plan to spend about five years at it, and to take the job seriously," said Swanberg, 30, one of five candidates for the city position.

Her responsibilities in the $25,000-a-year job include defending the city in court, serving as prosecutor in city criminal cases and advising the City Council on legal matters. She replaces Charles Brumbach, now a 5th District Court magistrate judge.

A 1978 graduate of the University of Oregon School of Law, Swanberg has worked as a Twin Falls County deputy public defender for the past 15 months. Prior to assuming that position, her experience included a year with a private law firm in Arkansas.

Swanberg said her work as a public defender allowed her to develop "an excellent working relationship" with the Twin Falls Police Department, and she expects to carry that asset into her new job.

Changes she brings about in the city attorney's office will be confined to minor procedural matters, she said.

Swanberg said she anticipates being involved in criminal cases during their early stages. That involvement can decrease the chances of cases being abandoned on grounds that a suspect's constitutional rights weren't upheld, she said.

Eventually, she said, her career probably will center around private practice with opportunities for trial and appeal work.

But the long-term career picture "is so far in the future that it's hard to say" what course she will follow, Swanberg observed.

She said she entered law school after determining her undergraduate psychology degree from the University of Oregon wouldn't lead to a solid job future.

"Law was opening up to women," she said, "and I had a neighbor, an older woman, who was returning to school to study law. I talked to her about opportunities." Swanberg said women constituted one-third of her law school class.

Career barriers have not cropped up because of her sex, she said, explaining she was gratified by the Twin Falls City Council's approach in selecting an attorney.

"The fact that I'm a woman did not (enter) the decision," Swanberg said. "That makes me pleased and proud of the community.

"People in Twin Falls have been quite accepting," she added. "I think that as long as you do a competent job, they'll accept you."

Californian dies in Jerome accident

JEROME (UPI) — An eastbound car drifted off Interstate 84 near the Jerome exit Tuesday morning and crashed into an overpass abutment, killing the sole passenger and critically injuring the driver.

State police identified the fatality victim as Fawn Massey, 21, Westminister, Calif. Severely injured and taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital in Twin Falls was Clay Campbell, 23, Bellevue, Wash.

Officers said it appeared Campbell fell asleep about 6:20 a.m. and the small car drifted off the highway, slamming into the abutment.

Hansen store reports tools, lumber stolen

HANSEN — Goods valued at nearly $3,000 were stolen from Fort Harney Building and Farm Supply during the weekend.

Items taken included new hand tools and lumber, according to proprietor Don Harney. Entry to the building, situated on Highway 50 near the Hansen bridge, was gained by breaking a glass door. Harney estimated damage at $500.

He reported the burglary to the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department Sunday.

Board considers airport zone's fate

TWIN FALLS — The future of the 3,200-acre Twin Falls airport zone goes before the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Board Thursday.

The zone is presently administered under Twin Falls city zoning laws as part of the city's area of impact. City officials want the county to take over zoning jurisdiction of the area and are trying to get that change made as part of an on-going revision of the city's area of impact.

But county officials say they are reluctant to agree to that.

[illegible] recommendation to the county commissioners on the issue, meets at 7:30 p.m. in the county judicial building.

Community Development Director LaMar Orton, who is scheduled to appear before the board, said the city originally took control of the area because officials believed the city was best equipped to contend with complicated federal regulations.

"One of the reasons the county wanted to give it to us is they felt Federal Aviation Administration requirements were going to be so strict that it was going to take an engineer to really properly implement them," Orton said, noting the county does not have an engineering department. "We found that to be the case. So it would appear that the county could handle it."

Another reason the city wants to turn the airport zone over to the county is land under the county's zoning jurisdiction surrounds the area. The county land is zoned agricultural and is placed under the county's 20-acre limitation.

City zoning in that area could potentially allow divisions down to one acre, although city officials say they intend to continue the 20-acre limitation in the airport zone.

County officials note the city administers airport operations and say to revert to county zoning of the area could lead to conflicts.

The feeling was that there could be a conflict of interest. The city provides a sewer service and the city generally provides administration of the airport," said County Commissioner Merl Leonard. "Primarily, we would want to explore that in depth before we make any decision."

Such conflicts could arise in future airport expansion projects, as well as any development of the airport industrial park site. City officials plan to use federal funds to provide sewer and water service to the industrial park.

"That's another area of concern because that's where the city would be providing the services," Leonard said.

Leonard said the commission has set no deadline for making a final decision.

Jerome approves subdivision extension

JEROME — A year extension has been issued to developers of the 70-acre Candlelight Subdivision bordering the southeast corner of Jerome.

The first phase of the project, developing about 23 acres, received approval from both county and city officials last year, but was haulted because Jerome city officials were reluctant to annex the property [illegible] the city could afford the increased costs for police and fire protection.

Although the subdivision plat was approved it was never filed with the county.

"Because of the economic situation and housing market at this time, we feel it's best to hold off for a while before pursuing the subdivision," project engineer Gerald Martens said Tuesday.

Developer Burt Arndt wanted to have the city annex the subdivision to provide various city services. City councilmen agreed to provide services that could be charged for, including water and sewer hookups, but refused to annex because it appeared uncertain if the city could afford the increased costs for police and fire protection.

Consequently, Martens met with city and county officials this week to receive approval of a year extension before filing the plat for construction and sale. Normally a developer has one year to file after a plat is approved.

The Jerome City Council approved the extension Tuesday night. Jerome County Commissioners had given tentative approval for the extended filing [illegible] deadline contingent on city approval since the proposed development lies within the Jerome city impact area.

The proposed Candlelight Subdivision includes small commercial development as well as single-family and duplex housing. However, the first phase of the plan calls only for 70 single-family and duplex units to be constructed on about 23 acres of the proposed 70-acre plat, according to Martens.

"Our feeling is that this proposal is annexable and would offer the city some valuable growth it could benefit from," Martens said. "Time is needed, though, to see how the housing market moves in the next year."

Two Transport Tire officials plead guilty

KANSAS CITY, Kan. — Two officials of a Jerome tire recapping firm have pleaded guilty to making false statements in connection with federal contracts.

Harry Smookler, 60, president of Transport Tire Company, pleaded guilty Dec. 22 in a Kansas City District federal court to making false and fraudulent statements in connection with contracts with the federal General Services Administration.

Clarence Murray, 47, company production foreman, entered a guilty plea on a related charge, according to a spokesman for the GSA's Office of Inspector General in Kansas City.

Charges involved recapped military truck tires sent to Fort Riley, Kan., the spokesman said. Transport Tire Co. had contracted with the GSA to repair and recap tires for various military bases, including Fort Riley.

The charge to which Smookler pleaded guilty is a felony punishable up to five years in prison, $10,000 or both.

U.S. District Judge Earl E. O'Connor ordered a pre-sentence investigation. Sentencing has been set for Feb. 9.

The criminal charges followed an investigation conducted by special agents of Office of Inspector General, the office responsible for detection and prevention of fraud in GSA operations.

GSA last October filed a $2.9 million lawsuit against the Jerome-based company, claiming the company used scrap rubber, returned substandard tires to military installations and billed the government for unnecessary repairs.

The status of the suit was unavailable Tuesday. Smookler referred questions to his attorney, who could not be reached for comment.

Moisture

December precipitation only down slightly from normal

TWIN FALLS — If you thought December was one of the driest on record, National Weather Service reports show it was only slightly below normal in moisture.

William Galkin of the Kimberly office of the National Weather Service, said total precipitation last month amounted to 1.04 inches, compared to 1.14 normal for December.

Most of this fell in the form of rain rather than snow, making it appear most of the month was dry, he said.

Temperature-wise, December was unusually mild, but he said there are milder Decembers on record.

Average temperatures for the month ran 2.3 degrees above normal with the warmest day being Dec. 27 with a 58 degree reading at Kimberly.

Galkin said it broke the old record for that date set in 1917 when the temperature climbed to 55.

Record temperature for all December readings came in 1921 when a 68 degree reading was recorded on Dec. 12. There was a 61 degree reading on Dec. 29, 1917.

Record low last month was 8 degrees reported Dec. 9. This is mild compared to the December all-time record low of 29 degrees below zero reported Christmas Day, 1924.

Winter of 1978-79 was also cold with January of that year showing a monthly low average of 7.9 degrees.

The water year, which began Oct. 1, shows 2.15 inches of moisture. This is .59 inch below normal for this time of year.

"The ski areas that have received far less snow than usual for this time of year may question the near-normal precipitation, but skiers must remember nearly all of the precipitation has been in the form of rain and even some of the early snow fall was reduced later by rain storms," Galkin said.

Thus far .13 inch of precipitation has fallen in January. The month needs another inch to meet normal precipitation.

Smaller raises for teachers makes retention difficult

BOISE (UPI) — The executive director of the Idaho Eduation Association said Monday night Gov. John Evans budget proposal to increase teacher salaries by only 7.5 percent will result in more experienced teachers leaving the education field.

But executive director Don Rollie said the association is not ready to "push the panic button" because the education appropriation has not been acted upon by the 1981 Legislature.

He indicated that if the Legislature does go along with the governor, it will be harder for Idaho to attract and retain the type of educators the state wants.

Prior to his budget message, Evans said he would propose a 10-percent increase for teacher salaries. In his annual budget message, however, Evans said he was forced to reduce this along with higher salaries for state employes because of low projected state revenue.

Despite the governor's lower recommendation, Rollie said the IEA would continue lobbying the legislature for the 10 percent increase.

Rollie noted that only one of the last eight legislatures have appropriated an amount lower than the governor's request. "They've all done better, so we hope this session of the Legislature will follow that tradition," he said.

Little, Big Wood River Drainages show above-normal moisture

HAILEY — First snow measurements of the year from the Little and Big Wood River Drainages have been made, showing below normal snow but above normal moisture.

Moisture content is 102 percent of the long time average on the Little Wood River drainage, and 106 percent of average on Big Wood River drainage.

Officials of the Blaine Soil Conservation District say nearly all snow depths are not only below last year but below the average for the various courses.

Snow that has fallen, however, is high in water content and in most cases exceeds last year and the average.

Conservation district officials said during the warm temperatures of the past few weeks, especially in higher elevations, snow was melting at a rate of one to two percent every day.

Officials are hoping for increased precipitation during the remainder of the winter months.

Some of the water and snow depths in the area include 32 inches of snow and 9.6 inches of water at Galena Summit and 29 inches of snow and 8.6 inches of water at Galena. This compares with 41 inches of snow, 5.6 inches of water last year and an average of 42 inches snow and 10.4 inches of water at the summit.

Copper Basin has 338 percent of normal water content. The snow course there has 14 inches of snow, 4.4 inches of wafer, compared to 5 inches of snow and .5 inches of water last year. Average for the course is 18 inches of snow and 1.3 inches of water.

Graham Ranch at 110 percent of average has 25 inches of snow, 6.2 inches of water with an average of 25 inches of snow but only 5.6 inches of water.

Swede Peak reports 24 inches of snow and 7.1 inches of water.

Four charged with stealing beer from railroad car

TWIN FALLS — Four Twin Falls men arrested on charges on burglarizing railroad box cars were arraigned in 5th District Magistrate Court Monday.

Magistrate Mel Edwards released the suspects, Mike Catalan, 18, Fred Maihat, 19, Rex Hendrick, 22, and Clay Campbell, 20. The four were being held on $3,000 bail each on charges of first degree burglary.

The four are charged with burglarizing a railroad car behind Southern Idaho Distributing Co., 1640 Kimberly Rd. A total of 107 cases of Budweiser Beer, worth $800, were reported missing Sunday morning, according to officials of the distributing company. Twin Falls police arrested the four after following a pickup truck carrying two men in the bed.

Gooding Council will offer to buy land

GOODING — Gooding City Council Monday agreed to send a letter offering $1,500 to Richard Clements of Gooding for a parcel of land, 7' x 50'.

Mayor Gene Heller said the land is needed to complete a right-of-way for the extension of Idaho Street. The remainder of the land for the right-of-way was granted to the city in a Deed of Dedication from Max Boesiger in December 1980, and Boesiger has agreed to pay the cost of obtaining the additional parcel.

Boesiger is requesting the extension of Idaho Street to provide access to a low cost senior citizen housing unit he owns.

Mayor Heller said the narrow strip of land in dispute is the result of an error in an early survey. The council felt the offer is fair compensation but if Clements does not agree to the price a condemnation proceeding will be initiated by Gooding City.

In other business Duane Johnson and John Brooks of Airport Ranches petitioned the council for a renewal of leases on Gooding City property near the Gooding Municipal Airport. There lease expired Dec. 31, 180 and they would like a renewal.

The council declined to renew the lease and called for a public meeting to be held Monday, Jan. 12, at 7:30 p.m. in city hall to consider this question. Mayor Heller said the city wishes to consider the terms of a new lease and is interested in public input on this issue. Citizens interested in the airport land are invited to attend.

Mayor Heller reported bids are not being taken for construction of the waste water treatment plant. Bids will be accepted until February 18, 1981.

The council also noted city activity at the flood water diversion canal which channels water from the Little Wood River to the Big Wood River. Heller said the channel has been cleaned and a flume repaired in preparation for any possible flooding.

Two women arrested following series of burglaries

FILER — Two young women were arrested Monday night and Tuesday in connection with a series of burglaries following a joint investigation by Filer city police and Twin Falls County officers.

Filer Police Chief James Trentham said three house burglaries, all in the Filer area were involved in the investigation. He said Nancy Jo Hagerty, 19, was arrested in Filer Monday and charged with three counts of second degree burglary.

The burglaries involve the Morgan residence in Filer, the Hill residence south of Filer and the Routt residence north of Filer. Trentham said most of the more than $2,000 worth of items involved in the burglaries have been recovered.

Sheriff James Munn said the second suspect was arrested late Tuesday. She was identified as Joannie Ann Evans, 20, of Paul. She is charged with two counts of possession of stolen property. The women were in custody Tuesday night in lieu of $2,500 bond each.

Munn said a cooperative investigation by his department and Filer city officers resulted in the two arrests and officers believe this will clear up several additional burglaries in the county and in Filer. A warrant was issued Tuesday morning for the arrest of the Paul woman after Filer police made the initial arrest.

All three of the house burglaries were committed in December, officers said. In the Rick Routt case a number of wrapped Christmas gifts were taken from under the family tree.

Burley man charged with burglary

BURLEY — Rocky Kunzler, 20, of Burley, was arraigned in Magistrate Court Tuesday on a charge of first degree burglary.

Kunzler is being held on $5,000 bond. According to Cassia Deputy Don Taylor, Kunzler is charged with a burglary Monday night at Edith's on Highway 30 South, ½ mile east of Burley. Kunzler allegedly broke into the business and took $105 in cash and merchandise.

Truck overturns

TWIN FALLS — A truck-trailer unit carrying rolls of newsprint overturned on South Blue Lakes Boulevard Monday blocking traffic for more than an hour.

Twin Falls Sheriff's officers said the truck, driven by Roy Russell Burton, 59, of Huson, Mont., overturned at 9 p.m. when the rear wheels struck concrete culvert curbing.

The driver told officers he was checking for a fuel leak in the cab when the accident occurred.

Owner of the vehicle is Earl's Distributing, Inc. The driver was not injured.

Heavy equipment was taken to the scene Tuesday morning to reload the paper on another truck, officers said.

Hawks hold off CSI to even year's ledger

PASCO, Wash. — College of Southern Idaho faltered a bit coming out of the chute and never caught up in falling to the Columbia Basin Hawks 89-83 Tuesday night.

It marked the second straight loss for the Eagles since coming off the Christmas break, CSI having bowed at Walla Walla Monday. Still ahead this week is a tough test in the Dixie Tournament Friday and Saturday with the Eagles facing 1,000 miles of travel in between.

The loss puts the two teams even for the season since the Eagles took a win at Twin Falls early in the season.

Although CSI trailed by eight to 12 points after the opening minutes, the Eagles, paced by Mike Ingram and Frank Baines, did trim the deficit to four points with about eight minutes left. Twice the Eagles had the ball after that but both possessions resulted in turnovers. Curt Eutenier then hit a pair of free throws to start Columbia Basin's scoring and the Eagles were never close again.

Despite the consecutive defeats, Coach Dave Campbell wasn't dismayed.

"It's the type of thing you expect on the road and with a young team," he said. "They came out shooting well and wound up with seven players in double scoring figures."

"I was happy with the way our guys kept fighting back. We never did really shoot well, we just kept fighting the ball back into the hole. But we'll get better. We shot well before Christmas and I'll guarantee you we won't shoot this badly the second half of the season," he said.

Columbia Basin held two of six-point leads in the early going and started pulling away just after Ingram had pulled CSI to within 18-14.

Eutenier, Kelly Buntin and Duane Harris then collected field goals to shoot the Hawks into a 24-14 advantage.

That basically told the story of the game.

Tony Stone hit a jumper to get the Eagles off 14 and Baines then started collecting a few buckets.

But Columbia Basin always had a hot man available to blunt any serious charge the Eagles might make. Late in the half Lamar Dixon cut the deficit to 34-24 but Jack Vanderberg then came to life for the Hawks, hitting eight of their last 12 points to keep the halftime lead at 10. In the closing minutes, George Scott had five CSI points and Ingram added four more.

The first eight minutes of the second half was all basketball matching as Ingram continued to score well and Baines warmed up. With about 10 minutes left in the game, CSI went on a brief flurry that Baines capped with a jumper to make it 68-62. Then came the two turnovers and Eutenier's free throws.

With 4:50 left, Columbia Basin had blazed out to an 82-72 advantage and still had that margin with two minutes left.

Then Baines, Dixon and Brady Taylor — the latter-off-a-steal — pulled CSI back to within 86-80. Pike hit a Columbia Basin free throw with Taylor getting a CSI field goal in reply.

With eight seconds left Mark Owen hit a free throw, intentionally missed the second and CSI had three follow shots that wouldn't fall. Columbia Basin then wrapped it up by getting the final two points.

Cleveland QB earns UPI honors in AFC; joins Namath, Fouts in 4,000 yard ranks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Brian Sipe, who made the thrilling finish his trademark in leading the Cleveland Browns to their first division title in nine years, Tuesday was named UPI's American Conference Player of the Year.

Sipe, who was rated the No. 1 passer in the National Football League this season, received 35 of the 56 votes cast by UPI's panel of sports writers — four from each conference city. Houston running back Earl Campbell was second with 15 votes and three San Diego players completed the balloting. Wide receiver John Jefferson got four votes and quarterback Dan Fouts and tight end Kellen Winslow one each.

Sipe threw for 30 touchdowns to tie for the second highest figure in the league and became only the third NFL quarterback in history to throw for more than 4,000 yards in a season. He joined Dan Fouts and Joe Namath in that category by throwing for 4,132 yards.

Sipe's passing heroics, especially in the final moments of games, helped earn the Browns the nickname of "Kardiac Kids" from Cleveland fans. Of Cleveland's 11 victories in 1980, nine were by seven points or less and five of those nine were by three points or less.

"I don't mind the close finishes, as long as they turn out right for us," said Sipe before one of the exciting endings finally turned sour last Sunday in a 14-12 playoff loss to Oakland. "We don't try to do it deliberately but it's nice to know that we've done it before and that we have the capability to score quickly and under pressure."

Sipe didn't exactly burst upon the NFL scene. He was a 13th-round draft choice out of San Diego State in 1972 and spent two years on the Browns' taxi squad. He served as a backup to Mike Phipps for two years before finally being elevated to his starting role in 1977.

BRIAN SIPE
. . . 30 TD passes

There were criticisms that Sipe's arm wasn't strong enough but with Coach Sam Rutigliano's backing, he proved the critics wrong. The Browns were 8-8 in Rutigliano's first year and 9-7 last season before their 11-5 finish this year in the rugged AFC Central race.

"One of the reasons for the success was that I'm more experienced," Sipe explained. "I'm doing the same things but it's just a matter of doing them better. This was the third year under Sam and I felt like I got more comfortable with the system.

"As far as the criticism of my arm is concerned, I really don't think it's warranted. All I know is that I never really had a problem getting the ball to go where I wanted it to go. If people feel I can't go long, then I like the reputation. I would rather be underestimated — it works to my advantage. I don't think too many defensive backs in this league would take seriously the statement that I can't get the ball to my receivers.

"I don't have the strongest arm in the world but you really don't need a tremendous arm. You need to be able to get the ball to your receivers."

"He's been one of the keys to our success," said Rutigliano. "He helped bring us to the playoffs. He's a competitor. He has his own style but I would put him in the Fran Tarkenton category. He can do the things to beat you. He has great concentration in the pocket and his greatest asset is his ability to follow a game plan. The last guy I remember who stood in there like he does was Joe Namath."

Campbell led the league in rushing for the third straight year with 1,934 yards and scored 13 touchdowns. Fouts set a record for passing yardage with 4,715 yards and also threw for 30 touchdowns in leading San Diego to the AFC West title.

Jefferson, one of three 1,000-yard receivers on the Chargers, caught 82 passes for 1,340 yards and 13 touchdowns. Winslow set a receiving record for tight ends and led the NFL with 89 catches for 1,290 yards and nine TDs.

Lively's free throw shooting puts Buhl past Tigers in OT

BUHL — Ken Lively drilled three free throws in last 11 seconds of overtime to nail down Buhl's 70-65 victory over the Jerome Tigers Tuesday night.

Livley, who hit six of seven over the final 37 seconds of regulation and overtime, thus took the hero role away from Jerome's Todd Box who followed in a missed shot at the buzzer to fashion the overtime.

The final margin was the largest of the second half and Jerome held the slight advantage through most of the middle quarters. Jerome's biggest lead was 37-33 on a Shawn Vincent bucket midway through the third quarter but Doug Walker and Tim Hamilton tied it and from then on it was a real donnybrook.

But the drama of the game started crystalizing with just over two minutes left in the game.

Richeson olled up his howitzer shooting with two long ones but Tom Curtis, who had eight Jerome points in the final period, pulled the Tigers back into a 52 draw.

Hulsey hit a free throw for a Jerome 53-52 lead with 2:07 left before Richeson banged in another field goal. Jerome took its last lead at 55-54 on a Shawn Vincent shot with Walker replying for Buhl with 1:07 showing.

Jerome then appeared doomed when it turned the ball over, leading to a pair of Lively free throws. Hulsey pulled Jerome back to within one on a follow shot with 16 seconds left. Eight seconds later Lively again gave Buhl a seemingly comfortable lead when he hit two more free throws.

But Jerome hustled the ball downcourt for one last long shot. It bounced away but Todd Box was there to tail it back in as the buzzer sounded.

The teams had offsetting buckets to open the overtime and Richeson's long shot sent Buhl ahead for the last time. With 46 seconds remaining, Walker hit a free throw but answered with two Jerome free throws to leave the deficit at one.

Richeson went back to the line with 30 seconds remaining for two more charities and Walker followed 13 seconds later another free throw.

But he missed the second one and then was charged with a rebounding foul. Curtis drilled both those free throws with 16 seconds showing and after that it was up to Lively to hit the final three points of the game.

Throughout the first half of the game it was basically the same way. The first three-point lead of the battle came on a Hulsey field goal and the teams were knotted at 14 at the end of the period.

In the second quarter Jerome bounced out to a 20-14 lead in a quick burst but almost immediately Buhl pulled back to within two. At halftime Bob Stone, hitting 12 points, had Jerome on a 32-29 advantage. Buhl hung on the shooting of Richeson who had 13 at intermission.

"I thought before we started it would be a barnburner," Buhl Coach Ben Allen said afterward. "We were coming off a two-week layoff (for the holidays) and it took us a while to get started. They'd played a couple three games since we had so I thought they would be sharper."

"But I'll tell you one thing," he said with a smile, "I'm not looking forward to playing them again.

Stenmark regains winning form

MORZINE, France (UPI) — Sweden's Ingemar Stenmark, winner of two gold medals at the Lake Placid Olympics, complained about the snow conditions Tuesday but still managed to regain his dominance of the skiing scene, winning the winter's third World Cup giant slalom.

With his familiar second-run charge, Stenmark, who fell in Sunday's race at Ebnat-Kappel, Switzerland, rallied from a fourth-place position after the first leg to claim victory by just over half a second with the fastest time in the second run for a total time of 3:06.26.

"I did not like the snow at all," Stenmark said. "It was really difficult to handle but still a win is a win."

The first run over the 1,410-meter, 60-gate course, which dropped 400 meters, was held in a snowstorm. There was no snow for the leaders in the second lap but, after they had raced, it began falling again.

Switzerland's 18-year-old Joel Gaspoz placed second. Gaspoz had shocked the more experienced competitors by posting the quickest first leg time of 1:32.14 — .91 seconds faster than Stenmark — but faded on the second run to a total 3:06.77.

Third was Yugoslavia's Bojan Krizaj, with times of 1:32.79 and 1:34.04 for a total time of 3:06.83, followed by Phil Mahre, of White Pass, Wash., who clocked in at 1:33.81-1:33.26 for 3:07.07.

Stenmark's victory was his 55th World Cup victory since his debut in 1974 as he continues his assualt on Austrian Anne-Marie Moser-Proell's record total of 62.

The performance also pushes the Swede into second place in this winter's overall World Cup standings with 75 points. Switzerland's Peter Mueller, 18th Tuesday, continues to lead the way with 80 points while Liechtenstein's Andreas Wenzel is third with 67.

Stenmark was not the only skier to complain about conditions. Mahre too found the snow awkward early on.

"One had to be too precise on the first run," Mahre said. "But on the second lap the surface was firmer and one could get up more speed."

Mahre clocked the second best time of the day during the second run and is clearly set to improve his current World Cup position of seventh.

Tuesday's giant slalom is combined with Saturday's downhill at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, West Germany, for further points in the overall World Cup.

Campbell wants to be traded; Bum may have Saints job

HOUSTON (UPI) — Well-paid NFL rushing king Earl Campbell of the Houston Oilers left a luncheon meeting Tuesday with Bum Phillips, a leading candidate for the New Orleans Saints head coaching job, and demanded to be traded.

Campbell had agent Witt Stewart give Oilers General Manager Ladd Herzeg the alternative to pay him more money Monday, but all parties knew the Oilers have a strict ban against renegotiating players' contracts.

Herzeg said he would neither renegotiate Campbell's contract nor trade him.

"If we traded Earl Campbell," he added, "my house would get burned down and I'd have to get out of town."

Campbell has played for Phillips since Phillips obtained the Heisman Trophy winner from Texas in a trade with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers for a draft choice. Since then Campbell has led the league in rushing each of his three NFL seasons.

Campbell seemed satisfied with his financial situation after renegotiating his original Oilers' contract early last year to a reported 1980 base salary of $300,000. A subsequent rush of other players seeking more money caused the Oilers to ban renegotiations.

Phillips was fired unexpectedly New Year's Eve, and when Campbell heard the news, he said, "It's gonna take me time to adjust."

Reports published Tuesday said Phillips was to meet with Saints owner John Mecom Jr. in Houston Tuesday and finalize a verbal agreement making him the head coach.

Herzeg said he was told by Stewart that Phillips told Campbell the Saints job was sewed up.

"Witt Stewart called me and informed me Earl had lunch with Bum today (Monday) and Bum told him he had the New Orleans job," Herzeg said.

"I told him, 'I think I'm going to get the New Orleans job,'" Phillips said. "I didn't tell him that because I knew anything more than I knew in the past. I told him that because I hope I get it.

"Somewhere between Earl and Whit Stewart, it came out that I had the job, which just isn't true."

The New Orleans Saints front office refused Tuesday to confirm a deal was in the works.

"I cannot confirm that," said publicity director Greg Suit.

Phillips denied trying to influence Campbell to force a trade.

Stewart Tuesday said Campbell decided at midseason to demand a contract renegotiation.

"There are three (Houston Astros) baseball players who make more money than Earl," he said. "I can't imagine any athlete in this town being more valuable than Earl."

Campbell refused to answer a reporter's questions Tuesday.

Campbell demanded a meeting be scheduled immediately to begin talks on a new contract, Herzeg said.

All six of Phillips' assistant coaches asked Herzeg Monday to let them out of their contracts, which run through 1981, and that action infuriated Herzeg and caused him to accuse Phillips of tampering. Under NFL by-laws, approval must be obtained by one team to talk to a coach about a job.

Herzeg said Phillips has not obtained such approval, but Phillips countered by saying he did not represent an NFL team.

In the past, Mecom has said he would like to hire Phillips if he left the Houston job. Mecom has been out of town since Phillips was fired, but reportedly he returned to his home in Houston Monday night.

Suit said any comment on the situation would have to come from Saints general manager Steve Rosenbloom, who has maintained since Phillips was fired that he would stick with his busy interview schedule.

After an initial burst of reports that Phillips was an easy choice, Rosenbloom's insistence on hearing from all candidates helped Philadelphia assistant Dick Coury draw ahead of the pack.

One man backing Phillips for the Saints is his son, Oilers assistant Wade Phillips. While confirming a get-together with Mecom, he stressed his father would accept only offers that thoroughly pleased him.

"He would like to have that job because he thinks it's a good job," the younger Phillips said. "But if it wasn't exactly what he wanted, he still would refuse it.

"He's a pretty high-character person and he's going to make sure he can win wherever he goes."

Meridian height sinks Bruins

Girls basketball roundup

MERIDIAN — Twin Falls ran into the towering height of Meridian Tuesday night minus two of its tallest players and suffered a 52-25 setback.

Lisa and Kelly Krahn, both key rebounders and scorers for the Bruins, just returned Tuesday from a Christmas vacation and were unable to play.

That left Meridian's Theresa Spalding, a 6-5 center, to dominate the center and after a fairly close first period, Meridian pulled away.

"We started well," Twin Falls Coach Kathy Anderson said. "The girls were aggressive on offense and especially defense, but in the second period they slowed down and were forcing to the inside a lot.

"We lost our intensity and stood around. Spalding was able to knock away any drive inside and that frustrated the girls."

Spalding finished with 14 points to lead Meridian and two other players were in double figures.

Susie Shelby and Cass Herbst tied for the Bruins' scoring lead with six points each.

Twin Falls is 10-4 for the season and returns to Gem State action Thursday at Bonneville.

The Twin Falls juniors varsity took a 40-27 win to move its record to 12-2.

Jerome 42, Gooding 31

JEROME — The Jerome Tigers, riding a big edge in rebounding and shooting percentage, stopped Gooding's winning streak at 13 with a 42-31 decision Tuesday night.

The Tigers, running their record to 8-4, trailed only once in the game at 6-5. But they couldn't tuck the Senators away until the [illegible] quarter.

Jerome regained the lead at 7-6 as the second period began and held a 14-11 advantage at intermission. In the final half Jerome outscored Gooding 28-20.

Behind the shooting of Genice VanderVegt and Marge Marshall, Jerome hit 40 per cent from the field against 27 for the Senators. Jerome also held a 33-23 rebounding edge.

"They were hot and we weren't," said Gooding Coach Jolene Toone. "I think their height just wore us down."

"Yep, we'd won 13 straight," she answered a question. "But this was a non-conference game so I guess it isn't going to hurt us."

The defeat gave Gooding a 13-2 lead but the Senators remain 9-0 in the Canyon Conference. They travel to Declo Thursday night to resume league action.

HAILEY — Liz Lee scored eight of her game-high 17 points in the third quarter Tuesday night as Wood River ran away from Carey 49-30 in a non-conference game.

The host Wolverines led 22-15 at the half and outscored the Panthers 10-5 in the third period.

Lee received support from Lori Pascoe, who scored 13 points while Lisa Marcroft and Denise Haynes each added eight points.

Wood River moved its record to 6-2 with the verdict and plays Jerome Friday night.

Carey dropped to 3-3 and will host Camas County Friday night.

MURTAUGH — The Murtaugh Red Devils overcame a scrappy Oakley ball club and upended the Hornets 32-23 in a Magic Valley Conference game Tuesday night.

Murtaugh — behind the offensive punch of Janet Breeding who finished the night with 10 points — jumped out in front 10-5 after the first eight minutes of the game and continued to stretch it out each quarter.

"It's not the kind of game I would want to brag about," said Murtaugh Coach Stacey Winn. "Oakley has a bunch of scrappy kids and they threw us off. We got into trouble and never settled down."

Murtaugh, 2-5 and 2-3 in conference play, hosts Raft River Friday. Oakley, 0-6 and 0-5 in conference, hosts Hagerman the same night.

WENDELL — Junior Christy Taylor pumped in 19 points and Bonnie Coltrin added 11 more as the Declo Hornets overpowered Wendell 42-30 in girls basketball Tuesday night.

Coltrin's hot shooting from the corner allowed Declo to go into the locker room at halftime with a comfortable 18-10 lead and they breezed to its ninth win of the year.

Declo, 9-4, travels to Filer Thursday to take on the Wildcats. Wendell is 4-9 on the year after the Canyon Conference loss. The Trojans hosts Gooding Thursday night.

CASTLEFORD — Laurie Gandiaga hit 16 points on eight field goals Tuesday night to pace Castleford to its seventh straight win, a 34-16 effort over Hagerman.

Hagerman, clawing to keep its Canyon Conference hopes alive, spurt out to a 13-12 lead after the first eight minutes.

But the experienced Wolves battled back with balanced scoring in the final three periods and a tough defense to hand to Pirates their seventh loss against five wins.

Rae Ann Schlund added 10 more for the Wolves' offensive attack.

Castleford travels to Hansen Friday while the Pirates travel to Oakley.

SHOSHONE — Shannon Carraway and Jill Osborn combined for 27 points to lead the Shoshone Indians to a 32-30 Canyon Conference win over Filer Tuesday night.

The couple powered the Indians to balanced scoring in all four quarters to cap the victory. Carraway ended up with 10 points and Osborn added a game high 17. Laurie Ochsner lead Filer with 10.

Filer took a 8-7 lead after the first eight minutes and extended that to 18-15 at the intermission mark. However, the Indians were bound to pull out the win.

Shoshone outscored the Wildcats 8-4 in the third period and then 9-8 in the final eight minutes to pull out the win.

Shoshone, 11-2 and 7-2 in the conference, travels to Kimberly Thursday while Filer hosts Wendell the same day. Filer falls to 4-7 and 3-6 in the Canyon Conference.

Shoshone also won the junior varsity game, 31-11.

Mt. Home clips Pilots in OT

Boys basketball roundup

MOUNTAIN HOME — Mountain Home's Daryl Hinton pumped in 20 points, including two to send the game into overtime and four overtime free throws, to pace the Tigers to a 59-57 win over Glenns Ferry Tuesday night.

With 35 seconds to play in regulation, Glenns Ferry's Tim Black scored to tie it at 50. Bill Stichl hit two free throws with 12 seconds, but Hinton negated that with a lay-up with two seconds left on the clock.

Hinton scored four free throws in the extra session to ice the win.

Mountain Home opened up with a small lead and held it most of the way. However, the Pilots fought their way back at tied it in the third period. Both teams hit 13 points in the final eight minutes of regulation play.

Glenns Ferry, 6-3, travels to Kimberly Friday.

Mountain Home also won the junior varsity contest.

RAFT RIVER — Jeff Wallace scored 19 points and Lance Udy added 12 more to lead the Raft River Trojans past Hansen 48-46 Tuesday night.

Raft River's slim 27-25 halftime lead proved to be the difference as the two teams each scored 21 in the final half.

John Connors led Hansen in scoring with 12 points and Robert Ethington chipped in 11 more in a losing cause.

Raft River, 7-3, travels to Murtaugh Friday. Hansen, 0-6, hosts Castleford the same night.

Dietrich 51, Bliss 25

BLISS — Dietrich, struggling in the first quarter, applied a stiff press and broke away from a tight game to defeat the Bliss Bears 51-25 Tuesday night.

The Blue Devils, who shot a scorching 85 percent from the free throw line, held a small 16-15 lead at the intermission mark, but countless number of Bliss turnovers caused by Dietrich's press ended the Bears' hopes of knocking off the Northside Conference leaders. Bliss hit only nine points in the second half.

Dietrich holds the lead in the conference with a 2-0 record. They stand at 9-1 overall. The game was Bliss' first in conference action. They fall to 3-3.

The Blue Devils had five of its six scorers reach double-figues. Junior Kalen Robbins lead the way 14 points, four below his average of 18 a game.

Bliss travels to Gooding Thursday to play Gooding State while Dietrich travels to Richfield Friday.

Twin Falls Jrs. 53, Oakley 44

TWIN FALLS — Todd Wigington and Steve Meyerhoeffer came up with key plays midway through the fourth quarter to push the Twin Falls juniors past Oakley's Hornets 53-44 Tuesday night.

Wigington hit a short jumper, Meyerhoeffer drove the baseline for a layin and Wigington converted a cripple off a steal to explode the Bruins into a 47-40 lead just after Oakley had managed its first lead of the night.

Holding a big height advantage, Twin Falls controlled the boards quite well but owed the victory to free throws. The Bruins hit 11 of 21 while Oakley missed both of its charity attempts.

But the Bruins couldn't handle the outside shooting of Mark Cranney, who hit most of his 10 points in the first half, or Rex Tolman who wound up with a game high 24.

Twin Falls took a two-point lead into the final period before Tolman hit two straight shots to pushed Oakley ahead 40-39. Bob Jones re-established Twin Falls' lead with a follow shot and then came the quick six-point flurry that iced it.

Hagerman 56, Castleford 41

CASTLEFORD — Brian Fuell, a 6-3 senior, poured in 23 points to lead the Hagerman Pirates past Castleford 56-41 Tuesday night.

Hagerman held a slim 30-28 halftime lead but outscored Castleford 26-13 in the final half to ice its eighth win against one loss.

Eric Jones scored 14 points and Bob Jay added 11 more to aid Hagerman. Chris Tverdy led Castleford with 14 points.

Hagerman travels to Oakley Friday to take on the Hornets. Castleford, 3-7, travels to Hansen the same night.

The Castleford junior varsity upped its record to 8-0 by defeating the Pirates.

Silas-led Spurs defeat Knicks

NBA

NEW YORK (UPI) — James Silas scored 33 points, including 16 in the second quarter, and George Gervin added 28 Tuesday night to lift the San Antonio Spurs to a 113-108 victory over the New York Knicks.

The Knicks opened a 32-22 lead after one quarter on the strength of 12 points by Ray Williams, who finished with a game-high 34. But Silas, benefiting from Gervin's unselfish play, riddled the Knicks in the second period, winding up the half with 22 points, including 12-of-12 free throws.

Suns 113, Hawks 106

ATLANTA (UPI) — Truck Robinson scored 33 points, including 23 in the second half, and Alvan Adams added 24 to pace the Pacific Division-leading Phoenix Suns to a 113-106 victory over the Atlanta Hawks Tuesday night.

Bucks 102, Nets 86

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Junior Bridgeman scored 16 of his game-high 31 points in the third quarter to power the Milwaukee Bucks to a 102-86 triumph over the New Jersey Nets Tuesday night.

Bulls 108, Clippers 93

CHICAGO (UPI) — Larry Kenon scored 31 points and Reggie Theus added 27 Tuesday night to lead the Chicago Bulls to a 108-93 victory over the San Diego Clippers for Chicago's eighth victory in nine games and San Diego's fifth consecutive loss.

Blazers 110, Pistons 90

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Jim Paxson scored 21 points and Michael Thompson 20 to lead the Portland Trail Blazers to a 110-90 victory over the Detroit Pistons Tuesday night.

Lakers 107, Bullets 98

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Norm Nixon tied his career high with 30 points and had 12 assists Tuesday night to carry the Los Angeles Lakers to a 107-98 victory over the Washington Bullets.

DePaul's Aguirre beats bad ankle, Maine with 47 points

College basketball roundup

BANGOR, Maine (UPI) — All-America Mark Aguirre shrugged off a sprained ankle to score a career-high 47 points Tuesday night and lead undefeated and top-ranked DePaul to an 85-77 victory over Maine.

The 6-foot-7 forward, who had arrived at the Bangor Airport in a wheelchair, connected on 19-of-26 shots from the floor to offset Maine's 67 percent team shooting.

Maine, 5-7, led the Blue Demons 30-21 with 7:26 left in the first half after hitting 10 of its first 11 shots. But Aguirre poured in 24 points before intermission, scoring over the shorter Black Bears almost at will. DePaul, 13-0, moved to a 47-36 halftime lead.

Maine's Champ Godbolt, who equalled his career high of 27 points, andRick Carlisle, who added 22, kept the Black Bears close. Maine trailed 76-73 with 1:59 left when Aguirre grabbed an offensive rebound and sank an eight-footer to give DePaul a 5-point cushion. Aguirre also had a game-high 7 rebounds.

Terry Cummings and Bernard Randolph each added 12 points for the Blue Demons. Jim Mercer had 12 for Maine, which hit 34-of-51 shots from the floor.

Notre Dame 94, Villanova 65

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Tracy Jackson scored 20 points, hitting 9-of-11 shots, and pulled down 9 rebounds Tuesday night to pace fifth-ranked Notre Dame to a 94-65 victory over Villanova.

Jackson and Orlando Woolridge, who added 16 points, combined for 19 in the first half when the Fighting Irish shot 63 percent from the field and took a 40-27 halftime lead. Notre Dame coasted in the second half for its eighth victory against one defeat while the Wildcats fell to 7-3.

Notre Dame led from the opening tap. Jackson's jumper sparked an 8-0 tear that gave the Fighting Irish a 23-10 lead with 9:42 remaining in the half. The Wildcats cut the advantage to 8 with four minutes to go but the Irish went on a 9-2 tear to take a 40-25 lead on Woolridge's three-point-play.

In the second half, the Wildcats came no closer than 12. Bill Varner and Woolridge hit consecutive 3-point plays and Jackson sank a jumper in an 8-0 spurt that upped the Irish lead to 65-44 with 9:03 left to play.

Drake 97, Oral Roberts 95

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Lewis Lloyd scored 42 points and hit a 20-footer with one second left in overtime Tuesday night to give Drake a 97-95 victory against Oral Roberts.

Lloyd's basket came after Kevin McGee tied it 95-95 with 34 seconds left.

ORU's Cat Johnson sank a baseline shot at the end of regulation to forceovertime.

ORU, which had 19 points from Steve Bontrager, trailed by 13 midway through the second half.

ORU dropped to 2-8 and Drake boosted its record to 7-3.

SMU 53, Texas 51

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Gordon Welch, who had not scored a point all night, grabbed a loose ball and hit a 10-foot jump shot at the buzzer in overtime Tuesday night to give Southern Methodist a stunning 53-51 victory over Texas.

The Mustangs, who had been handed their worst basketball defeat ever last Saturday night, scored the last 6 points of regulation to tie the game at 49-49.

The Mustangs worked the ball for the final two minutes of overtime. Dave Gadis' shot from the foul line was blocked by LaSalle Thompson but the ball went to Welch, who banked it in.

Virdell Howland scored 18 points for Texas and Thompson had 16. Dave Piehler paced the Mustangs with 18 points, including all 6 down the stretch that brought SMU into a tie at the end of regulation.

Kansas 59, Memphis 49

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — David Magley's 18 points and a late-game stall led Kansas to a 59-49 victory over Memphis State Tuesday night.

Memphis State scored one more field goal than Kansas and the difference came at the free throw line. The Jayhawks hit 19-of-23 free while Memphis State managed only 7-of-16.

Tony Guy added 14 points for Kansas. The taller Jayhawks outrebounded Memphis State 30-24. Johnie [illegible] the Tigers with 16 points followed by Dennis [illegible] 11 and Bobby Parks with 10.

Rice 57, TCU 51

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — Anthony DeCello, Ricky Pierce and Robert Shaw each hit two free throws in the final minute Tuesday night to help Rice hold off Texas Christian 57-51.

The Owls and Horned Frogs are 1-1 in the Southwest [illegible]. The Owls are 4-8 overall and TCU is 4-8.

[illegible] a 26-23 advantage at the half and still led with 1:51 [illegible] at 51-47. TCU's Darrell Browder cut the deficit to 2 points with 56 seconds to go but Browder then fouled DeCello who made two free throws.

Rams use lightweights to defeat Twin Falls

POCATELLO — Highland High built up a 23-0 lead in the early weights then held off Twin Falls for a 35-29 Gem State Conference mat victory Tuesday night.

The Rams dominated the Bruins in the early weights and Twin Falls did well in the upper weights. A forfeit at heavyweight also helped the Bruins pull close at the end.

"We knew they would be tough in the early weights," Twin Falls Coach Andy Barron said. "The kids came back well and made it close."

Bobby Galvan, at 132 pounds, and Scott Holloway, at 185, scored the only pins for the Bruins. Both won with falls in the first period and Holloway pinned his foe in just 57 seconds.

Highland made a sweep with a 52-16 romp in the junior varsity match.

The Bruins will host the Gem State Conference meet Saturday at 10:30 a.m. for its next competition. Skyline is the favored team in the first ever Gem State meet.

Jim Plunkett uses his helmet as a pillow to catch a few winks and some sun in Oakland after victory in cold Cleveland

Raiders end rest today, gear for S.D.

OAKLAND (UPI) — They may not believe this in Cleveland, but the Oakland Raiders are not spending the day practicing interceptions.

In fact, the wild card contenders for the American Football Conference championship are not practicing anything. Coach Tom Flores gave his players Tuesday off.

But they will go back to work in earnest today preparing for their third game against the San Diego Chargers Sunday. The two teams split a pair during the regular NFL season and now knock heads to see which represents the conference in Super Bowl XV in New Orleans Jan. 25.

Oakland made it to the championship game only as a wild card team with San Diego winning the AFC Western Division championship on the basis of having more net points in division games — the fifth tie-breaker in the NFL system for determining championships.

The Raiders also made it because defensive back Mike Davis intercepted a pass from quarterback Brian Sipe in the end zone to preserve a 14-12 win over the Cleveland Browns in the division semifinals last Sunday.

The Raiders are happy to meet the Chargers again because ih their hearts they believe they are the champions of the AFC West and relish a chance to prove it.

During the regular season the Chargers defeated Oakland 30-24 in overtime. That was the game in which backup quarterback Jim Plunkett took over for an injured Dan Pastorini and threw a touchdown pass to Raymond Chester to tie the game at 24-24 with 39 seconds left to play.

Plunkett remained at the quarterback spot the rest of the season — and beyond — as the Raiders turned their season around and finished on an up note. In the second regular season meeting between the two teams, the Raiders won 38-24.

"What I don't understand is if we had the same record as San Diego, and beat them by more points than they beat us, why are they the division champions?" asked Raider linebacker Ted Hendricks.

The Raiders enter the championship game in San Diego with confidence that they can "get the job done" with "whatever it takes."

"All those close games during the year definitely helped us — one by one," said John Matuszak, Raider defensive lineman. "Denver was a close game. Philadelphia. Dallas. This one (against Cleveland) was very big.

"This is the greatest victory for Oakland since the Super Bowl victory in 1976."

Managing general partner Al Davis, who is trying to move the team out of Oakland to Los Angeles, refused to classify the team's season as "implausible."

"It doesn't surprise me," he said after the victory ove Cleveland. "I always said they would be good. Some day they're going to be great."

Coryell says Davis 'smart,' Raiders tough

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Coach Don Coryell of the San Diego Chargers said Tuesday Oakland Raider owner Al Davis must be a very smart man to "know" that the Raiders match up so well with the Charger defense.

On Dec. 27, nine days before the Raiders won the right to meet the Chargers for the American Conference championship, Davis said:

"Most teams when they come in to play San Diego are awed by that pass offense. No disrespect, they're excellent. We are not awed. We match up pretty well with their defense. He (Coryell) knows it and I know it.

"We can play 'em. We know they can score, we know they can get points. But we're gonna get to Danny (Fouts) a few times."

The Charger coach was asked if he'd comment on the inference that the match-ups favor the Raiders.

"I'm not smart enough to figure it out," the coach said. "He might know that, well fine. The match-ups favor them in his opinion. Maybe they do. Maybe they think it's in the bag. All I know is that they're an excellent football team."

Coryell said the only way the Chargers can hope to win Sunday's game and advance to Super Bowl XV at the New Orleans Superdome is if they play the way they did against Pittsburgh.

"If we can play a game like we played against Pittsburgh, we have a chance of beating them," Coryell said.

The Chargers, who boasted the most prolific offense in the NFL this season, were not only installed as four-point favorites over Oakland, but also were a 6-5 pick to win the NFL championship.

"I think that's great that somebody has that much confidence in us," the coach said with a smile. "I'm glad somebody likes us. I don't know if they're very bright.

"We'll go out and and shoot the works and hope we can win."

The Chargers, champions of the West for the second straight year, and the Raiders, the division runner-up, have battled 42 times in league play since 1960. They are meeting for the first time in post-season play.

Landry compares Vermiel to Allen; Eagles fly to Tampa

DALLAS (UPI) — The name of the rival has changed somewhat, but the tactics haven't and Dallas Coach Tom Landry recognizes them very well.

"Dick Vermeil, of course, coached for George Allen," Landry said Tuesday. "And he has a little bit of it in him. The psychology of this game has already started."

Dallas meets Philadelphia Sunday for the NFC title and a trip to the Super Bowl and Landry indicated the ploys of the Philadelphia coach were similar to those used by Allen when he coached the Washington Redskins.

Vermeil went to great lengths Monday to explain why the Cowboys had a better team than the Eagles and later in the day decided his team would wear white jerseys for the game in order to make Dallas wear its blue jerseys.

Among some segment of the Cowboys' fandom lies the belief that the blue jerseys are jinxed.

"The jerseys are a typical type of move you would have," Landry said. "Unfortunately, the press comes on it pretty quick and that's the purpose of it. I don't blame you, though. It's a story and you ought to jump on it.

"But they are just trying to distract us as a team by having to answer the same question over and over about the jersey and whether we think it is supposed to be a jinx. That's just a part of football.

"The game will be played Sunday afternoon and the best team will walk off the winner."

The Cowboys staff has enjoyed the decision by Philadelphia to switch to its white jerseys.

"I researched the matter," joked Dallas special assistant coach Ermal Allen, "and found they are 1-13 over the last few years in their white jerseys."

As to the game itself, Landry looked to the record to find Philadelphia's No. 1 advantage and to an intangible to find Dallas' chief attribute.

"I would say Philadelphia's best thing is their consistency," Landry said. "Regardless of whether they lost three games in the stretch, they always played consistently the same. That's why they lead the league in points allowed. That's their strength. They do things over and over."

The Eagles spent Tuesday flying to Tampa Bay where they will work out for the next three days beforing returning to Philadelphia for the game. The Eagles did the same thing before facing the Minnesota Vikings last week.

The team arrived an hour late in Tampa Bay, but held a light one-hour workout and will hold heavy drills for the next three days.

Minter replaces Hughes in game

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Officials of the Saturday's East-West Shrine game at Stanford Tuesday announced the switch of one Boise State running back for another.

David Hughes has been declared off the West squad because of a leg injury. His spot will be taken by teammate Cedric Minter.

The two squads started workouts Tuesday at Stanford.

Paul says deal to sell Indians void

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Cleveland Indians President Gabe Paul said the agreement to sell the Cleveland Indians to theater magnate Jim Nederlander and West Coast attorney Neil Papiano fell through Tuesday.

Paul said the sale agreement was terminated Tuesday afternoon after disagreements surfaced, but he refused to say what the disagreements were.

NHL fines 36 players for brawl

MONTREAL (UPI) — A total of 36 players from the Boston Bruins and the Colorado Rockies have received automatic fines totalling $3,500 for a bench-clearing melee during a game last weekend, the National Hockey League confirmed Tuesday.

The league said the Bruins automatically were fined $1,800 and the Rockies $1,700 for their part in an on-ice fight Saturday in Colorado.

Pioneer League bowlers lead women

Peterson, Jacobs, Harkins pace bowling honor roll

TWIN FALLS — Norman Peterson replaced Jerry Miller at the top of both charts for men in this week's Times-News Bowling Honor Roll.

Peterson, bowling in the Wonder League and Magic Majors League, turned in a 269 game during Wonder action and a 691 series in Majors. Those totals ranked him first in both game and series.

Miller, the hottest bowler in Twin Falls in recent weeks, was still among the top 20 with a 257 in the Magic Majors League for the No. 4 game and a 683 for the No. 2 series. Miller, who is joining the professional tour this week in Las Vegas, also had a 226 game for the 16th-best game of the week.

Ruby Jacobs rolled a 249 game in Starlite League play to lead the women while Dot Gilson of the Pioneer League was second at 231.

Nancy Harkins topped the series chart with a 576 in the City Mixed League while Linda Mills was second with a 573 in the Moonshiners League.

The Pioneer League dominated the women's scores. Pioneer League women recorded eight of the top 20 games and 12 of the top 20 series.

Joe Yates had a 236 game to top the senior citizens for a single while Harold Ayers had a 583 series for the leadership.

In a week of limited youth action, Greg Malson had both the top game and series with scores of 143 and 388, respectively. Malson is in the Saturday Juniors League at Bowladrome.

Cheri Spriggs of Twin Falls placed third in the recent WISBA tourney. Spriggs rolled a 1167 for the No. 2 qualifying spot, but was edged by Bugs Gabiola of Meridian 191-185 in the rolloff to place third. Glenna Whitton of Blackfoot won the tourney.

Solid construction prevents tragedy

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — Sound construction and design in the ten-story Lake Tower Apartments prevented a blaze early Tuesday from taking any lives.

"The typical kind of high-rise fire where 20 or 30 people are killed," was avoided when fire broke out on the fourth floor, said Fire Chief Don Kaye.

The fire destroyed Room 430 where firemen believed it started. Black smoke billowed upward over the three sides of the high-rise, forcing 39 people to evacuate, Kaye said.

At least five residents were treated for smoke inhalation at Kootenai Memorial Hospital, Kaye said, but none were seriously injured.

As yet, firemen have not determined the cause of the blaze but the matter is under investigation.

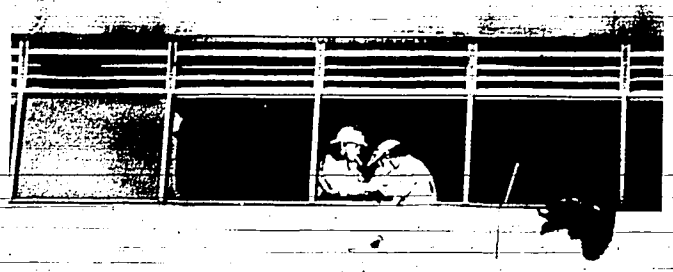
Structural damage in the building occurred only on the fourth floor, Lake Tower owner Duane B. Hagadone said. Heat, smoke and water damage was limited to rooms in the east wing from the fifth floor down, he said.

"If this building hadn't been made of concrete," one of firefighter said, "it would have been a disaster. The concrete (which virtually surrounded each room) held up the fire just long enough."

"Another key to extinguishing the fire," Kaye said, "was the building's stand pipe system," in which a thick vertical pipe runs from the ground up with a hookup in each stairwell. Water is fed into the system from a hydrant at ground level and its pumped to all floors, saving firefighters from the difficult, sometimes impossible, task of carrying high-pressure hoses up winding stairs.

The system is required by fire codes, Kaye said.

Computerized, heat-sensitive fire alarms plugged into the fire department's emergency phone, Kaye said, alerted firefighters as soon as the blaze broke out. "The building manager by then is waking up his tenants by telephone," Kaye said.



UPI

Firefighters roamed through the building's upper stories, knocking on doors and kicking them in when they thought it was necessary.

"We kicked in a hell of a lot of doors," one man said, "but we had to. People locked their doors after they left, and we had to make sure there was nobody in there.

"I knocked on one door about five times, and got no answer. So I kicked it in and a woman was sitting there watching television. She said, 'Well, you finally got here.'"

Some residents, Capt. Bill Wolfe said, were standing on the fifth-floor balconies and in the fourth-floor hallway watching the fire.

Firefighters had many stories of people who plugged the space under their doors with wet towels and sat calmly in their rooms until help arrived.

"I can see some people learned something from the MGM Grand fire," firefighter Jonathan Moore said.

Firefighters drove the flames out of the south windows of the building, Assistant Fire Chief Jim Davis said, where a hose mounted on a ladder poured water continuously.

About 70 firefighters helped extinguish the blaze, Kaye said, including men from the Post Falls, Kootenai County and Hayden Lake fire departments. He said city police checked the names of those who were evacuated to make sure everyone was accounted for, helped control the crowd, and kept people from reentering the building.

By 9:30 a.m., some Lake Tower residents had rooms at the North Shore Motor Hotel in Coeur d'Alene. Some sat drinking coffee in TJ's Pantry in their pajamas and bathrobes.

Roads closed by weather

SANDPOINT (UPI) — Some Panhandle National Forest roads have been closed due to floods, slides and spring-like weather, said Jerry Stern, Sandpoint District ranger for the U.S. Forest Service.

The road closures could aggravate the plight of the timber industry, one lumber company official said.

Two major forest roads closed are Lightning Creek Road and Grouse Creek Road, both northeast of Sandpoint.

Stern said 11 major slides and roving stream courses required closure of Lightning Creek, also causing $1 million to $1.5 million damage to the road.

Grouse Creek road was closed to preserve the road's surface, which has been softened by warm, wet weather, he said.

National forest road closures could damage the timber industry, said Elden Knauf of Louisiana Pacific's district office at Coeur d'Alene.

If mills can't obtain logs before spring thaw, when soft roads ordinarily stymie logging operations, lack of raw materials may thwart attempts to recover from poor market conditions, Knauf said. He said decision-makers in the region may have to choose between protecting road surfaces and jobs.

BPA schedules meeting series

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Bonneville Power Administration is planning a series of "town hall" meetings throughout the Pacific Northwest to explain the regional Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act and its implementation, BPA Administrator Sterling Munro said Monday.

"The purpose of these sessions is to explain the major provisions of the act to local government officials and to the public," Munro said.

He added that BPA's area and district offices in Portland and Eugene, Ore., Seattle, Spokane, Walla Walla, and Wenatchee, Wash., Idaho Falls, Idaho, and Kallspell, Mont., will be the primary points of contact with local governments and the public.

The January meetings are scheduled in several cities in Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana.

License suspended

CALDWELL (UPI) — Bozwell Tweeds, a Caldwell tavern that featured male strip acts, has had its beer license lifted for one week in the wake of allegations that the stripping violates state liquor laws.

State liquor law enforcement authorities said the owners of the bar agreed to the one week suspension instead of appearing at a hearing.

Operators of the tavern were scheduled to appear at a Monday hearing to answer charges that they violated a state law that forbids patrons from "touching, fondling or crossdressing bar employees."

Opening lead ♥Q

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

South thought about bidding the grand slam since North's five notrump had guaranteed all four aces in accordance with correct Blackwood practice, but South did have a real minimum hand.

The first two tricks went to the ace and king of trumps and South was reduced to finding the best play for six. He went after diamonds. West showed out on the second diamond and South could get only one discard on dummy's diamonds. He took the discard immediately — and discarded his 10 of clubs.

Needless to say, West did not use his master trump to ruff either the king or queen of diamonds. Now South led a third trump. West was on lead and down to all black cards.

He had to lead one of them and selected a club.

Now we can see the value of South's 10 of clubs discard on the third diamond. It was a matter of eating his cake and having it left. With the 10 of clubs left in his hand, he would have had to decide between the black suit finesses. With the 10 of clubs discarded earlier, he could afford the club finesse and have the spade finesse to fall back on later. South played dummy's queen and got two spade discards for slam, game and rubber.

MAKE AHEAD MENUS

A Guide for the Working Woman

According to the latest figures, over 50 percent of the women in the United States work outside the home. And while husbands and children are pitching in to help out with various household chores, meal preparation usually remains the woman's responsibility.

This responsibility increases when company is expected, but with careful planning, there is no reason why entertaining cannot be hassle-free. Try some of the following suggestions to streamline your next get-together.

- Plan your menu a week in advance.
- Include as many make-ahead dishes as possible: Gelatin based dishes are an excellent choice.
- Tear lettuce and chop and slice salad ingredients the night before. Store in plastic bags in the refrigerator.
- Assemble and partially bake casseroles ahead of time. Complete baking just before company arrives.
- Assemble all dishes, glasses and flatware the night before or before leaving for work.
- Set up buffets early. Decide how the serving dishes should be arranged. Place plates, flatware and napkins on the buffet.
- Take advantage of time and labor saving appliances like microwave ovens or food processors if you have them.

The most obvious way to simplify entertaining is to prepare much of the food in advance. This is easy when you use gelatin based dishes such as the Turkey Vegetable Mold, Danish Fruit Soup and Glazed Apple Cheese Pie suggested here.

All three recipes are made with new Royal® Apple Gelatin. It brings the flavor of America's favorite fruit to any meal and greatly simplifies entertaining by letting you prepare great looking and tasting dishes well before company arrives.

The Turkey Vegetable Mold is just right for a light luncheon or a warm weather dinner. Served with hot rolls, fresh fruit and white wine, it makes an easy to prepare and serve meal.

Danish Fruit Soup is a great start to a meal. It can be followed by a casserole, roast or stew that has been assembled the previous evening and baked while guests arrive.

Dessert is an obvious course to make in advance. The Glazed Apple Cheese Pie suggested here looks time consuming to make, but is really quite simple.

Add the fresh flavor of apples to your meal the next time you entertain by starting with Royal® Apple Gelatin.

Danish Fruit Soup

Makes 5 to 6 servings

1 package (3 oz.) Royal® Apple Gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 stick cinnamon
1 can (11 oz.) mandarin oranges, drained
Reserved mandarin orange syrup
Cold water
1 cup halved fresh strawberries
1/3 cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons Planters® Slivered Almonds, toasted

Dissolve Royal® Apple Gelatin in boiling water. Add cinnamon stick and let stand 15 minutes. Remove cinnamon stick.

Drain mandarin oranges reserving syrup. Add enough cold water to syrup to make 2½ cups liquid; stir into dissolved gelatin. Mix in oranges and strawberries; chill for several hours.

Portion soup into individual bowls. Garnish each serving with a dollop of sour cream and sprinkle with Planters® Slivered Almonds.

Turkey Vegetable Mold

Makes 8 servings

1 package (6 oz.) Royal® Apple Gelatin
2 cups boiling water
1¼ cups cold water
1/3 cup mayonnaise
1 cup diced cooked turkey
1 cup coarsely grated carrots
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup sliced pimiento stuffed green olives
Crisp salad greens

Dissolve Royal® Apple Gelatin in boiling water; stir in 1 cup cold water. Mix mayonnaise into 1 cup of the dissolved gelatin. Pour into a 6-cup ring mold. Chill until nearly firm.

Mix remaining ¼ cup cold water into remaining gelatin. Chill until slightly thickened.

Fold turkey, carrots, green pepper and olives into thickened gelatin. Spoon over mayonnaise layer in mold and chill until firm.

Unmold onto crisp salad greens to serve.

Glazed Apple Cheese Pie

Makes 1 (9-inch) pie

Cold water
1 cinnamon stick
5 whole cloves
1 medium unpeeled apple, cored and thinly sliced
1 package (3 oz.) Royal® Apple Gelatin
1 package (3 oz.) cream cheese, softened
1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar
1 (9-inch) graham cracker crumb crust

In a saucepan combine 1 cup cold water, cinnamon stick and cloves; bring to a boil. Add apple slices and simmer 4 minutes. Drain apples, reserving cooking liquid. Discard spices and chill apple slices.

Add enough cold water to reserved liquid to equal 1 cup; bring to a boil. Remove from heat. Mix in Royal® Apple Gelatin until dissolved. Stir in 1 cup cold water. Set aside 1¼ cups dissolved gelatin at room temperature. Chill remaining gelatin until slightly thickened.

In small bowl of electric mixer beat cream cheese and sugar until light and fluffy. Gradually beat in thickened gelatin until blended. Pour cheese mixture into prepared crust. Chill until nearly firm.

Meanwhile, chill reserved gelatin until slightly thickened. Spoon a thin layer of thickened gelatin over nearly firm cheese layer. Arrange apple slices on top of pie. Spoon remaining thickened gelatin over apple slices. Garnish with whipped cream if desired.

Don't forget breakfast in your morning rush

CHICAGO — In the weekday morning rush of getting youngsters off to school and getting adults off to work, some Americans skip breakfast, which many nutritionists consider to be the most important meal of the day.

A breakfast of cereal and milk, fruit or juice, bread and spread can be prepared and eaten in a short time, and it can make such a difference in getting the day off to a nutritious start.

All breakfast cereals are made from grains, which are important sources of several B vitamins, iron, and complex carbohydrates. Today, 92 percent of all ready-to-eat cereals, except granola types, are nutritionally fortified, up from 20 percent a decade ago. A typical one-ounce serving of fortified ready-to-eat cereal provides 25 percent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance (U.S. RDA) of at least seven vitamins and frequently iron. Consumer research studies have established that about 95 percent of the time breakfast cereals complement the nutrients present in milk to help balance a nutritionally sound morning diet.

Starting the day with breakfast is a desirable habit that is valuable to teach children, and it's a good idea for health-conscious adults, too.

Vary the morning meal by substituting flavored yogurt, pudding, soft custard, ice milk or frozen yogurt as a cereal topper. Sprinkle with wheat germ, chopped nuts, raisins or toasted coconut. Accompany with a favorite juice or seasonal fruit for breakfast variety that takes just moments to prepare.

Add a welcome touch at the breakfast table by serving Yogurt-Wheat Wake-Up Bread, prepared with spoon-size shredded wheat biscuits. This hearty breakfast bread makes an excellent accompaniment to a favorite cereal and fruit. Prepare in advance as time allows, then slice to serve as needed. For a lightly sweet treat to serve alongside the cereal bowl, try Crunchy No-Bake Breakfast Bars prepared with oat or rice cereal and wheat germ to perk up morning appetites.

For additional breakfast ideas, plus recipes for quick breakfast breads with the goodness of cereal grains, write for free-of-charge leaflet: 5 Minute Menus, Suite 1331, 32 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

CRUNCHY NO-BAKE BREAKFAST BARS

- 5 cups O-shaped toasted oat cereal or oven-toasted rice cereal
- ½ cup finely chopped nuts, if desired
- ¼ cup wheat germ
- ⅓ cup butter
- ⅓ cup honey
- 3 tablespoons firmly packed brown sugar

Combine cereal, nuts and wheat germ in large bowl. Combine butter, honey and brown sugar in 2-quart saucepan. Bring to a full rolling boil over medium-high heat. Reduce heat; boil over medium heat 2 minutes. Immediately pour over cereal mixture, mixing until cereal is well coated. Press firmly into lightly greased 13 x 9-inch baking pan. Chill several hours or until firm. Cut into bars. Store in tightly covered container in refrigerator.

YOGURT-WHEAT WAKE-UP BREAD

- 1½ cups finely crushed spoon-size shredded wheat biscuits (about 2 cups cereal)
- 1 carton (8 ounces) plain yogurt
- ½ cup water
- 3 to 4 teaspoons grated orange peel
- ⅔ cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- ⅓ cup vegetable oil
- 2¼ cups flour
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- 1¼ teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon baking soda

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Combine cereal, yogurt, water and peel; mix well. Let stand a few minutes to soften cereal. Add sugar, eggs, and oil; mix well. Combine flour, baking powder, salt and soda. Add to cereal mixture, mixing just until dry ingredients are moistened. Spread into greased 9 x 5-inch loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees about 1 hour or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes; remove from pan. Cool completely on wire cooling rack. Makes 1 loaf.

Jazz history class planned

TWIN FALLS — Jazz history will be offered for the first time during the normal school year this semester at the College of Southern Idaho.

This unusual class has been taught only during the summer school session until now. The class will meet from noon to 12:50 p.m. on Monday and Friday for two credits. It is not necessary that students be able to read music or have had previous music classes to take jazz history.

Lawrence Curtis, head of the CSI Music Department who has had considerable jazz experience, will teach the course. To be covered will be ragtime, dixieland, big band, bebop, progressive, rock and roll, rhythm and blues from 1900 to present.

Registration is now taking place at CSI and classes start Jan. 12.

Twentieth Century Club to meet

TWIN FALLS — The Twentieth Century Club will meet at 1 p.m. Jan. 13 at the Turf Club.

The program for the luncheon meeting will be entitled "Austria in Review," with slides and music by Mrs. Camille Cox. Mrs. Nyal Hoffman will talk on safety.

Members who have not been contacted for reservations by Jan. 9 should call Mrs. Earl Haroldsen, 733-4481.

Blue Lakes group started project

TWIN FALLS — The Blue Lakes Business and Professional Women's Club instigated the program of clipping coupons that resulted in more than $1,000 for scholarships.

The Times-News story about the project incorrectly stated the Twin Falls Business and Professional Women's club was the project instigator.

The program is now being carried on as a community project by interested volunteers who clip the coupons and attach them to grocery shelf items asking the shoppers to pay full price for the coupon items and donate the discount to the scholarship fund.

More community volunteers are needed to help keep the coupon clipping and distributing going. Coupons are now being attached to grocery items at Smith's Food King store.

Poster girl announced

TWIN FALLS — The Street Commanders Car Club has announced the selection of Lora Medlock of Twin Falls as their "Poster Girl for 1981."

Medlock, 18, of Twin Falls and an employee of the Sandwich Syndicate, will officiate at the club's shows and other events and her picture will be featured on the club's flyers and advertisements, said club president Patrick Montgomery of Hagerman.

The Street Commanders is affiliated with the International Show Car Association and was organized in Idaho six years ago. The Idaho club now has about 175 members, Montgomery said. Medlock is the fourth annual poster girl.

Those interested in a membership may write Street Commanders Club, Rt. 1, Box 252, Hagerman, Idaho 83332. Dues are $20 a year.

Superb tasting DEL MONTE quality fruits. In an extra-light syrup with 50% less added sugar than regular canned fruits. And no artificial sweeteners.
Other "lite" or "juice pack" fruits are sweetened with pineapple, grape, or apple juices that confuse the fruit's own flavor. But the extra light syrup used in DEL MONTE Lite complements the fruit, so you taste more of the fruit's natural flavor.

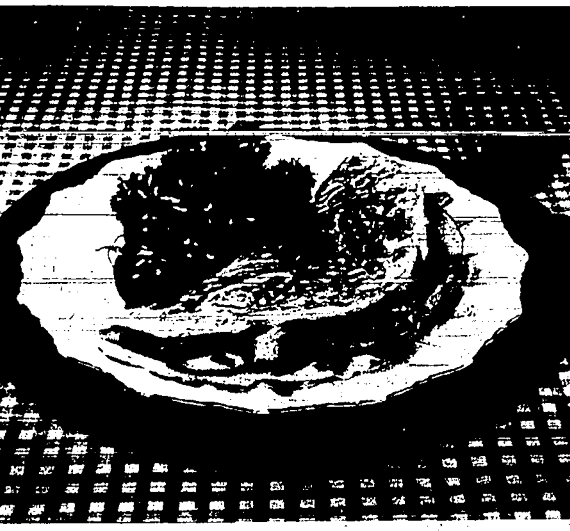
Stretch food costs by using eggs in these imaginative ways



WENT

Eggs, which are both nutritious and economical, can be used in a variety of ways

Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Few things in life are quite so simple as stretching your food dollar.

That's a broad statement. But, nothing in the home, especially in the kitchen, fares as well as eggs to make money-stretching easy.

Eggs can take on the truthful flavor of other foods and provide a tissue of invention around them. Depending on the way you use them, eggs make into dishes both rich and low in calories. And, you can rest assured that whatever you prepare with them will be nutritious and tasty masterpieces.

Here are a few new and old ideas for using the mealtime matchmakers — eggs — which, at the present time, are only about 7 or 8 cents apiece.

PERFECT OMELET

Make sure your eggs and filling ingredients are at room temperature (at least 70 degrees F.) before putting them into your pan for cooking.

- 1 tablespoon clarified butter (preferably sweet butter)
- 3 eggs

To clarify butter: In small saucepan, melt 1½ tablespoons butter; let stand until milky substance settles. Measure off clear butter from top and use for making your omelet.

To make omelet: In small bowl, beat eggs until well-mixed. In omelet pan, roll clarified butter over bottom and sides. Heat pan but do not let butter brown. Pour beaten eggs into pan. Move pan over heat forward, backward and sideways to spread eggs over bottom of pan. Then quickly circle a fork through eggs without scraping the bottom of the pan.

To fill omelet: Use ¾ cup sliced or chopped leftover meats, vegetables, fruits, or fresh mushrooms, cooked fish and seafood, creamed foods, shredded cheese, or anything else you might imagine. Put filling on upper half of omelet. Remove pan from heat. Sharply rap pan handle and flip omelet top half over other half to form a half-circle. Slide omelet out of pan onto hot plate. Serve immediately. Serves 2.

EGGS A LA KING

- 1 tablespoon margarine or butter
- 1 can (4 ounces) mushroom slices, drained
- 2 cans (10½ ounces each) cream of chicken soup
- 6 eggs, hard-cooked, shelled and cut into eighths
- ¼ cup chopped pimiento
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- toast pieces, steaming noodles or steaming rice

In skillet, heat margarine or butter. Add mushrooms and lightly brown. Stir in soup and heat thoroughly. Gently stir in eggs, pimento and parsley. Heat thoroughly, stirring gently. Serve on toast pieces, on steaming noodles or rice. Serve with green beans or a green salad. Makes 6 servings.

EXTRA SPECIAL SCRAMBLED-EGG SANDWICHES

- 2 tablespoons margarine or butter
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- 2 tablespoons minced green pepper
- 6 eggs
- ½ teaspoon salt
- pinch white pepper
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- ½ cup light cream
- 2 tablespoons minced parsley
- fresh or toasted bread for 4 sandwiches

In skillet, heat margarine or butter. Add onion and green pepper and lightly brown. In mixing bowl, beat eggs with salt, pepper and mustard. When well-blended, beat in light cream and parsley. Pour into skillet and cook over very low heat, stirring often, until eggs are barely set. Use egg mixture as filling for 4 sandwiches. Serve with carrot and celery sticks and/or cherry tomatoes for a complete meal.

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS: Milk took another price jump Monday and is expected to undergo another price hike sometime soon. Cheese fanciers might consider purchasing quantities of long-keeping hard cheeses as a hedge against ever-increasing dairy costs.

Coffee costs slip slowly downward. Rumor is strong that pop prices may come down a bit, since the pop industry doesn't like to jump prices every time sugar does. The pop industry sticks to a stable image, gauging itself for few price changes per year.

Cheaper cucumbers may help post-holiday dieters stay true to their resolutions. That so many begin the year resolving to lose weight reflects in bakery sales — always the slowest of the year.

Even for the most finicky eater

Food can be fun if children allowed to help in meal preparation and planning

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Food can be fun — even for finicky folks.

Many youngsters ease into good eating habits but, as harassed mothers know, there are always a few of those who continually balk at meals which hold no appeal for them. The familiar adage, "eat it because it's good for you" (not always recommended by psychologists), isn't that necessary when you have other means of solving the problem.

Here's one.

Involve your little ones in meal planning and preparation. Children get great enjoyment out of eating something they've helped prepare. And doctors tell us there are ways to serve youngsters a variety of nutritious foods so they will learn to eat just about everything including all kinds of vegetables.

Have the children "Create a Plate With Tuna."

Since canned tuna is such good nutrition (vitamins, minerals and complete protein), it makes good sense to use it as the basis of these creations!

While you're setting out a variety of yummy edibles, such as cheeses, vegetables, fruits, nuts, breads, and crackers, along with the tuna and a few condiments, you can be talking up each food's nutritional components. When everything's on the table, tell the children to use their imagination to design a kind of picture-plate with foods of different colors and textures.

Everyone can have fun getting into the act. And they'll probably learn to appreciate what goes into preparing a good meal, thanks to your nutrition basics, as well as develop a sense of adventure about tasting new foods.

Need some suggestions for starters?

Show the kids how to make the star-shaped Tuna Puzzler Salad, as a sample. (Start the guessing game going by asking if they can guess what's in it.) Another time, you can fix the Tuna Kitten with its raisin eyes. Or the Tuna Bird's Nest with mini tuna-and-cream cheese "eggs."

Youngsters love this kind of activity and their list of food favorites is sure to grow.

TUNA PUZZLER SALAD

- 1 can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna, drained and flaked
- ½ cup grated, pared apple
- ⅓ cup chopped walnuts
- ¼ cup low fat yogurt
- ¼ cup raisins
- 1 tablespoon chopped scallion
- 1 large carrot, cut into 30 ½-inch matchstick pieces
- ¼ pound fresh green beans, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 1 small green pepper, diced
- 1 small red pepper, diced
- 4 cherry tomatoes, cut in half
- ¼ cup potato salad

In a medium bowl, combine tuna, apple, walnuts, yogurt, raisins, and scallion; mix well. On a salad plate, using 10 carrot sticks, form a five-pointed star; repeat with remaining carrot sticks. Using an ice cream scoop, place a scoop of tuna salad in the center of each star. Fill each star point with one of the following ingredients; green beans, green pepper, red pepper, tomatoes, and potato salad. Serve with Italian salad dressing. Yield: 3 servings.

TUNA KITTEN

- 2 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil or water, drained and flaked
- 3 hard cooked eggs, chopped
- ¼ cup low fat yogurt
- ⅓ cup chopped celery
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 2 tablespoons sweet pickle relish
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 small green pepper
- 1 small zucchini
- 8 raisins

In medium bowl, combine tuna, eggs, yogurt, celery, parsley, relish and lemon juice; mix well. Divide mixture into 4 portions. On individual salad plates, shape each portion into a patty 4 inches in diameter. Cut green pepper into 8 small triangles, about 1½ inches long. Using outside skin of zucchini cut 24 matchstick pieces, about 2 inches long. Assemble cat faces using green pepper for ears and bow tie, zucchini sticks as whiskers and raisins for eyes. Yield: 4 servings.

TUNA BIRD'S NEST

- 2 cans (6½ or 7 ounces ach) tuna, drained and flaked
- 1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
- ½ cup chopped celery
- ⅓ cup sunflower seeds
- ¼ teaspoon dried dill
- 2 packages (4 ounces each) alfalfa sprouts or shredded lettuce (3 cups)
- ⅓ cup shredded carrot

In a medium bowl, combine tuna, cream cheese, celery, sunflower seeds, and dill; mix well. Shape mixture into 18 small egg shapes. Combine alfalfa sprouts and carrot. Divide sprout mixture into 6 equal portions. Place each portion in the center of a small plate and form a well in the center. Place three tuna "egg" in center of each "nest." Yield: 6 servings.

Children will enjoy preparing foods as these tuna creations

Calories from fast food add up quickly

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Everybody knows fast foods tend to be fatty foods.

Now a government laboratory analysis shows just how fatty some of them are. Researchers using samples from three national burger chain outlets in the Beltsville, Md., area found the percentage of calories from fat ranged from a low of 21 percent in one brand of chocolate shake to a high of 75 percent for scrambled eggs from the same outlet.

On a list of 51 items, 34 got 40 percent or more of their calories from fat; 11 of those, 50-75 percent of their calories from fat. None of the figures include condiments, which lab tests showed can add substantially to the total calorie count.

For instance, the lab found the amount of mayonnaise normally added to a Burger King Whopper contained 159 calories; the amount of special sauce in a Big Mac, 105 calories; and the tartar sauce in a Burger Chef Skippers Treat, 81 calories.

The study was done for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Science and Education Administration and supervised by research chemist Hal T. Slover at the USDA's Human Nutrition Research Center laboratory in Beltsville, Md.

Slover said the three chains selected were chosen because their products are similar and because together they provide an estimated 1 percent of all the food eaten in the United States.

In a telephone interview, Slover said the study was "very limited" because the center's staff and budget wasn't big enough to handle a larger project.

The study focused on the kinds and amounts of fat in fast foods and beverages, he said, because both nutritionists and consumers are highly interested in food fats.

Although potatoes contain no cholesterol and extremely small amounts of fat, researchers found a french fry serving from any of the three outlets contained 12 to 13 milligrams of cholesterol, indicating use of animal fat for deep frying. Almost 50 percent of the calories in the fries came from fat.

While fish and fish products tend to be low in fat and cholesterol count, the study found 602 calories, half of them from fat, in a BK Whaler with cheese; 470 calories, 46 percent of them from fat, in a plain BK Whaler; 447 calories, 48 percent from fat, in an MD Filet-O-Fish; and 356 calories, 39 percent of them from fat, in a BC Skipper's Treat. All figures are for unadorned sandwiches. Condiments, as noted, can increase the calorie and fat count substantially.

Don't let post holiday blues get you down, try skillet dinner

A perfect meal-in-a-skillet post-holiday dinner uses leftover turkey, pilaf-style rice

ENGLEWOOD CLIFFS, N.J. — The days following the holidays are often a letdown for the entire family.

Everyone in the household has probably been busy running around for weeks, gathering gifts and special foods for the traditional yuletide celebration. Now the presents have been opened and the surprises are over . . . the decorations have begun to fade . . . the feasting is over. Or is it?

And, there leftovers from that big turkey you served? A great dish for using some of those leftovers is "Christmas Past Skillet Dinner."

Your family will delight in this delicious combination of pilaf-style rice, made with an envelope of noodle soup mix with real chicken broth; chopped buttery-tasting avocado, so plentiful this time of year; crunchy whole almonds (possibly left over from your holiday baking); and, of course, your leftover cooked turkey. The noodle soup mix not only adds tender egg noodles and rich chicken flavor to the rice, but it also perfectly seasons the entire dish conveniently without additional measuring or chopping. That means dinner is ready in 30 minutes.

CHRISTMAS PAST SKILLET DINNER

1 medium avocado
Lemon juice
1 envelope noodle soup mix with real chicken broth
3 cups water
1 cup uncooked regular rice
2 cups cut-up cooked turkey or chicken
¼ cup whole almonds
Pimiento

Chop ½ avocado; cut remaining into 6 wedges. Brush wedges with lemon juice and reserve.

In medium skillet, combine noodle soup mix with real chicken broth, water and rice; bring to a boil, then simmer covered 15 minutes. Add turkey and simmer an additional five minutes or until heated through; stir in chopped avocado and almonds. Garnish with reserved avocado slices and pimiento. Makes about four servings.

James, Elizabeth still ahead

LONDON (UPI) — The clear and outright winners for 1980 — James and Elizabeth, again.

In second place for boys, leaping from sixth, was Alexander and for girls, up from eighth place, Louise.

As she has done every year for as long as anyone can remember, Margaret Brown of York kept a yearlong tally of all 4,446 births announced in the London Times and tabulated the names the babies were given.

James, she found, was the top boy's name "for the 17th year in succession." Elizabeth stayed in first place for girls "throughout the Queen Mother's 80th birthday year."

Two names "which gained favor as first names," she wrote in her annual letter to the Times Monday, "were Eleanor and Peter."

Mrs. Brown, noting that "the majority of the currently most popular Christian names have been in use in England fom the early middle ages," listed these most popular girl's names, in descending order:

Elizabeth, Louise, Jane, Mary, Sarah, Alice, Clare, Victoria, Katherine and Alexandra.

Now's the time for soups which make a meal

Colonial Bean Soup is a main dish which can be quickly made with convenience foods

CAMDEN, N.J. — Wintertime is the time for hot soups that are laden with vegetables and meats or seafoods in generous bites.

Winter-quickened appetites expect foods that are filling but not heavy. And one of the best examples is a main-dish soup.

How many times have you said, or heard someone say: "I could make a meal of this soup"? Well, let's.

Preparing soup today is no longer a two-day ritual or start-from-scratch procedure. To shorten cooking time by hours and to simplify the method, it's possible to open a can or two of condensed soup and combine with other ingredients. The result is a soup that tastes homemade and really is created at home.

A typical main-dish soup is thickly garnished and satisfying enough to stand alone at the dinner table. Served by candlelight in warmed bowls, Colonial Bean Soup has cubes of meat, thin strands of fresh cabbage and cut green beans. Two cans of condensed bean with bacon soup assure robust flavor and swiftness in preparation.

Tomato Tonnato Soup is an imaginative mix that begins with rich-flavored condensed tomato rice soup. Tuna and golden kernels of corn are the principal ingredients. Flavor is tuned with a diced green pepper, minced garlic, and chili powder cooked in butter to release their full goodness and aroma. When the pepper is tender, stir in the other ingredients. Heat for just a few minutes and serve it temptingly steamy.

New England and Virginia join hands in Ham and Clam Chowder. Cubes of cooked ham, sliced celery and dill are sauteed in a generous pot. The remaining ingredients are stirred in, and they include condensed New England clam chowder, milk, cooked mixed vegetables, chopped parsley and a good grind of pepper. Heated through, it may be served immediately.

Two of these main-dish soups are ready to be eaten as soon as they are mixed and heated. The other requires only 10 minutes of simmering to cook the cabbage and frozen green beans. And what a nice way to use leftover meat or vegetables so no one will guess they're passed this way before!

COLONIAL BEAN SOUP

1½ cups diced cooked beef
½ cup chopped onion
½ teaspoon paprika
Generous dash cayenne pepper
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cans (11½ ounces each) condensed bean with bacon soup
2 soup cans water
1½ cups cabbage cut in long thin shreds
1 package (9 ounces) frozen cut green beans

In saucepan, brown beef and cook onion with seasonings in butter until tender. Stir in soup; gradually blend in water. Add cabbage and beans. Bring to boil; reduce heat. Simmer 10 minutes or until done. Stir occasionally. Makes about 7½ cups, four servings.

TOMATO TONNATO SOUP

2 medium cloves garlic, minced
1 tablespoon chili powder
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cans (11 ounces each) condensed tomato rice soup
1½ soup cans water
2 cans (about 7 ounces each) tuna, drained and flaked
1 can (about 8 ounces) whole kernel golden corn, undrained

In saucepan, cook green pepper with garlic and chili powder in butter until tender. Stir in remaining ingredients. Heat; stir occasionally. Makes about 7 cups, four servings.

HAM AND CLAM CHOWDER

1½ cups cubed cooked ham
½ cup sliced celery
¼ teaspoon dried dill weed, crushed
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 cans (10¾ ounces each) condensed New England clam chowder
2 soup cans water
1 cup cooked mixed vegetables
¼ cup chopped parsley
⅛ teaspoon pepper

In saucepan, brown ham and cook celery with dill in butter until tender. Stir in remaining ingredients. Heat; stir occasionally. Makes about 7 cups, four servings.

Loud enough

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Early reports on experiments sponsored by a federal agency support the common belief that properly installed smoke detectors are loud enough to arouse most sleepers.

Dr. E. Harris Nober says initial tests with 18- to 29-year-old volunteers in their own bedrooms showed home smoke detectors to be effective in awakening sleepers even at 55 decibels. That's about the sound level which reaches a sleeper from a smoke detector alarm in the hallway just outside his bedroom door.

Burley youth selected for week in Washington

By LINDA CATES
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A Burley senior is one of two Idaho youths who will travel to Washington, D.C., at the end of January to spend a week among the nation's lawmakers.

Winners in a U.S. Senate Youth Program sponsored by the William Randolph Hearst Foundation is Lee Schafer, 17, the son of Derald and Charlotte Schafer of Burley.

Schafer will begin his week of activities on Jan. 31. Meetings with such dignitaries as the secretary of state, members of the Supreme Court, senators, and possibly the president and vice president are tentatively planned.

Schafer also received a $1,500 scholarship.

Competing on a local level and then on a state level, Schafer was among the top 25 winners in a preliminary contest. He won the second level of the contest by completing a test on government and current events and writing a 300-word essay on civil liberties.

As one of six finalists, Schafer went to the state capitol where he was interviewed by a panel selected by the State Department of Education.

An Oakley High School student, Mike Woodhouse, was chosen as an alternate.

Achiever of a 3.95 grade average, Schafer is student body president at Burley High School. He belongs to the National Honor Society and the Letterman Club.

Schafer finds physics and trigonometry "not that difficult," and likes the challenge of advanced composition. "I have to work at it," he said. "It doesn't come easy."

Schafer is looking forward to his trip to Washington, D.C.

Dear Abby

'Marriage Encounter' revitalizes stale, dull marriages

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Many letters in your column deal with marital problems that seem to be caused by lack of communication. We'd like to suggest an inexpensive, practical and loving way to learn to communicate. The experience is called "Marriage Encounter."

During the last 12 years, over a million couples have gone on a "weekend," as it is called. It lasts from Friday through Sunday afternoon. A six to eight-member husband and wife team that includes either a rabbi and his spouse, a minister and his spouse, or a priest, presents a series of talks on how to restore life, excitement, love and trust as well as honesty and openness to a marriage.

Abby, the world offers instant divorce as a solution to the problems of communication and commitment. Marriage Encounter showed us a doorway to happiness that we thought was found only in fairy tales.

—JON AND MARY, MONTCLAIR, N J

DEAR JON AND MARY: I have had sufficient reports in praise of Marriage Encounter to know that it's well worth recommending. Age is not a factor. Couples who have been married 30 years and longer have benefited along with those in their 20s.

It is not a cure for deeply troubled marriages — it's a revitalization for marriages that have become stale, unromantic or dull.

For details, contact the church of your choice.

DEAR ABBY: In regard to the woman whose husband makes love with his socks on: When my husband and I were first married, he would frequently come home for lunch to satisfy his appetite (and mine), which, I confess, was not restricted exclusively to food. He had only an hour, so he never had time to take his socks off. It got to be a standing joke with us.

Now 11 years and three children later, nothing has changed. Who has time to bother with socks? Besides, impromptu rendezvous are usually the best.

—SOCK IT TO ME IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR SOCK: On the other hand (or foot), to some, anticipation is more enjoyable than realization.

DEAR ABBY: We've been going round and round about something at our house, and you've been elected to settle it. Our 17-year-old daughter is going with a very nice 18-year-old. Rick is polite and respectful, and not wild like some, but, Abby, his jeans are so tight it is downright indecent! It is embarrassing for me to look at him. My husband agrees with me that something should be left to the imagination.

We told our daughter to tell Rick to get a larger size, but she says there's nothing wrong with tight jeans — all the kids wear them that way. Do they? And are we square to be offended? What should we do?

—TWO OLD SQUARES

DEAR SQUARES: Tight jeans are in, but when nothing is left to the imagination, they are offensive. And if you're square, I'm in all four of your corners.

Service news

FILER — Navy Fireman Steven G. Jones, son of Geraldine M. Anderson of Filer, has returned from a deployment in the Indian Ocean.

Jones, a Navy boiler technician, is a crewmember aboard the aircraft carrier USS Midway, operating from Yokosuka, Japan.

During the six month deployment just completed, the ship and its permanently embarked airwing steamed more than 41,000 miles, spending 106 days at sea. This was the Midway's second Indian Ocean cruise this year.

Crewmembers aboard the Midway visited the East Africa port of Mombasa, Kenya and Subic Bay, Republic of the Philippines. Jones joined the U.S. Navy in May of 1979.

BUHL — Airman Dale A. Harvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Harvey of Buhl, has been assigned Chanute Air Force Base, Ill. following completion of Air Force basic training.

He completed the six-weeks training at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas and studied the standard Air Force subjects with special training in human relations. He also earned credits toward a degree through the Community College of the Air Force. In his new assignment he will receive specialized training in the missile maintenance field.

KIMBERLY — Michael K. Jensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Meldon K. Jensen of Kimberly, has been promoted in the U.S. Army to the rank of Specialist 4.

He is a strategic microwave repairman at Camp Darby in Italy.

BURLEY — Pvt. Joseph L. Belt, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Belt of Burley, recently completed one station unit training at the U.S. Army infantry school at Ft. Benning, Ga.

This is a 12-week course that combines basic combat training and advanced individual training. Included in Pvt. Belt's schedule were studies in weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications and combat operations.

HANSEN — Airman Lonnie B. Belieu, son of Mary A. Belieu of Hansen, has completed Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas.

The airman will remain at Lackland for specialized training in the security police field. In his basic training, Airman Belieu studied basic Air Force topics with specialized training in human relations. He also earned credits toward an associate degree at the Community College of the air base.

Test identifies carriers for cystic fibrosis

BOSTON (UPI) — Doctors say they have developed a reliable test to determine which people carry the gene that causes cystic fibrosis, a hereditary disease which kills thousands of children each year.

Writing in the New England Journal of Medicine, the team of physcians at Children's Hospital in Boston said the test may help reduce the number of cases of the crippling disease by alerting prospective parents to the danger their offspring might face.

It is estimated one out of 20 Americans are carriers of the cystic fibrosis gene, but both parents must carry the trait for a child to be born with the disease.

Cystic fibrosis, which fills the lungs with fluid and also attacks the pancreas and other organs, is found in one out of every 1,600 live births and is the most common genetic disease among whites.

Victims rarely live beyond the age of 19.

The researchers said the new test involves treating samples of skin cells with the drug ouabin. In normal persons, sodium levels in the cells were significantly elevated by the drug. But the doctors said the cells of parents of CF victims showed little change.

In addition to alerting CF carriers, the article said the test may also give doctors a better understanding of the abnormal operation of the lungs and digestive tract in CF victims.

Lower thermostat

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — A Cornell University professor has figured out just how much lower you can set the thermostat when you dress for warmth indoors.

Jean McLean says a man who wears a jacket over his shirt and tie will be as comfortable at 56 degrees F as he previously was at 69 degrees. Replacing a summer-weight jacket with a winter-weight one allows for lowering the thermostat 2.5 degrees without loss of comfort, the professor says.

Convection oven sales zooming

By DORSEY CONNORS
©Chicago Sun-Times

Saving time and energy are prerequisites to the efficient lifestyle of the American homemaker. Consequently, sales of convection ovens are zooming.

Convection cooking has been around for a long time. Many top restaurants have employed this method of oven cooking by the circulation of hot air. But it is only in recent years that convection ovens have been built for home use.

Every convection oven has a fan. The circulating hot air cuts the cooking time and enhances the flavor of the food. With the introduction of portable convection ovens (which do not have to be vented), this method of cooking is available to fit the needs of any family, small or large.

According to Caroline Kriz, in her best-selling book "Convection Cookery" (101 Productions, $5.95), portable convection ovens "save cooking time due to their efficient heating; they make work easier because the natural searing action means we don't have to baste or tend most foods, and they are, for the most part, designed for easy care."

Kriz advocates buying a countertop convection oven if you wish to add another oven to your kitchen without the expense of remodeling or installing another built-in oven, or if you need an oven that can be moved easily for "special duty" into the family room for a teen-age party or to a neighbor's house for a "gourmet" dinner participation.

In "Convection Cookery," Kriz gives some valuable tips on buying a countertop convection oven.

• Consider the way you cook and try to match the oven to your style. If you do a lot of broiling, an oven that offers both convecting and standard broiling may be your choice. If speed is important to you, check out the convection-microwave combinations. If your primary interest is roasting and baking, a single function convection oven will suit your needs.

• Look for a store that has a demonstrator model set up. Open and close the oven door, slide the racks in and out, turn the knobs, and try to pick it up to ascertain its weight. Don't be bashful when shopping for any appliance.

• Styling should not be the primary reason for selecting an oven, but remember that the convection oven will sit on the countertop and not behind closed doors. Try to find one that blends into the decor of your kitchen.

Consent law on abortion is criticized

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International

NEW YORK — Most teen-agers who get abortions or use birth control tell at least one parent about it but parental consent laws could change all that, a report funded by the Rockefeller Foundation said Monday.

The report, based on two surveys, cautioned enactment of mandatory parental consent laws by the states could result in many thousands more unwanted births and illegal abortions among teen-agers.

The report's chief author, Jacqueline Darroch Forrest, director of research at the Alan Guttmacher Institute — an affiliate of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, estimated the parental consent laws would mean:

•Some 33,000 more unwanted pregnancies among teen-agers now practicing effective contraception.

•Some 42,000 teen-agers now obtaining legal abortions would turn to illegal practitioners or have unwanted births.

Forrest and associates first surveyed 2,540 family planning agencies that run about 5,000 clinics, 2,110 hospitals and freestanding clinics that provide abortion services. In a second survey they contacted nearly 2,400 clinic patients under 18 to find out how many let parents in on their birth control practices.

In the first survey, the investigators found 44 percent of abortion facilities have parental consent or notification requirements for patients 15 or younger; 30 percent for all patients under 18.

Other highlights from the report in the current "Family Planning Perspectives," Alan Guttmacher Institute journal:

•Family planning agencies are much less likely than abortion providers to require parental consent or notification before serving teen-agers. Only 20 percent do not provide medical contraceptive services to patients 15 or younger without parental consent — even though it is not required by law.

•About half the providers sometimes waive the requirement to deal with individual situations.

•Of the young teen-agers surveyed more than half had talked with parents about going to a family planning or abortion clinic. In most cases they did so voluntarily. In fact, many were visiting the clinic at their parents' suggestion.

Recreation district gets courthouse reprieve

by BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

JEROME — A decision to evict the Jerome Recreation District from the county courthouse was reversed Monday.

The eviction had been proposed Dec. 1 because of increased county office needs combined with the fact that the recreation district is a taxing district separate from the county government.

Several county offices have requested expanded space plus new offices are planned for the county prosecutor and public defender.

However, recreation district Director Michael Pepper requested the commissioners to rent the JRD office space for at least six months.

"Mainly what we need is time to find out whether we'll receive an expansion grant we've applied for before we commit to any move or major expenditure of money," Pepper explained.

The JRD directors have applied for a federal-matching-funds grant to construct a new office and playing fields.

In response to Pepper's request, the Jerome County Commissioners accepted the rental agreement Monday and will permit the JRD to continue operations from its courthouse basement office. According to Commissioner Henry Schutte, some juggling of office space is still possible in the courthouse, resulting in the JRD retaining its office at least temporarily.

Commissioners unanimously agreed, however, that regular county business takes priority over the JRD in alloting office space.

"We settled on a rent figure of $180, payable each month for a six-month trial period beginning this month," Pepper explained Tuesday. "However, this agreement will be reviewed at the end of the first four months."

Prior to this agreement, the JRD paid no rent for the courthouse office space.

About $80,000 in tax revenue is targeted for the JRD for the 1980-81 fiscal year. During 1980, the group sponsored 187 recreational programs varing from city-league softball to beginning sign language classes. About 200 recreational and fitness programs are planned for 1981.

In addition to the JRD's own office space shortage, Pepper told the county commissioners the increasing use of Jerome public school facilities is beginning to limit recreation district programming. Most of the JRD's offerings are held at Jerome schools during evening hours.

In reponse to both of these problems, the JRD is seeking a federal grant through the Idaho Parks and Recreation Department to purchase about 20 acres in Jerome for baseball fields, basketball courts, soccer fields and a central office. If approved this year, this grant would require the JRD to match the grant with an equal amount of money.

"We don't know for sure when we'll hear on grant acceptance, but it should be soon, possibly even by next week," Pepper said.

The JRD's grant request is ranked third in priority in the state by the Idaho Parks and Recreation Department. The state agency has received its allotment of federal aid and Pepper believes the JRD has "an excellent chance" of receiving the money."

No cost estimate of the recreation complex has been released. Pepper added that although a construction site has been selected, it won't be revealed until after the grant is approved.

If the grant application is rejected, the JRD could open an office in the old Jerome Depot Senior Citizens' Center on First Avenue East, according to JRD board member Dan Forsyth. However, the cost for remodeling office space in the building has been estimated at $9,000 to $12,000, a cost the JRD board of directors feels is too high.

Say ahh for the doctor

No one enjoys visiting the doctor, including this cow being given a check-up Tuesday morning at the Jerome stock yards. Dr. L.V. Ruebel takes a blood sample in order to check for Bang's disease, or Brucellosis, a bacteria which can infect pregnant cattle. All animals coming into the stock yards must be thoroughly examined before they can be sold.

Runway project is 'go'

County, state agree on grant

JEROME — Jerome County and Idaho have finalized a grant agreement for construction of a new Jerome County Airport runway.

The existing 3,380-foot-long runway doesn't meet Federal Aviation Administration stands for length or location. Consequently, construction of a new runway at Jerome is one of the FAA's top 1981 goals in Idaho.

Monday, Jerome County Commissioners approved a 50-50 payment agreement with the state for designing the new runway. The design study by J-U-B Engineers of Twin Falls began last November at an estimated cost of $29,525. This cost will be equally shared by the state and county governments, according to the state grant agreement signed Monday.

However, federal aid from the FAA won't be available until the design phase is completed, according to J-U-B Engineer Lillian Bowen.

The proposed 5,200-foot-long runway will cost about $600,000, including design, construction and federal inspection costs. Jerome County will be responsible for about 5 percent of this total cost, Bowen said.

The existing runway is too close to airport buildings and parked aircraft. The new runway will be located 200 feet north of the existing strip, which will eventually be used only as a taxiway.

The runway also is too short for altitude and temperature conditions in Jerome County, the FAA says.

"We have all the surveying started and the design plan will be completed by March," Bowen said, adding that the runway design plan is about half finished.

The major hangup for the new runway, however, exists in the U.S. Congress, according to Bowen. Approval of the federal grant to build the runway lies in Congressional approval of the 1981 FAA appropriations bill.

"We're hoping the bill will be passed right away as soon as the Congress gets underway again," Bowen said.

If this occurs sometime in January, Bowen expects the federal aid for the Jerome County Airport to be approved in May or June.

"After that we'll have to advertise for 15 days and then construction can begin," Bowen said.

"The best thing in our favor is the fact that FAA officials are saying the Jerome Airport is a high priority for them," Bowen said. "That's always a good sign when it comes to getting funding approval."

Revenue sharing funds now in hand

County lifts spending freeze, okays ambulance fee hike

JEROME — A partial spending freeze was lifted and an ambulance service fee increase was approved Monday by Jerome County Commissioners.

Last fall the commissioners placed a temporary spending freeze on new federal revenue sharing funds until the group was certain the funds would be available from the state.

About $100,000 in revenue sharing funds was originally anticipated in the 1980-81 Jerome County operating budget. Because of uncertain state distribution of revenue sharing monies, however, the commissioners agreed to hold off spending any money from this fund until certain the funding would be available, according to Commission Chairman Mel Grindstaff.

Late last month, the Idaho Tax Commission assured Jerome County officials that about $114,000 in revenue sharing funds would be given to the county.

"Now that we know the funds will be there, we can use some of this money in our various budgets or for additional county improvements," Grindstaff said Tuesday.

"We haven't tagged any of the money for any particular use at this time," Grindstaff explained.

In other action county commissioners approved a $10-per-call fee increase for the Jerome Ambulance Service. The basic charge for ambulance service in Jerome County had been $40, but the $50 fee became effective Monday.

According to ambulance operator Gerald Ostler, the basic fee is charged in addition to a $1.50-per-mile rate and any materials used during the service run. Call fees for ambulance serices in other Magic Valley counties range from $40 to $75.

Ostler told the county commissioners the fee increase was needed primarily to cover increasing medical supply and vehicle maintenance costs.

The Jerome Ambulance Service operates two vehicles and employs five medical technicians.

Commissioners also approved two Comprehensive Employment Training Act positions for the remainder of the 1980-81 fiscal year.

A $600-per-month salary was approved for an appraiser trainee along with a $550-per-month salary for a sheriff's dispatcher. According to County Clerk Glenda Belk, both CETA positions expire Sept. 30.

Under the CETA program, the county will be reimbursed for the trainee salaries.

Interpretation of the law still in doubt

Jerome still seeking EPA direction on toxic waste rules

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

JEROME — Work continued Monday to bring Jerome County in line with federal toxic waste disposal standards.

Development of a county-wide disposal program appears to be a guessing game at this time, however, since the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency hasn't identified all the guidelines.

"Currently the EPA is considering allowing one inch of residue left inside one of these pesticide canisters, but they're having trouble actually agreeing on this or some other requirement," South-Central Health Department Environmentalist Bill Allred said Tuesday.

As part of a 1985 nationwide deadline for sanitary landfill reform, counties also are being requested to adopt guidelines for toxic waste disposal. This can include both local dump sites and programs to ship the material to commercial disposal facilities.

The EPA has adopted two lists of classified materials, one allowing up to 1,000 kilograms of material remaining in discarded barrels while the other group of hazardous chemicals is permitted only 100 kilograms of waste per canister.

Despite these disposal standards, EPA officials are having difficulty in adopting a uniform procedure for enforcing these maximum levels of waste, according to Allred.

"The whole (agricultural pesticide) industry is up in the air about this because the EPA hasn't made its interpretation of the law," Allred said.

"Basically what we're looking at in the Jerome (County) area is allowing disposal of the five-gallon pesticide containers at our landfill while having really hazardous wastes transported out of the county," Allred said.

The primary disposal problem in Jerome County involves pesticide users not adequately flushing the chemicals from their canisters before disposal.

"Then again, there are a lot of abandoned cans being thrown into barrow pits," Allred said. "It's one of those out-of-site-out-of-mind type of ideas."

"We'd like to see those canisters make it to the landfill where they can be disposed of properly," Allred continued.

Proper disposal means flushing the five-gallon pesticide canisters three times and then puncturing them.

"This allows the landfill operator to see that nothing much remains in the canister while preventing its reuse for something else," Allred explained.

"Even with multiple flushings there is no way you can remove all of the chemical," Allred stressed.

Jerome County Commission Chairman Mel Grindstaff believes the EPA standards, once finalized, will be easy for the county to meet.

"All we need to do is outline a procedure that meets the requirements," Grindstaff said.

"Bill (Allred) said if we'd designate a special pit for these toxic wastes at our landfill and provide a place for farmers to drain their (pesticide) drums, that's all we really should have to do," Grindstaff said.

Almost all pesticides and herbicides used in Jerome County are relatively harmless to humans.

Any higly dangerous materials would still have to be transported out of Jerome County, possibly to a commercial dumping site near Grand View.

Allred said it would be too costly for Jerome County to try to license a hazardous waste site of its own, and little need for this type of disposal exists.

"The soil at our landfill (five miles east of Jerome) is a fairly silty, clay-like material so I personally don't think water would go very far from there," Allred said.

"However, if you were considering disposing hazardous waste there you'd need a comprehensive engineering study of the site," Allred added.

According to CENEX chemical representative Doug Newbold of Full Circle Inc., Jerome, "The main problem for us here in Jerome County is an economic one."

Newbold said if Jerome County officials don't adopt a disposal plan in compliance with EPA orders, the federal government could order the wastes to be trucked out of state for proper containment.

"The only people affected by this will be the farmers because they'll end up paying higher prices to cover the cost of this disposal," Newbold said.

Newbold, who has a bachelor's degree in conservation, agreed that the county's existing landfill would probably offer soil characteristics and isolation to allow safe leaching of any low-toxicity waste chemicals used by most local farmers.

Dietrich on top in Northside

The Dietrich Blue Devils — both the boys and girls teams — have moved into the No. 1 positions of the Northside Conference basketball races.

Coach Kelly Murphey has his group standing at the top of the boys race with a 1-0 slate — just one game ahead of second place Carey which stands at 1-1. The Blue Devils have an 8-1 overall mark.

The only real tough opponent the Blue Devils have faced this year — with the exception of thier 64-56 loss to the Twin Falls juniors — is the flu.

"Right now we're doing fairly well, except that we're having a heck of a time with the flu," Murphey said. "I don't know how to describe it, but it's rough on the kids and they have to play that way. After the last couple games, we had kids in the locker room vomiting. I don't know how they do it."

Leading the Blue Devils in scoring is 6-½ junior Kalen Robbins and 5-11 senior Tracy Perron. Perron is averaging around 20 points per game while Robbins is adding 18 more. Alvin Fowers, a 6-3 senior, is leading the squad in the rebound department. He is grabbing at least 20 boards per game, according to Murphey.

Behind Dietrich and Carey in the boys' race is Richfield at 1-1 and Gooding State at 1-2. Bliss and Camas County haven't played a conference game yet this season.

"I think hustle is the main reason for our success," Murphey said. "The kids act like they really want to play when they get on the court. Their attitude is good and the final score usually shows that."

Although the boys hold a rather small lead, the girls are running away with their conference race.

They have a 3-0 mark in the Northside Conference, well ahead of Richfield's 1-1. Carey stands at 0-2 and Camas County is at 0-1.

"We're playing good ball right now," said Dietrich skipper Marcia Bellmont. "We've won all our games and we have a good lead in the conference so I couldn't ask for much more. I just hope we continue to improve like we have been since the beginning of the season."

The Blue Devils have defeated Hagerman, Camas County and Carey and Hansen twice. They take on Richfield Thursday night in a crucial conference game at Richfield.

Briefly in sports

Draft to start Jerome youth league

JEROME — The 1980 Jerome youth basketball program starts with a player draft Saturday at the Jerome High School.

Leagues will be formed for both boys and girls. Boys in grades second through ninth and girls in grades fifth through ninth will be eligable to participate.

The draft will begin with boys in the Pee Wee League (second through fourth grade) at 10 a.m. Little League boys (fifth and sixth grades) will enter their names into the draft at 11 a.m. and Youth League boys (seventh through ninth grades) will go at noon. All girls will go through the draft at 1 p.m.

Any player who does not attend the draft or contact the Jerome Recreation District prior to it, will be placed on a team having the least amount of players at the time they sign up.

All games will be played Saturdays at Jerome High School. Specific game times will be available from each coach of the recreation office.

The fee for the program is $5 per player. The money includes a T-shirt and insurance.

Also, coaches are needed in all leagues. Anyone interested in taking on a team should contact the Jerome Recreation district office at 324-3389 or stop by the office in the basement of the courthouse.

Classes offered to Jerome youngsters

JEROME — Jerome youngsters in grades five through eight can now sign up for the January session of tumbling.

The class, which will be taught by Fred Gorton, will meet each Monday and Wednesday evenings for six weeks. Twelve sessions will be taught.

Students will learn cartwheels, rolls, headstands and many other stunts which will improve flexability and develop balance, according to Gorton.

The fee is $1 per student and pre-registration is required. The class will be limited to 30 students.

For more information call the Jerome Recreation District at 324-3389 or stop by the offfice in the basement of the courthouse.

Austrians dominate four-hill ski jump

BISCHOFSHOFEN, Austria (UPI) — Austrian ski jumpers took most of the top honors in the last event of the annual four-hill competition Tuesday and finished 1-2 in both the individual and overall standings.

Armin Kogler, the reigning world ski jump champion, won the last of the four events with two jumps of 108 and 95.5 meters and 234.1 points. His teammate, Hubert Neuper, was second with leaps of 107.5 and 93.55 meters and 228.2 points.

Three favored in Gooding tourney

GOODING — Eight Magic Valley wrestling teams will collect at Gooding High School Thursday for the annual Gooding Invitational wrestling tournament.

Leading the list of competitors will be Filer, Glenns Ferry and Oakley.

"I would have to consider them the favorites," said first-year Gooding Coach Bob Milligan. "Individually, I wouldn't know anyone, but it should be a good wrestling tournament."

The five other teams competing will be Declo, Kimberly, Valley, Wendell and the host team, Gooding. American Falls — the tournament's defending champion — will be absent from this year's line-up.

Gooding — with only two wresters having experience and both of them coming off injuries — will be an underdog going into the tournament, according to Milligan.

"We won't do too good because we're so young," he said Tuesday. "We have four freshmen and a few sophomores. So we only have two with experience."

The two are Roger Koyle and Stuart Fossceco.

Koyle placed fourth in the state tournament last year, but is still suffering from a hand injury he received in football. Fossceco, a 185-pound senior, is battling a knee injury he also received in football. However, Milligan expects both to be in good shape Thursday.

Fossceco went 7-1 last year — winning all his matches by pins — before he suffered a dislocated shoulder that sidelined him for the remainder of the season.

The first round starts at 1 p.m., the second round at 3 p.m. and the finals will begin at 7 p.m. All action will take place at Gooding High School.

State MX office without funding

CARSON CITY (UPI) — The state MX Field Office, created to plan for potential effects of the huge missile project, is nearly broke after one year of existence.

Federal funding delays have left six staff workers without contracts, and some of them without paychecks. Congress has approved the money, but actual disbursement to the states is being held up by red tape, state MX Planning Coordinator Steve Bradhurst said.

"The money won't arrive at least until the end of the month," he said. "Here we are at the peak of our activity, and no money."

He referred to the recent release of the Air Force environmental impact statement on MX, which his staff must analyze.

Last fall, Congress approved $4 million in MX planning money for state and local governments in Nevada and Utah. Nevada is to get $2.5 million of it, with $1 million going to Bradhurst's office and the rest to the Local Government MX Oversight Committee, based in Pioche.

The bill signed by the president Oct. 13 directed the Air Force be the granting agency, but the Air Force sought to have some other federal entity disburse the unds to the states. Nevada and Utah asked that the Four Corners Regional Commission do it, but Congress balked until last week when leaders agreed.

Meanwhile, Bradhurst's office is getting by on re-budget funds from last year's budget, the state's share of the federal government's first $550,000 MX impact planning grant to the state.

Didn't shoot for head, investigator testifies

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Former Sweetwater County investigator Delbert Gray has testified in U.S. District Court he did not aim for the head of a Utah construction worker when he shot and killed him outside a Rock Springs, Wyo., bar.

Gray's testimony came Monday in a suit against him by the estate of the dead man, Jay Jenkins, 40, of Sandy, Utah. The suit, filed by Kathy Sax, guardian of Jenkins' minor children, claims Gray violated the victim's civil rights. The suit seeks $4 million in damages.

Gray testified that the night of the shooting he was making a marijuana arrest when a group of men, including Jenkins, approached him. He said he told the men to stay where they were and that he was a police officer, but they kept coming.

The former investigator testified he thought he was being threatened by Jenkins, and shot in self defense.

A friend of Jenkins, Frank Vaill of Orange, Calif., said he, Jenkins and other friends came out of a club. Vaill said he heard what he thought was a firecracker and saw Jenkins fall to the ground.

The shooting occurred in December 1978. Gray was dismissed from his job after the shooting and charged with manslaughter, but the manslaughter charge subsequently was dropped.

Gray, who is black, then filed a civil rights suit against county officials, charging them with discrimination for refusing to rehire him after he was cleared of the charge, but the suit was dismissed in U.S. District Court last July.

Body found near border

JACKSON, Wyo. (UPI) — Teton County authorities have exhumed human remains from a shallow grave near the Idaho-Wyoming border and begin examinations Tuesday to determine the body's identity, Coroner Bob Boetticher said Monday.

Boetticher said a group of Idaho Boy Scouts discovered the grave Friday while on an outing near the Trail Creek Campground on the west side of Teton Pass. Frozen ground prevented removal of the remains until Sunday, he said.

Boetticher said the grave was guarded overnight Friday, and authorities thawed the grave Saturday by covering it with a tent filled with heaters.

He said tests were to be conducted Tuesday to determine whether the badly decomposed remains were those of a man or a woman and to learn the victim's age. Dental records of persons known to be missing in the area will be compared with the remains, he said.

Boetticher added the sheriff's office has sent samples to several laboratories. No cause of death has been determined, he said.

Boetticher said during the weekend that the body apparently was buried about six months ago. He said there was evidence that coyotes had unearthed part of the grave. The Boy Scouts were following coyote tracks when they discovered the grave, he said.

Actress' death a suicide, coroner says

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — British actress Rachel Roberts, who was found dead in the back yard of her home in November, committed suicide by swallowing a large dose of barbituates, the coroner's office said.

Coroner spokesman James Kono Monday said an autopsy on the 53-year-old actress revealed a substantial amount of barbituates in her system. The cause of death was listed as "acute barbituate intoxication."

Miss Roberts and actor Rex Harrison were married in a civil ceremony in Genoa, Italy, in 1962 and divorced in 1971. It was her second marriage and his fourth.

Ex-administrators draw prison terms

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — U.S. District Court Judge Laughlin E. Waters has imposed stiff five-year prison sentences on two men as "a sign to others" who administer federal anti-poverty programs.

The men were indicted by a federal grand jury last summer for their roles in a scheme involving thousands of dollars in kickbacks, embezzlement, bribery and falsification of records.

Victor Mena, 44, former administrator of the defunct Greater Los Angeles Community Action Agency, and Raoul Severo, 31, an attorney who represented the scandal-plagued agency, were also fined $10,000 each and ordered to donate 500 hours of community service following their prison terms.

During sentencing Monday, Waters said Mena "exploited" the agency, which was the county's umbrella agency for federally financed anti-poverty programs until it went out of existence in 1978.

Mena, who was charged with extracting money from people and companies seeking employment or contracts with the agency, was convicted of seven counts by a federal jury and 23 counts by Waters during separate proceedings. Severo was convicted by a jury on nine counts, including a charge that he aided and abetted the operation.

'Strangler' takes stand as hearing continues

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Confessed Hillside Strangler Kenneth Bianchi returned to the witness stand Monday in the preliminary hearing for his cousin and accused accomplice, Angelo Buono.

But a secrecy order imposed on the hearing by Municipal Court Judge H. Randolph Moore prevented any discussion of Bianchi's performance as a witness.

Bianchi began his testimony in the closed-door hearing last Nov. 12, and he is expected to be on the stand the rest of this month.

Buono, 45, is charged with 10 of the 13 Hillside Strangler slayings which terrorized the Los Angeles area from late 1977 to early 1978.

Bianchi, 29, made a plea bargain with prosecutors in October 1979 and confessed to five of the 10 murders. Bianchi testified that he and Buono took turns killing the female victims.

His testimony against Buono is considered crucial to the prosecution's case because of a lack of physical evidence. Bianchi has reportedly repudiated his confession but the district attorney's office said it expected Bianchi to live up the terms of the plea bargain, which allowed Bianchi to escape the death penalty.

As 'red zone' reductions studied

Volcano unpredictable, scientists say

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — Scientists said Monday that Mount St. Helens has become unpredictable and "extra caution should be taken near the volcano."

The announcement by the U.S. Geological Survey and the seismic research center at the University of Washington in Seattle came just a few hours after Washington state and federal officials announced a meeting to consider reducing the size of the hazardous "red zone" around the mountain.

The statement also said seismic activity in the past few weeks, coupled with the growth of a triple-sphered lava dome inside the crater, has led scientists "to speculate that if a large ash cloud or pyroclastic flow were to take place, it may occur with little or no forewarning."

"The (Geological Survey) is telling those people on the ground, 'Be careful,'" said U.S. Forest Service spokesman Tom Corcoran.

"They're saying it's not going to give a whole lot of notice, so these people are in peril," he said. "When it gets dangerous, it could get real dangerous real fast."

Kathy Cashman, USGS spokeswoman, said the recent growth of the lava dome and the relative seismic inactivity on the mountain since Friday show that the volcano "is in a different manisfestation of what we normally see. People aren't sure what it means.

"The whole form of the lava movement has changed, and we may not get the warning we've expected," she said.

Scientists previously thought they would be able to give a two-or three-hour warning of an impending eruption. Under current regulations, work crews, including loggers, are allowed inside the hazardous 'red zone' close to the mountain when conditions permit.

Bob Norris, a spokesman for the UW seismic research center, said the advisory was issued because violent and unpredictable eruptions "are associated with the growth of (lava) domes."

He said the lava dome could serve as a plug in the crater that would cause pressure to build inside the mountain.

Rather than blast the dome apart, Norris said, a future eruption might blow from underneath the dome in a lateral blast that would cover some of the same timberland destroyed in the volcano's devastating May 18 eruption.

Meanwhile, the Gifford Pinchot National Forest had announced a Jan. 14 meeting to consider reducing the boundaries of the agency's red zone.

Gene Smith, acting chief of sales for the forest, said seven sales of timber damaged by the volcano east of the mountain depend upon modification of the red zone. The sales have been advertised, he said, but will not be opened for bids unless the zone is reduced.

Washington state, which has a separate red zone area, is also considering changing its boundaries because of the mountain's recent inactivity, said Dave Guler, operations supervisor of the Washington Department of Emergency Services.

"After (Gov.-elect John) Spellman takes office Jan. 14, we will take another look. If the mountain remains as quiet as it has been, there is a strong possibility of reducing the size of the red zone," he said.

Reductions in the size of the red zone would primarily benefit logging companies, such as Weyerhaeuser Co., whose operations north and west of the mountain have been shut down for the past two weeks.

Balloon voyage lengthened

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Albuquerque balloonist Ben Abruzzo, one of the crew members on the Double Eagle II trans-Atlantic balloon flight, said Monday he will extend the length of his latest proposed balloon voyage.

Abruzzo, fellow Double Eagle II balloonist Larry Newman and two other men had announced plans earlier to fly a helium balloon across the Pacific Ocean from Japan to California.

Abruzzo said Monday the flight will be extended to allow the balloon to land on the East Coast of the United States.

"Our chief objective in the 1981 flight is to cross the Pacific from Japan to California successfully, then the secondary aim is to successfully continue the flight across the continental United States," Abruzzo said.

He said the balloon used will be named the Double Eagle V.

Denver judge jails egg-chuckers

DENVER (UPI) — Two Communist Workers Party members, who hurled eggs at independent presidential candidate John Anderson during a campaign foray into Colorado last fall, were sentenced Monday to 30 and 25-day jail terms for assault on a congressman.

Sentencing was imposed in two separate federal courts against Esmerejodad Guerrero, 26, who formerly worked with child-care centers in Weld County, and Carolos V. Romero, 27, a former New Mexico math instructor.

The sentences were similar to one handed down late last year against Jose Calderon, 33, of Greeley, who was involved in a separate egg-throwing incident against Anderson on the same day. Calderon received a 30-day sentence.

Anderson was first the target of an egg-tossing episode at the National Governors Conference on Aug. 5 by Calderon, but was not hit. His wife was splattered by an egg in that incident.

Calderon, a former student leader on the Colorado University campus, apparently hurled one of his eggs at the governor of North Carolina in protest of the deaths of five fellow Communists in a clash with the Klu Klux Klan in Greensboro in 1979.

Although Anderson escaped being hit by eggs at the governors' conference, he was struck later in the day when eggs were tossed at him outside his local campaign headquarters in Denver.

U.S. District Judge James Carrigan imposed a 30-day sentence on Guerrero, but granted a 10-day stay of execution to let him appeal. The judge also recommended that he be considered for a work-release program in the Greeley area.

U.S. District Judge Zita Weinshienk imposed the 25-day sentence on Romero.

Big Al's place lures gas money seekers, bargain hunters

By CHARLES HILLINGER
(c) The Los Angeles Times

LORDSBURG, N.M. — "A smartly dressed woman from Paris pawned these glasses to get enough money for gas to get to California," said "Big Al" Smith, peering through a silver-handled antique lorgnette.

Seven days a week scores of cars, trucks, campers and vans peel off Interstate 10 in this small town in the southwest corner of New Mexico. The motorists spot Big Al's huge, enticing sign hovering over the busy highway: "AL'S PLACE. WE BUY, SELL, TRADE. PAWN SHOP."

Big Al Smith, 57, has an acre under roof, a clutter of just about everything imaginable, bought from or pawned by people needing money "for gas to get down the road, for food . . .

"They're either goin' to or comin' from California, most of them on the way somewhere lookin' for work. They go broke and drive down the freeway ramps to my place," Big Al explained.

"People drive in here from damn near everywhere. From all the states, Alaska and Hawaii included. And from foreign countries like that woman from France who pawned her fancy specs."

You name it, Big al's got it.

Pots, pans, dishes, lamps, jewelry, watches, clocks, radios, TV sets, stereos, tapes, books, baby carriages, silverware, racks of men's, women's and children's clothing.

Tables, chairs, dressers, bicycles, motorcycles, tools, "thermos" jugs, drinking glasses, eyeglasses, tires, wheels, tennis rackets, golf clubs, Christmas ornaments . . .

"I'll buy anything," Big Al said.

One shelf holds an assortment of salt and pepper shakers.

"Last week a man and his family drove in with a U-haul trailer. He asked what I'd give him for everything he had in the U-haul. I told him $250.

"He took the $250. The U-haul was loaded with all kinds of furniture, all of it in pretty good shape.

"Lookie here," said Big Al, lifting a blanket off an organ. "I gave $500. You can have it for $800.

"I give three months for pawned items and charge 20 percent interest. After three months it's up for sale.

"You'd be surprised who comes in here. They drive here in Caddies and Porsches needin' money to buy gas and get on down the road.

"Others drive off the freeway to my place in the same kind of big expensive cars lookin' for bargains."

WILEY W. MANUEL
...made it to top

Justice, 53, dies of cancer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Wiley Manuel, son of a dining car waiter and domestic servant who became the first black supreme court justice in the history of California, died of cancer Monday.

He was 53.

Manuel, who underwent colon surgery just before Christmas, died at Providence Hospital in Oakland, where he was readmitted Jan. 1 for post-operative complications.

Known to his colleagues as a hard-working, gentle man who never forgot his meager beginnings, Manuel was appointed to the state's highest court in 1977 by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

At the time he found it ironic that his confirmation to the $62,935-a-year job of associate justice by the State Commission on Judicial Qualifications went through without opposition while controversy raged over naming Rose Elizabeth Bird as the state's first woman chief justice.

The only whisper of opposition came from those who thought his 14 months as an Alameda County Superior Court judge provided him with too little judicial experience. Before that appointment — also by Brown — Manuel served for more than 22 years in the office of the California attorney general, rising to chief assistant in charge of civil matters.

Manuel was born in Oakland Aug. 28, 1927. He once said he had to work especially hard to get through the University of California and Hasting Law School to survive because "that was the only way a kid like me was going to take it."

The justice — who credited his success to his father, a dining car waiter for Southern Pacific — never forgot his old friends, car-pooling across the bay each day and sharing brown-bag lunches with them.

He is survived by his wife Eleanor and two children, Gary and Yvonne.

Jobs offered 25 teachers being fired

DENVER (UPI) — The president of the board of trustees at Colorado Women's College said all 25 faculty members due for termination as part of a radical budget cut have been offered part-time jobs.

The terminations were to be effective Monday and although only 20 of the 50 scheduled classes met, CWC president Sherry Manning said only under-enrolled classes will be dropped and all classes needed by seniors for graduation kept.

Miss Manning ordered the layoffs of 25 of the private school's 35 faculty members to lessen a $5-million debt. The students last week lost a court fight to prevent the dismissals.

At a noon protest Monday, the students called for Miss Manning's resignation and said 100 of the 500 students have signed a petition seeking her dismissal. The students also promised to launch a fund drive to keep the faculty.

Robert Colwell, president of the CWC board of trustees, said none of the faculty members has been officially terminated and the 25 designated for dismissal have been offered part-time positions.

"I can see how the students would feel betrayed, but I have talked to others who have said they understand," he said. Colwell said the school's financial is very serious, but not yet in bankruptcy.

"The situation is that several of our creditors have turned us over to collection agencies and I think two of them have hired attorneys," he said. "The creditors can file involuntary bankruptcy proceedings against us."

Replicas removed from museum grounds

Utah rustlers go for dinosaurs

VERNAL, Utah (UPI) — Rustlers in eastern Utah have switched from cattle to dinosaurs.

Thieves stole three life-size dinosaur replicas from the Utah Field House of Natural History 20 miles from the Dinosaur National Monument, the curator of the museum said Monday.

Mike Perry said three or four thieves apparently lifted the fiberglass beasts over a fence surrounding a "dinosaur garden" sometime late Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

Missing were an ornithomimus — a ostrich type dinosaur about seven feet tall — and two protoceratops, which resemble six-foot-long horned toads. The statues weighed 80-90 pounds each.

"We believe they are still in the vicinity," said Perry. "It's got to be a prankster. We are checking roof tops, backyards, just about every imaginable place."

Perry said the replicas have little market value except as a novelty. But they are valuable in terms of scientific study.

The dinosaurs were sculpted by artist Elbert Porter based on studies of skeletal remains. They were the three smallest replicas in a collection of 14 dinosaurs sold to the museum four years ago. The entire collection is valued at over $600,000.

The museum houses dinosaur bones recovered from a quarry at the national monument. The state and the town of Vernal built the garden and bought the replicas to give museum visitors an idea of what dinosaurs looked like.

HELENA, Mont. (UPI) — Montana National Guardsmen retrieved a cannon from an Idaho arsenal to fire off a 19-gun salute at Ted Schwinden's inauguration as governor here Monday.

The obsolete, 75 millimeter weapon belongs to the Montana National Guard, but had been stored in a Pocatello armory. Guard officers told United Press International.

Schwinden, 55, a Democrat, owns a grain farm near Wolf Point in northeastern Montana and previously served as lieutenant-governor and commissioner of state lands under former Gov. Thomas Judge.

Schwinden beat Judge in a primary election for the gubernatorial nomination last year.

Gun death of TV star's son ruled accident

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The coroner's office ruled Monday that the shotgun death of Marry Tyler Moore's only son was an accident, based on the statements of witnesses to the shooting.

Richard Carlton Meeker Jr., 24, died Oct. 14 when he somehow triggered his sawed-off shotgun while talking to a roommate in the living room of his rented home near the University of Southern California.

James Kono, spokesman for the county medical examiner, said evidence, primarily statements from friends and witnesses, showed the shooting was accidental.

Coroner investigators reportedly based their conclusions mostly on statements by Meeker's two roommates, Judy Vasquez, 21, who was with him when the weapon discharged, and Janet McLaughlin, 23, who was in a bedroom when she heard the shotgun blast.

Miss Vasquez told authorities after the shooting that "he was unloading and loading the short-barreled gun when it went off."

Actress Doris Day files for divorce

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Doris Day Monday filed for divorce from Beverly Hills businessman Barry Comden, citing irreconcilable differences.

The marriage was her fourth.

Miss Day, 56, and Comden were married in April, 1976, but have been separated since August, 1979, court documents said.

The couple has no minor children.
